Victoria Premiums Cheapest

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Automobile insurance premiums in Victoria next year will still be the lowest in B.C. despite discounts announced Tuesday for all other regions of the province.

Transport Minister Robert Strachan said Victoria's 1975 rates will remain the same as this year and will compare favorably with private insurance company premiums across Canada.

But while Victoria's rates stay the same, government revenues will be pumped into Autoplan to provide cheaper insurance for all other areas of the province.

Discounts on last year's premiums, ranging as high as $48, will apply to motorists in other areas of the province as the first step towards establishing a flat-rate insurance across B.C., with Victoria's rates serving as the base.

Victoria will benefit, however, from a 20 per cent, across-the-board reduction in premiums for all commercial and recreational vehicles in B.C.

Strachan, who announced the rate structure in his role as president of the Insurance Corporation of B.C., said it was too early for ICBC to start making any changes in its rate structure.

So the actual premium structure will remain the same next year "except for a few anomalies and the discounts will simply be subtracted from the old premiums."

Discounts for private vehicles are calculated by taking half the average difference in rates between Victoria and each area in the province and will amount to as much as $48 in northern B.C. for newer cars and those carrying collision insurance.

TRICKY DICKY ALL SOLD OUT

CHICAGO (UPI) — Richard Nixon is picking up popularity among the trick-or-treat set. Mrs. Frieda Fensler, owner of a Chicago novelty shop, has already sold out her supply of Nixon masks, though the big business doesn't start until two weeks before Halloween. "All the supply houses seem to be out of them, too," she said. "I guess it's the Watergate thing, or the resignation, or both, that made the difference this year. We only sold a few last year."

Food Kills 3

LA RONGE, Sask. (CP) — RCMP have reported three persons dead and another in serious condition in hospital after an apparent case of food poisoning near La Ronge in northern Saskatchewan. The victims, who became ill after supper Saturday night at a cabin 20 miles north of La Ronge, are George Stothers, 61, of Shawanigan Lake, Patrick Stothers, 14, of Regina and Donald Thomson, 14, of Saskatoon.

Prime Rate Cut

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada said Tuesday that it will lower its prime lending rate to 12 1/2 per cent from 13 1/2 to U.S. customers, effective today. The bank said the new rate reflects "the cost to us" of U.S. funds.

'Ruinous' Quake

FAENZA, Italy (UPI) — The Bondandi Observatory said today it recorded a ruinous earthquake, probably centred near the Soviet-Iranian border and lasting more than two hours. "The effects of the phenomenon must have been extremely ruinous," it said.

A New Forces 'Elite'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Defence Minister James Richardson surprised the armed forces Tuesday, announcing that while creating an elite force the government will let recruitment lag.

He also announced in the Commons that because the size of the forces, now numbering 83,000 persons, must drop because of increased costs, the tasks they perform also must be cut.

He gave no indication of what chores will be cut. Gen. Jacques Dextraze, chief of defence staff, whose effective military strength now is reported to be down to 78,000 persons, said it is up to the minister to decide what tasks are to be cut.

Richardson said the forces must be well paid, well equipped, well trained, well housed, well fed, well disciplined, well led and well motivated.

"In other words, we need an elite force that is proud of the job it is doing for Canada — a force with a high morale to which many more Canadians would be glad to belong."

That remark came after he said the forces will be reduced by not replacing all of the 8,000 or 9,000 persons who leave the forces each year.

"We cannot achieve some of our objectives in a few months or perhaps in some cases in a few years, but at least we should recognize the concept and have the vision of the kind of Canadian armed forces that we want to build, and we should be working steadily toward that achievement."

He spoke through a continuous stream of catcalls from Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East), whose constituency has a large armed forces population. "Nonsense," the MP called at one stage.

Richardson said the main tasks of the forces are defence of sovereignty, commitments to the North America defence system (NORAD), commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and peacekeeping.

He said he and Gen. Dextraze agree that the forces now are overworked and any reduction in personnel would have to be accompanied by a reduction of tasks.

There has been no cut in the defence budget. The 1974-75 expenditures were estimated to be $2.5 billion — $100 million higher than originally budgeted.

The ratio of 67 per cent of the budget for personnel and only 11 per cent to equipment must be changed, he said. To do that personnel costs had to be reduced.

He said his proposals are designed to help those already in the forces and to improve their capability.

Meanwhile, George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Island) warned Tuesday any move to further reduce Canada's commitment for a defence force in Europe would totally destroy whatever reservoir of goodwill this country has left with the members of the European Economic Community.

In other parts of Canada, similar coverage for the car now costs, according to Strachan:

—in Edmonton: $166
—in Toronto: $181
—in St. John's: $241
—in Montreal: $253

Normal coverage for a 1973 Mustang, used for work and also used by an occasional driver under 25 would cost:

—in Victoria: $125
—in Vancouver: $169
—in Prince George: $232

In other parts of Canada, similar coverage for the car now costs, according to Strachan:

—in Edmonton: $166
—in Toronto: $181
—in St. John's: $241
—in Montreal: $253

A Better Deal Or They'll Quit

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Tuesday that unless he's able to get a better deal for farmers, consumers will "be out of luck, paying higher prices than ever for food."

He warned that farmers simply will stop producing food if they do not get the security and standard of living now available to most other members of society.

Whelan told a food prices forum "we simply will not have any farmers, or any food produced here in Canada, unless and until farmers begin to get better treatment in our society and our economy."

"If I succeed in getting a better deal for farmers, it's going to be the Canadian consumers who will reap the real, long-term benefit."

He said he sees no evidence that consumers are ready to make sacrifices necessary to pay more for their food to help farmers and hungry people in other parts of the world.

He said that if Canadians were serious about helping the hungry, they would increase charity donations, build on rocky or swampy land instead of on the most productive farmland, cut down on fertilizers for lawns and golf courses, and cook more carefully to avoid waste.

Whelan said that Metropolitan Toronto's two million inhabitants "throw out more than 300,000 tons of food scraps a year."

"That's 300 pounds of food per person per year."

Meanwhile, Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) warned Tuesday that many small beef producers will go out of business in the next two weeks unless Ottawa provides a crash economic aid program.

CITIZEN OF THE YEAR named by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce today at a special luncheon in the Empress Hotel is Phillis Sutton, founder and president of Arbutus Crafts Association. Mrs. Sutton, of 2789 Musgrave, was recognized for untiring effort in her contribution to Greater Victoria's handicapped. One of her current involvements is with the $500,000 board residence for the disabled, being planned for Saanich by the Vancouver Island Housing Association for the Physically Disabled. Arbutus Crafts now has about 80 workers and 110 volunteers.

Youth Charged in Death

An 18-year-old youth was charged in Victoria provincial court today with murder punishable by life in prison in connection with the stabbing death of Stanford Wray, 53, of 1296 Palmer Close Tuesday.

Curtis William Christie of 1303 Gladstone was remanded in custody to Friday to fix a date for preliminary hearing.

Police arrested Christie at a house in Vic West early Tuesday evening. He offered no resistance and was not armed.

Wray, a faller for a logging company in the Nanaimo area, was found about 2 a.m. Tuesday on the sidewalk of Grant Street and Fernwood Road. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Victoria General Hospital.

Also in provincial court today Mark Kendall, 19, of 3178 Old West Saanich Road, charged with manslaughter in the death early Saturday of Gordon Robert Smith, 20, of 7874 Lochside, was released from jail in his own recognizance in the sum of $2,500.

Prosecutor Gordon MacDonald did not oppose Kendall's release noting the youth was a local resident without any previous convictions.

He was remanded to Thursday to set a date for preliminary hearing.

Smith was found on the parking lot of the Royal Oak Inn, 4676 Elk Lake Road, early Saturday and died shortly after being taken to hospital.

It is believed a fight occurred but Saanich police declined to say how Smith died.

Police continue to ask for assistance in locating any person who may have knowledge about an incident which took place in the parking lot 1 a.m. Saturday.

Head Out To Sea: Abductor

By DEREK SIDENUS
Times Staff

BELFAST (AP) — Prisoners took the warden of Armagh Jail hostage today as riots spread in prisons throughout Northern Ireland. Authorities said British army troops using tear gas are trying to free the seized warden at the women's prison in Armagh, 35 miles northwest of Belfast.

The Armagh incident followed one at the Maze internment camp near Belfast that left nine prisoners and one guard with injuries requiring hospital treatment and about 130 prisoners, guards and troops with lesser injuries.

The Maze camp housing Irish Republican Army members was set afire and almost destroyed.

Protests against the Maze rioting spread to the streets of Northern Ireland's principal cities this morning and gangs of Roman Catholic youths roamed through the streets burning automobiles, setting up street barricades and fighting police. Traffic in Belfast and Londonderry was paralyzed.

The disturbances were seen as sympathy protests against British policy of detaining without trial persons suspected of terrorist activities.

Merlyn Rees, Britain's minister responsible for Northern Ireland, called an emergency meeting with local officials to discuss alternative means of housing the estimated 1,900 suspected and convicted guerrillas held at the prison.

British troops were flown in by helicopter to quell the rioting. Security forces sealed off the area, and the army described the situation today as "relatively quiet."

Police sources said prisoners were herded into the remaining huts while the government decides what to do with them. Each of the huts, made of wood and galvanized tin, normally houses 15 to 20 prisoners.

Alternative detention sites being considered by the authorities include the Magilligan army camp in County Londonderry, 60 miles northeast of Belfast, and the prison ship Maidstone in Belfast harbor.

The Magilligan camp is already being used as a prison and is packed full. The Maidstone was previously used to detain political terrorists but was abandoned because of poor conditions aboard.

The Maze prison, formerly called Long Kesh, opened in September, 1971, after internment of suspected guerrillas without trial was introduced in an attempt to end the violence between Northern Ireland's extremist Roman Catholics and Protestants.

Most of the detainees in the Maze are members of the Irish Republican Army, a Roman Catholic-dominated guerrilla group fighting to drive the British out of Northern Ireland and unite it with the Irish republic. There are also about 80 Protestant gunmen detained in the camp.

With a 30-30 rifle in one hand and a bottle of Tia Maria in the other the abductor of an American couple in their 24-foot sailboat from Victoria Inner Harbor Sunday night ordered his captives "to head out to sea."

"He said he didn't want to go to the U.S. or Canada because he was wanted by the authorities in both places," Victoria police Det. Ed Hardy said today, releasing further details of the bizarre incident.

Hardy said the abductor sat in the cockpit after ordering the couple into the boat's cabin and swilled the liqueur mixed with milk throughout the night-long ordeal.

At one point he fired the gun in the air as a warning to the boat owner — a 35-year-old Bremerton man — to keep still.

"Do as I say or I'll blow your heads off," he warned.

The harrowing journey ended 14 hours later when the couple steered the boat into shore about seven miles northwest of Jordan River while the abductor, chilled and weary, had gone to sleep in the cabin with his gun across his lap.

Hardy said the couple were afraid to approach the man and decided to abandon ship.

The owner let the woman off on some rocks and then sailed the boat in the opposite direction.

But as he was trying to round a rocky point the boat ran aground and veered back in the direction where the woman had got off.

He jumped overboard and swam for shore.

Hardy said the abductor woke up and tried to sail the boat out into the strait.

The woman whose legs had been badly bruised from slipping on the rocks lay in the bushes and watched the boat pass by. The abductor was at the helm and fired a couple of rounds wildly into the bushes.

The boat went around a corner into a shallow bay

Samson Faces Charges

MONTREAL (CP) — Former RCMP constable Robert Samson was arraigned today on two charges arising from the July 28 explosion of a small bomb at the home of Melvyn Dobrin, president of Steinberg's Ltd.

Samson was charged with making an explosive device, an offence punishable by five years, and placing it near the Dobrin residence, punishable by 14 years.

Crown Prosecutor Ferhand Cote said he had no objection to the release of Samson pending preliminary hearing, tentatively set for Nov. 12, provided certain conditions were met.

Earlier, Fire Commissioner Cyrille Delage ruled the explosion "is of criminal origin" and recommended that the former constable "face criminal charges."

Samson suffered injuries including partial hearing loss in the explosion and is currently serving a 60-day prison sentence after being cited for contempt of court for refusing to testify when the inquiry opened in late August.

Samson, who said he was at the Dobrin house after receiving an anonymous telephone tip that he would find something interesting there, has since been dismissed from the anti-terrorist squad of the RCMP.

"It's one of the most complex investigations I can remember in my many years' experience as fire commissioner," Delage said. "At one point during the inquiry, the investigators and myself wrote down 41 possible motives for the bombing."

"I believe we've eliminated 39 and we won't be able to eliminate the 40th unless we find William Obvont."

Obvont, a Montreal businessman, has been described in police testimony at the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime as a member of the underworld. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest last week.

Beryl Threatens To Resign

OTTAWA (CP) — Beryl Plumptre said Tuesday she will resign as chairman of the food prices review board if the federal government attempts to limit her power to recommend action on food prices.

She said in an interview it was "absolutely essential" that the board be allowed to recommend government action when needed.

"Otherwise, what's the point?" Mrs. Plumptre was commenting on statements made by former consumer affairs minister Herb Gray, who told the Commons recently that the government apparently was trying to trim the board's powers.

CALVES BURIED

CURTISS, Wis. (AP) — Protesting low cattle prices, farmers shot or slit the throats of 658 calves and buried the carcasses in trenches.

"I'm tired of rhetoric," said Steve Pavich, president of the National Farmers Organization (NFO) in Wisconsin. "There is a problem out here in rural America and something has to be done about it."

"None of us like it," one farmer said. "But if they don't change soon they might as well shoot the American farmer and throw him in the pit."

The farmers say the price of feed grain and other costs have jumped while real prices have fallen.

'Too Much Stress' On Academics

Victoria schools place too much stress on academic achievement and scholarship winners, a Greater Victoria school board official charged Tuesday.

"The city of Victoria, because of its insular position ... because of its holiday retreat-resort background is almost totally academically oriented," said Ted Callbeck, assistant director of special education.

"It's time we started to look at the needs of people," he said.

Callbeck was responding to doubts expressed by school board trustees about the wisdom of establishing a junior vocational school in the district.

Some trustees said they were afraid such a school might acquire the stigma vocational schools have had in the past of being inferior to academic schools.

Callbeck and other district staff defended the proposal, saying the kind of top-flight vocational school proposed has never been built in B.C. before.

Their arguments finally convinced trustees on the board's administration committee, who agreed to recommend that the board approve creation of the new school.

The proposal is to start the vocational school at S. J. Willis junior secondary school, possibly as early as 1975, until a new building is completed.

"An interest in this type of school has been welling up in this district," said school psychologist Dr. Glen Pope.

The school would offer such programs as food services, construction trades, auto mechanics, and commercial training, he said.

Such program might attract some of the 1,000 high-school students that drop out of Victoria schools each year, he said.

"It would almost rescue a large number of secondary school students who by this time are very antagonistic to the regular school system," said Pope.

Other changes that go to Monday's school board meeting with the committee's recommendation.

Transfer of Beacon Hill primary school as soon as possible to South Park school on Douglas, which has been phased out of operation.

Possible creation of a kindergarten-to-grade-12 "less-structured" school at the former M.L. View high school building, an expansion of Sundance elementary school.

Moving the "more-structured" Sentinel elementary school to the Dean Heights school building, just down the street from Lansdowne junior secondary school, in 1976.

Lansdowne has already been designated as the high school extension of Sentinel.

Move most Dean Heights students to S. J. Willis, the rest to the sheltered workshop of the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded.

BLOOD CLINICS SLOW

The second week of daily blood donor clinics by the Red Cross got away to a slow start Tuesday with a total of 95 donors, 20 short of the objective.

The clinic continues at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort, today, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 this evening.

Pollen said he had learned "to my horror" that when the federal government renewed the lease on the CP docks site two years ago, it granted the company a 20-year extension without stipulating lease conditions that such renewal was only subject to continuation of service.

"I am advised by the Ministry of Transport that it is the practice of CP to maintain these leases even after it has abandoned their primary use," he said.

"But it would seem to me in the interests of the community and the public good that they (CP) should relinquish this site and let it revert to the Crown federal."

Pollen said he couldn't see how CP "can possibly have the gall" to hang on to the site under the present circumstances, having abandoned its Victoria-Seattle run.

He told council that in his letter to Black Ball, he reminded the company that the city's agreement to the firm's lease renewal with the provincial government a couple of years ago was based on the understanding that "they agree to move it and when a new site becomes available."

Ald. Clyde Savage said it might be possible for Victoria to lease the CP site from the federal government and then sub-lease it to Black Ball.

Abduction

where it became lodged on the beach.

In the meantime the owner of the boat ran up to the highway where he summoned help.

The woman crawled out of the bushes after the boat passed by and waved down a fishing boat which came in and rescued her.

Police dispatched a helicopter to the scene and found the sailboat keeled over on the sand.

A police tracking dog searched the area Monday and Tuesday but failed to pick up any scent. Squatters on nearby Sombrio Beach told police they saw nothing.

Hardy said the abductor obviously knew the coastline and had recounted experiences working on fishboats in the area.

"He would tell the couple the names of the points and inlets they were passing."

Police describe the abductor as between 25 and 30 years old with long dirty kinky curly blond hair, a very sharp nose, shallow cheek bones and dark freckles on his face. He was between 5'8" and 5'11" tall, 160 lbs., and had a mustache with mutton chop sideburns. He spoke with an American accent.

He was wearing dirty white pants, black oxfords, a dark brown round-necked sweater and brown corduroy jacket.

He was carrying a large orange backpack from which a fishing rod and the barrel end of another rifle protruded.

A Sooke police spokesman said another effort will be made today to salvage the sailboat. An attempt Tuesday was aborted because of high seas and surf.

Government 'Dishonest'

PENTICTON (CP) — Social

Credit Leader Bill Bennett said Tuesday the provincial government has broken its commitment that it would never finance the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia from general revenue.

He said the 10-cent-a-gallon tax on gas, part of a $120 million subsidy for ICBC, was designed to mislead people.

"As a result the government is being dishonest and we will pay the highest gasoline prices in Western Canada to subsidize Autoplan," Bennett said.

Bennett said people should realize they "are paying their Autoplan in three ways: the actual car insurance premium, the driver certificate fee, and now the 10-cent-a-gallon tax on gas."

"Motorists will be paying an additional premium every time they go to the gas pump," Bennett said.

Meanwhile, in Prince George, Liberal Leader David Anderson said equalization discounts are "Alice in Wonderland mishandling of the affairs of the province."

He also rejected the use of gasoline and diesel fuel taxes as part of the equalization program.

Conservative Leader Scott Wallace accused the government of going back on its promises.

"It is clearly a fact that the government is subsidizing the cost of Autoplan," he said.

"That is a complete and total denial of a promise which was made in the election of 1972 and which has been repeated on the floor of the house by Strachan on more than one occasion."

The president of the British Columbia Automobile Association agreed with Bennett about "the government's subsidy plan."

The remarkable thing is that before ICBC started, a year ago ... it was said there would be no subsidy," George Bradley said Tuesday.

will amount to $36 for newer cars; in the Fraser Valley and southern Interior it will be $24; an din upper Vancouver Island (north of the Malahat) and adjacent mainland it will be $18.

For older cars, 1966 models and earlier, the discount will range from $18 to $2.

Strachan said he could not estimate how much the discounts will cost across the province or how much ICBC may lose in its first year of operations.

The discounts will be financed entirely from separate government revenues. Legislation passed last spring allows ICBC to take up to 10 cents from the 15-cent gasoline tax to lower auto insurance premiums.

The subsidy could amount to as much as $120 million but Strachan would not say how much of the subsidy would be used under the discount program.

The minister also announced continuation of the separate driver's insurance system but said the $10 basic driver's certificate charge will be phased out.

He would not elaborate on how the charge will be eliminated but he explained that drivers with more than five demerit points will still be charged under the driver's certificate for their bad driving record.

The penalties for demerit points will remain the same. Drivers with six points or more will have to pay the square of the number of points they possess at the end of the year as their charge for the driver's certificate.

"The concept must be maintained that the individual must be responsible for accidents and those with bad driving records will pay more," Strachan said.

Norman Bortnick, ICBC executive vice-president and general manager, said the phasing out of the $10 certificate will be difficult if it is to be done equitably since it is based on the driver's birthday.

Strachan emphasized that since the original Autoplan rates were based on the 1972 level and next year's rates will be lower because of the territorial discounts, B.C. premiums will be among the lowest in Canada.

He offered reporters a number of comparisons to show B.C. rates are substantially lower than those in other major cities in Canada.

A 45-year-old driver of a 1974 Chevrolet Belair, who uses his car for work, will pay $131 in Vancouver next year and $104 in Victoria, for example.

According to Strachan the same man would pay $180 in Toronto, $253 in Montreal and $168 in Calgary, based on this year's premiums.

Private industry rates, in other parts of Canada will undoubtedly go up about 15 per cent next year as well, said Strachan, since they have already gone up 14 per cent this year and the private insurance industry is forecasting a loss in 1974 of $200 million.

In explaining the philosophy behind the discounts and the move towards uniform insurance rates, Strachan said auto insurance is different from other types of insurance because it is compulsory.

Autoplan can therefore be considered as a "traffic ac-

operated much like a utility" in which rates are averaged to spread costs equitably around the province.

One of the main reasons for retaining last year's rate structure, said Strachan, is because ICBC's operating costs are lower through "economies of scale."

Autoplan's operating costs are running about 18 per cent of earned premiums, he said, compared to more than 30 per cent for most private firms.

While Strachan refused to comment on possible losses for ICBC after its first year of operations, he disclosed that about 35,000 claims a month, for a total monthly cost of about $15 million, have been pouring in since ICBC's inception seven months ago.

In a 12-month period that would amount to about $180 million with 18 per cent or about $35 million for operating costs, a total of $215 million.

Collision insurance will again be required of all vehicles registered in 1967 or later and the application of higher discounts to all cars carrying collision will encourage older cars to also take out the extra protection.

Under the new rate structure housewives will be given the same benefit as employed persons under the no-fault accident benefit scheme of Autoplan.

the weather

A cold front pushing slowly south through B.C. gave cloudy skies and some rain to most of the central and northern regions during the night. Several new disturbances will move along the front towards the province today and Thursday bringing more rain to the districts already affected. Little change is seen for the weather over the southern-most sections of the province for the next few days.

TIDES AT VICTORIA HARBOR

Dean Begins To Tell All

Times News Services
WASHINGTON — John Dean testified in the Watergate cover-up trial today that a campaign plan for kidnapping and prostitution was discussed in the office of then Attorney-General John Mitchell five months before the 1972 Watergate burglary.

"I looked over at Mitchell and he winked at me," Dean said, beginning what was expected to be lengthy testimony against Mitchell and four other former aides of Richard Nixon.

"Mitchell sat silent for a moment, puffed on his pipe and said, 'this wasn't exactly what I had in mind,' and suggested the plan be somewhat tailored."

Dean said the $1 million plan was presented at a meeting Jan. 27, 1972, by Gordon Liddy, then general counsel for Nixon's Re-election Finance Committee and later convicted of conspiracy in the original Watergate trial. Mitchell later managed the re-election campaign.

The plan included "mugging squads" capable of roughing up anti-Nixon demonstrators; "kidnaping squads" which, for instance, could remove the leaders of demonstrations at the Republican national convention and take them to Mexico, and prostitutes who would be used to compromise Democrats at their convention in Miami Beach, Dean said.

Dean testified he later talked to then White House Chief-of-Staff H. R. Haldeman, also one of the defendants.

Dean, then a White House counsel, said he told Haldeman: "Bob, I've attended these meetings over in Mitchell's office. I don't want to have anything to do with it and I don't think the White House should have anything to do with it."

He quoted Haldeman as saying, "John, you shouldn't and don't have anything to do with it."

Dean, who was Nixon's chief accuser at the Senate Watergate committee, drew a large crowd of spectators as he began retelling under oath the story of the alleged cover-up.

Earlier, a defence lawyer claimed that Mitchell denounced aide Jeb Stuart Magruder as "a damned liar" for alerting a Nixon campaign lawyer in July, 1972, to Mitchell's involvement in Watergate, a defence lawyer claimed.

Attorney Jacob Stein, counsel for former campaign lawyer Kenneth Parkinson, told the jury in the Watergate cover-up trial that Parkinson believed Mitchell's claims of innocence and shredded the notes he had taken when Magruder briefed him on Mitchell's complicity in the plot.

Stein was the last defence attorney to make an opening statement to the jury before Dean was brought to the stand to testify.

Judge John J. Sirica, meanwhile, indicated that he is considering sending three doctors to California to examine Nixon to see if he really is too ill to testify in the case.

Sirica asked lawyers for the five defendants — all of them former Nixon associates — "to be thinking about" who would pay for a medical examination if he decided to order one.

At least three of the five defendants have adopted strategies of every man for himself.

ROCKY SEEKING NEW HEARINGS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson Rockefeller has asked to be recalled immediately by two congressional committees considering his nomination as vice-president so he can testify about controversial gifts and a 1970 campaign book. (See also Page 32.)

The former New York governor said Tuesday that "my nomination is being tried in the press and not before the appropriate committees of John Ehrlichman and Robert Mardian are scrambling separately to avoid conviction, opening statements by the lawyers showed Tuesday.

Stein, in his opening statement today, emphasized his client's distance from other defendants. Parkinson had argued unsuccessfully in pre-trial motions for a separate trial.

In a related development, outgoing special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski and his former top assistant, Philip Lacovara, agreed today that "substantial evidence" will soon be made public showing that Nixon played a major role in the Watergate cover-up.

Jaworski, who is leaving his post next week, also indicated that he has no quarrel with President Ford's decision to grant Nixon a full pardon.

Jaworski, who held the top prosecutor's job for 11 months, said he had waited to offer his views on the pardon and Nixon's role in the cover-up until a jury in the federal trial of five former Nixon aides and campaign officials had been sequestered and until after he had announced his resignation.

The special prosecutor said that evidence to be presented at the trial will further involve Nixon in the cover-up.

"The evidence will show he's guilty, just as much as a guilty plea," he said.

Congress, without my having the opportunity to present all the facts."

This is being done on the basis of selective leaks from his income-tax returns and gift-tax returns, all of which were submitted to the committees in confidence," Rockefeller said in a statement.

There was no immediate indication, however, that either the Senate rules committee or the House of Representatives judiciary committee was about to call Rockefeller for questioning soon.

President Ford, meanwhile, expressed complete faith in the integrity of Rockefeller and said the vice-president-designate has his complete support.

Aides to Rockefeller said he telephoned rules committee chairman Howard Cannon in Las Vegas and judiciary committee chairman

Aides to Rockefeller said he telephoned rules committee chairman Howard Cannon in Las Vegas and judiciary committee chairman Peter Rodino in Washington Tuesday. He urged Cannon to convene the Senate hearings "tomorrow (Wednesday) morning if possible, and certainly before the end of the week," aides said.

Help Sought For Burned-Out Families

An appeal for help for two families whose Central Saanich home was destroyed by fire Tuesday has met with a "pretty good response," the Tsartlip Indian Band said today.

Still needed however, are children's and baby clothes and a stove.

A new home has been arranged by the band.

Left homeless after the fire were Wayne Morris, his wife Caroline, and their children, a two-year-old son and four-month-old daughter, and Howard and Maribel Morris.

Offers of help may be telephoned to the Tsartlip band office at 652-2913.

Troops Mobilized in Boston

Times News Services

BOSTON — Gov. Francis Sargent has mobilized three national guard military police companies in case of more fighting today over court-ordered busing, but an aide to mayor Kevin White said the call-up "has all the earmarks of disaster."

Sargent placed the guardsmen on alert Tuesday and called on President Ford to send federal troops to insure public safety after classroom violence at Hyde Park High School, where eight whites were injured — including one student stabbed in the stomach and a teacher attacked.

Ford, however, denied the request, saying federal troops "should only be used as a last resort."

Sargent, in announcing Ford's denial late Tuesday, said "it is now quite clear that the enforcement of the law and the protection of the public rests solely on the city of Boston and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

In rejecting Sargent's request for federal assistance, Ford said in a statement that the primary responsibility for maintaining order continues to lie with state and local authorities.

The student who allegedly caused the wounds was sent home right after the accident but returned to school Tuesday after being met with his parents and teachers.

The incident started when one student flashed a knife and another pupil tried to take it from him.

Ford said no request for federal help would be in order "until the governor is in a position to say he has utilized the full resources of the state and that despite these efforts he can no longer control the situation."

TWO YOUTHS STABBED

'Basket Case' Bangladesh In Need of a Fresh Start

By JONATHAN DIMBLEBY
New Statesman

Once when Sheikh Mujib drove through the streets of Dhacca the crowds would wave and shout "Jai Bangladesh" — victory to Bangladesh. Now when he drives from his home to the office, flanked by police, his passage is studiously ignored. The Father of the People, instead of waving from the window, looks fixedly ahead. Mujib is much in need of friends.

The country is perilously close to chaos. Millions of people are hungry, hundreds of thousands are near starvation, and many are dying from lack of food. In the countryside local officials speak with real fear of the next three months, which will be the worst time: the threat of mass starvation and a mob lynching in consequence.

Dacca, already suffocating under the invasion of the hopeful hungry, now faces a further onslaught from the victims of this summer's flood. The population of the city has doubled to 3 million since liberation 3 months ago.

The new arrivals live in squalor which must be unrivalled anywhere else in the world. If there is a free food handout they fight each other to get to the rice. Members of the intelligentsia speak of "when not if" the people rise up against them: "They will kill us of course."

Bangladesh is bankrupt. World inflation and the oil crisis wrung the neck of her fledgling economy. The price of rice has leapt fourfold in 18 months. Now, while civil servants, their pay frozen since 1970, spend their entire salary on food, the poor starve. It is a moment for strong government. But as the storm gathers Sheikh Mujib retreats further and further in a world of self-serving make-believe. In which his people still love him, the Pakistanis are to blame, the outside world will come to his aid and Bangladesh will emerge triumphant. It is a sorry delusion.

The doubts about Mujib were always there. He is still a leader of charm, an orator of passion, a man of pride and courage. But as his country drifts towards the abyss he still spends half the day locked in private audience with the riff-raff of the Awami League who form his chosen circle of advisers and confidants. The man who takes all the major and most of the minor decisions in Bangladesh is surrounded by flatterers and sycophants, the prisoner of his vanity, caught between insecurity and arrogance, sold on the myths his acolytes peddle him—that he is the saviour of his people and that is all they know and all they need to know.

The best of the civil servants—no bureaucracy has better brains—despair. They make plans, take them to Mujib, get them signed. So a decision is taken: the relief camps for the flood victims must be closed—a menace to public health. The cumbersome machinery of state—no bureaucracy has more red tape—lurches into action. Two days later one of Mujib's cronies discovers the plan, thinks it may damage his standing, buttonholes him, and the Prime Minister countermands his own decision. The machinery grinds into reverse, another plan is scrapped. The camps stay open, the civil servants sigh, another political debt is paid and Mujib retains an old friend.

Too much is made of corruption in Bangladesh by glib moralisers from the outside world. At a low level where a man feeds his family today and hopes for tomorrow, it is inevitable. It is inevitable too among the small-timers of the Awami League, who for more than 20 years lived under the yoke of Pakistan, escaping the misery of oppression through the politics of resistance in the backwoods; men who served the Awami League in the lean years, and were the more oppressed for it.

When they came to office the dream-talk of opposition became the rhetoric of government. It was too much for them: seduced by the pickings of power they now drive around Dacca in second-hand cars, wear bright Western shirts, and sometimes eat out at the Intercontinental. In a bankrupt land, surviving on the black market, they are the consequence, not the cause, of chaos.

But there are others who have no excuse. The trendy, overweight young Bengalis who fill the bar at the Intercontinental, where West meets East, look much at ease with the world. They were the freedom fighters, the heroes of Bangladesh, the men who won the guerrilla war against Pakistan. Now they are the bar-stool "students" who, unique in the world, are as important as they think they are. They have become political pimps, trading on their glorious past, making a fat living by easing the path of nervous Bengali businessmen in search of the permits and passes without which trade and commerce is impossible. They open illegal doors, threaten civil servants, influence politicians, and (by force of arms if necessary) terrorise their critics. They are the chosen offspring of the Awami Leaguers who, through the near charade of the ballot box, are the elected dictators of the country.

It is the men at the top of the Awami League who are the worst: ministers, civil servants and businessmen who have grown fat on the backs of those they led to freedom. Of course if they suddenly offered their ill-gotten riches to the nation those who starve would not grow fat. But they have taken up, sanctioned and all but imposed a way of life and thought for those around them and beneath them which is destroying Bangladesh. Each man thinks only of himself and on his tomorrow. The purpose for which a million or more young men died has evaporated. The pride and unity of the new nation has been broken into bickering pieces. Mujib promises to act, threatens the firing squad, but suggests a cordon is corrupt and he reacts with myopic anger: "It is a blasted life; he was in prison with me..." And so the crooked win the day.

In his crude way Kissinger was right: Bangladesh is an "international basket case." In an atmosphere of near panic the government is trying to cope with the latest disaster. Foreign agencies, embassies and delegations demand facts and figures with the insistence of a demented computer; they complain when a harassed official from one department plucks statistics from thin air which are in conflict with those produced by the same method in another department; then in the air-conditioned comfort of the Intercontinental, downing expensive foreign booze, they debate whether or not the government has exaggerated the disaster. Did the rivers really rise so high? Was the flood really the worst in 20 years? Are they really as short of food as they say they are?

It is a grotesque debate conducted in a mood of cynical resentment by the men who, if they were not so demoralized, would be ashamed of themselves. Such questions are irrelevant. Bangladesh was at the point of breakdown before the floods, she was already bankrupt, short of food, and overpopulated with starving peasants. The flood merely had to make things worse to be a disaster. It made things much worse. Despite the debate (the people will thank God) aid has arrived. Planes loaded with drugs, tents and blankets, lumber into Dacca airport; ships, filled with grain offload in the docks at Chittagong. Some lives at least will be saved.

But the international community has grown impatient with Bangladesh, is tiring of its toy. Exhausted by the terrible truth that most of the relief operation of the last 32 months has been in vain, relief workers, embassy staff and UN officials turn on the government and the people. Unmindful of the oppression of the past they treat the Bengalis with the arrogance of despair. They speak with contempt of the inefficient, and with impotent anger at the corrupt.

They should cease such whining and look at themselves: see what they have done. For nearly three years the governments of the outside world have competed in the chaos; forced the inefficient into indecision; fed the corruption they now affect to deplore. They have given the wrong things at the wrong time for the wrong reasons. They have sent economic missions filled with goodwill and hot air and the papers pathetically report that yet another country has shown "sympathetic interest." They have piled high the desks of civil servants with conflicting plans for the solution of the flood-food-population crisis. They do not know each other's minds and do not want to know. Moneylenders all, they seek to sink their talons in Bangladesh and keep them there. Already the deals she has done will leave the bankrupt nation in hock indefinitely.

Mujib would do well to throw half the foreigners out and start again. He should send back the tractors, bulldozers and trucks which waste fuel and have no spare parts; sink the speedboats and mend the sampans; tell the Japanese he no longer wants their luxury hotels and they shall not bribe his skilled workers into emigration. He won't do it of course.

It makes a nice story. People always like to hear about a big conspiracy in the federal government. We have absolutely no information that there is any truth to these rumors.

Dr. Carl Sagan, the celebrated astronomer and author at Cornell University, says he's been hearing the government-knows-rumor for 20 years himself. He doesn't believe it. Nor does he believe — though he does not "exclude the possibility" — that earth has been visited by flying saucers. "We have not a smidgen of evidence," he says.

Asked if there is intelligent life in this solar system, he replies jokingly, "There is some evidence for it on earth."

Reports Growing

If such a government project as the one rumored does exist, it may not have much work cut out for it. A December 1973 Gallup Poll found that 51 per cent of the American people believe that flying saucers are real, not caused by imagination or hallucinations. More than 15 million people say they have actually seen one themselves.

At the moment, reports of UFOs appear to be growing. Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, (Rep.-Ariz.), long interested in UFOs, is on NICAP's board. Last week one of his aides said that, suddenly, calls to his office about UFOs were on the rise. "For some reason, the old standbys have started calling again. They seem to think something big is going on."

The UFO-counting organizations say sighting reports are also increasing. Why? Sagan has one idea. "I believe it is part of an expression of unsatisfied religious needs," he says.

"Traditional religions are not supplying what people have always needed, and these are very troubling times. So people invent a messiah for a technological age—a messiah in scientific clothing."

One may dismiss the UFO sightings and cultists as fanatics, but their number seems to be growing and, Blum believes, fewer and fewer of them are "kooks."

The scientists may scoff, but millions believe and perhaps millions more want to believe. Blum ended his book with what many no doubt consider a hopeful note and a foregone "undeniable possibility that UFOs and the biggest story ever."

What's Wrong With Parliament

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The first item Mr. Trudeau proposed and set out at length before the new Commons was "major parliamentary reform." Later, the NDP leader, Ed Broadbent, belittled the time and priority given by the PM. "He raised five subjects," said Broadbent, "which do not affect even .05 per cent of the people of Canada and spent one hour and 10 minutes lecturing us on them, that was disgraceful."

Broadbent wanted an emphasis on the economy and meeting inflation and housing shortfalls, etc. A real difficulty in the matter of better government for Canadians lies right in the two stances. The PM, with a renewed and dominating mandate, wants parliamentary reform. It is badly needed. The Opposition hedges and downgrades the importance of reform.

There'll always be problems, home and away, which will permit the Broadbents to score parliamentary reform as a minor matter affecting few. And after each major electoral victory, victors always want to make Parliament "efficient" and free ministers from spending much time in it.

The fair questions are: What's wrong with parliamentary operations? Where should we seek reform?

Aside from its paramount role as a forum on which the nation can focus to see and hear what their politicians are doing and thinking, Parliament has two main duties: To make laws and to examine or scrutinize government operations and spending.

Parliament is moderately effective as a forum or focal point for a running, topical presentation of "what's up" in federal politics. Parliament is slow — indeed, it is almost a choke-hole in making laws. It is slow, inadequate, even incompetent, at scrutiny. The fault for such inadequacy must be borne by the politicians and parties in general, not by a few specific ones or by any one party.

The crudest way to describe the situation is that Parliament always has a surfeit of talk. It is talk that comes from most MPs. That is, everybody gets a shot at answering off. In truth, almost no one listens to most speeches. Hardly anyone reads them in Hansard or elsewhere. There is a profusion of speeches and very little genuine debate (i.e., back and forth). Frankly, there is a most unimpressive content in most speeches, whether they relate to legislation or spending.

There is something wrong with an institution which has a bad record in making laws and an even worse one in scrutinizing government. Most of Parliament's product — that is, speeches — is ignored by MPs, ministers and senior officials. Such indifference, within and without Parliament, is merited. Most speeches fail in rhetorical presentation, wit, argument and content. Repetition is chronic. So is a persistent, lame and juvenile partisanship.

Once one puts to one side the imperative that Parliament always has a surfeit of for critical expressions about the government, the wonder is why the members of the House of Commons waste so much time in pointless talk.

Trudeau wants shorter and pre-scheduled debates on legislation. He should get this if the Opposition is sensible and if he gives them what they deserve — that is, a fair part in the discussions which set lengths to debates and more and readier information on government policy intentions and information. The Canadian fetters of secrecy and government dissembling over plans and data must give way. Otherwise, the Opposition MPs and backbench government MPs must mander on in speech-making a long arm's length from genuine participation in framing laws and monitoring the effectiveness of government administration and spending. Fiddling with the daily oral question period or putting in television are hardly solutions to too much talk, too few laws and too little exposure of the stuff of administration.

Again and again the Prime Minister, the party leaders and all other MPs should ask themselves the question: Why do we spend hundreds of hours a year in speech-making to which scant attention is paid, even by ourselves?

FLYING SAUCER FEVER ON THE RISE AGAIN!

'Something Big' Going on Up There?

By TOM SHALES

WASHINGTON — The Smithsonian Institution's "Life in the Universe" exhibit in the Air and Space Museum does not come right out and say we have friends on other planets, but it does concede the possibility.

And though the Smithsonian denies that its new exhibit is part of a government program to prepare Americans for the arrival of visitors from outer space, some people are going to see it that way anyway.

It marks one of the first that a federally financed organization has seriously entertained the notion of intelligent life in outer space.

"Is there life of any kind elsewhere in the solar system?" asks a sign in the exhibit. "We may soon be able to answer that question," it replies.

There are people who believe it has been answered already, that inter-terrestrial beings not only exist but have buzzed us numerous times since 1947, and that the federal government has known it all along.

For reasons not clear, a rumor long popular with the 25-year-old unidentified flying object cult has suddenly and recently been gaining momentum, especially on the west coast. The rumor is that the government has decided after a quarter-century of denials to begin admitting UFOs exist — in order to condition the American people to the likelihood of an alien landing.

People who believe this rumor would see the Smithsonian exhibit as a small part of that program.

and that it does not come out on behalf of monsters from outer space.

"We've gone out of our way not to encourage or discourage that sort of thing," he says. "It's the place of a museum to present a smorgasbord of facts and the visitor should have the right to help himself. When we speculate, we go out of our way to label it speculation."

Interestingly, UFOs are not mentioned in the exhibit. "It's such a singular subject," says Zisfein. "We didn't want to dilute what we had to say."

"We did indeed consider it," says exhibit curator, Alexis "Dusty" Doster III. "But there isn't enough scientific evidence to say yes or no about it."

Rather consistently, however, the government, through the air force, has been able to say no on other occasions. For years the UFO cult, with its catalog of sighting after sighting by seemingly sober and sane individuals, has denounced the Air Force "Project Blue Book" as something of a "coverup," a super Watergate. Finally, in 1963, the air force decided the UFO topic was dead and the Blue Book died with it.

Which federal agency now has done it over, flying saucers? "It's a tennis ball thing," says an air force spokesman. "You know how well we can do that in a bureaucracy. We say, 'Don't call us, call Charlie.'"

If there is a secret UFO project, no one will admit it. The air force says no, it's not them. They have nothing to do with UFOs. People who call with sightings are directed to local law enforcement officers or universities.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) says "neither officially nor unofficially" does it have anything to do with UFOs.

The Central Intelligence Agency says, through a spokesman, "We're not in that business now. When it was hot stuff, we had a committee that met downtown. But that was in the '50s."

And a spokesman for the Defense Department says of the story about the alleged secret project, "This whole rumor is very far-fetched. I can't think of any foundation it would have in fact."

Primordial Soup

Much of the handsome, black-light exhibit is concerned with origins of life on this planet as well as others. One of its most entertaining elements is a seven-minute videotape starring public TV chef Julia Childs, who whips up life — the "chemicals of life" — in a test tube. She calls it "primordial soup."

"Bon appetit," she trills at the end. Sounds innocuous, but still some people think the exhibit is a tell-tale sign. Ralph Blum, whose non-hysterical book "Beyond Earth: Man's Contact with UFOs" was published in April of this year by Bantam (500,000 copies in print), believes that our government is about to tell us something big. In the book he and his co-author, wife Judy predict it will happen in 1975, though he now says "I was embarrassed when I realized I'd said that."

Yet, he thinks, it may be soon. "What it looks like is a change in strategy — reversal of a 25-year policy. Lately there's been an upswing in sightings, especially from law enforcement officers. This has begun to generate pressure. It looks to us like a policy shift has taken place."

Blum predicts there will be increased "selective leaking" from the Pentagon that will gradually change the government's position. With that, Jim Lorenzen of Tucson, Ariz., agrees. He heads a UFO-watching 3,000 member international group called the Aerial Phenomena Research Organization (APRO).

"I think such a program exists," he says. "I've had leaks from Washington, the Rand Corporation and other places. There won't be a big announcement from the government. Just an easing up on information."

"It may be that they have saved this information until it is useful. They played it down for a long time. Now it might be politically expedient to use it. President Ford might use it to keep attention from other things. He said when he was in the House that UFO information should be made public, anyway."

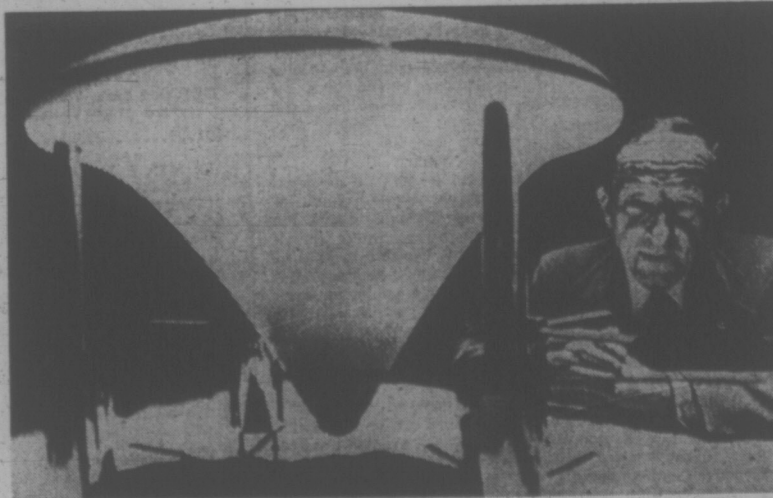

But Jack Aruff, head of the similar National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena in Kensington, Mo., disagrees. "This kind of rumor has been around for

Flying Creatures

"Is there intelligent life elsewhere?" asks another sign in the exhibit. "We don't know... the materials necessary for life probably exist everywhere... If there is life elsewhere, then there may be intelligent life elsewhere."

The exhibit even includes artist's conceptions by Bonnie Dabell of hypothetical extra-terrestrial life forms "that are anatomically possible" — weird flying creatures, giant swimming carnivores, and a land mammal with its eyes on gangling tentacles and its mouth at ground level.

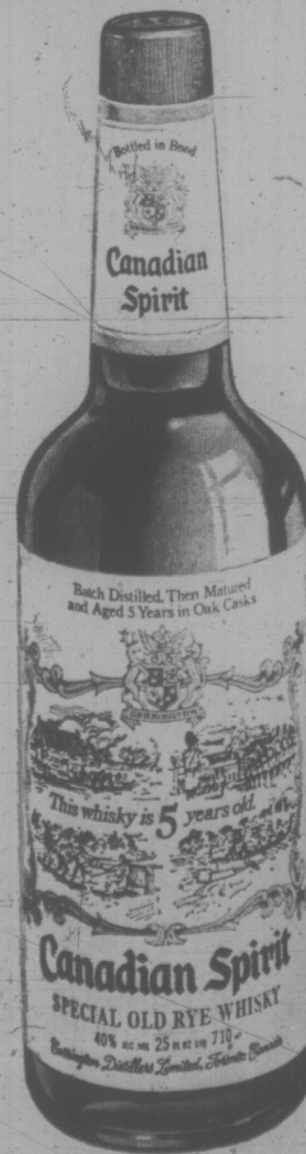

Melvin Zisfein, deputy director of the museum, says the exhibit is just one of 25 on various subjects that will be moved to a new Smithsonian building in 1976, that it's not part of a government plot,

Ailing Hadfield Retires

Ray Hadfield, long-time civil servant and superintendent of motor vehicles, has resigned from the provincial government for health reasons.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan announced the resignation "with deep regret" Tuesday and said it will actually be taken as an early retirement since Hadfield would have retired in February, 1975.

Hadfield, 59, has been ill for some time and is now in Gorge Road Hospital.

He began working for the motor vehicle branch 42 years ago and was appointed superintendent in 1965.

"Dedication and hard work led him to the top post in the branch," said Strachan, and "those attributes and his warm personality have placed him in high regard both in the service and without."

In an interview later, Hadfield said unless drivers' training courses become mandatory in B.C., the number of traffic deaths will continue to rise.

Speaking from his hospital bed, where he is recovering from rheumatoid arthritis, Hadfield also warned B.C. residents not to expect miracles from the lower speed limits to go into effect soon.

The first thing the government should do, he said, is to introduce a province-wide high school driver-training system.

Any student refusing to take such a course should not be allowed to obtain a driver's licence before he is 18, he said.

This tough restriction, he said, would be necessary to deal with the smart-ass kids who say they don't have to take that sissy stuff."

Hadfield said such a province-wide program would be very expensive but added that unless a lot of money is spent, there will be no reduction in the number of traffic fatalities.

Regarding the new speed limits, Hadfield said he was somewhat doubtful. In essence, he said, only 70 miles of freeway were drastically affected by the lower speeds.

He admitted it might "make people more aware of the dangers," but added that the irresponsible driver will continue to exceed the limits.

Shipyard Men Get 47%

Shipyard workers have ratified new contracts maintaining their position as the highest-paid in their industry in North America.

Ratification among the 24 union locals at Burrard, Yarrow and Quadra Steel came Tuesday.

Journeymen, who had been paid $5.98 an hour, will receive an immediate pay raise of $1.50 an hour with a second increase of 85 cents an hour next Oct. 15, in the 22-month contract. Total increase is just under 40 per cent.

Jim McAvoy, Victoria spokesman for the Joint Shipyard Conference, said the total package, including fringe benefits, is worth $3.16 an hour or a 47 per cent increase.

"We are happy we completed negotiations two weeks before expiry of the agreements and ratified them today," he said.

The settlement includes a number of health and welfare and pension benefits, and a cost-of-living escalator clause in the second year of the contract which will provide a raise of one cent an hour for every rise of 0.3 in the consumer price index. The first payment will come next July, based on the previous six months.

Beer Bonanza

SHEFFIELD, England (CP) — A local brewery dumped 8,000 cans of below-quality beer on a rubbish dump only to find that many persons were carrying armfuls of them off in bonanza fashion. Finally, a bulldozer was called in and made sure the defective beer was safely out of reach by burying the remaining cans under tons of earth.

B.C. Government Backs New Poultry Plant

A new poultry processing plant in Enderby, North of Vernon, will get off the ground with a $400 investment and $1.3 million loan guarantee from the provincial government.

Cabinet orders released Tuesday allow Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich to buy 400 common shares of IOK Poultry Ltd. at $1 a share and to guarantee construction and operation loans to the firm.

The government will also purchase 10 preferred shares of the company, at $1 a share, under the new Farm Products Industry Improvement Act.

Pacific Poultry Producers Co-operative Association of Vancouver controls 60 per cent of the shares in the new processing enterprise.

The co-op also will hold a controlling interest in Pan-Ready Ltd., a new chicken hatchery firm in Matsqui.

Cabinet orders reveal the government has also guaranteed $1.1 million in loans to Pan-Ready for construction and initial operation of the firm.

The minister of agriculture has already purchased 100,000 shares of Pan-Ready at $1 a share.

B.C. Adds Auditors

Fifteen new auditors have been added to the provincial finance department to cope with the rash of new government programs and agencies.

The new appointments will increase the comptroller-general's auditing staff to about 55 from about 40 and will cost an additional $84,240 in salaries this fiscal year.

Comptroller-general Jack Minty said the workload on the auditing department has increased substantially with the inception of pharmacare, provincial ambulance services, expanded welfare services, acquisition of transit services by the government, the new Rentalsman's office, the new housing department and other provincial agencies.

The new appointments were approved in cabinet orders released Tuesday.

Cabinet orders also revealed establishment of 34 new positions with the public works safety inspection division at a cost of $202,242 this year; 29 new positions with the motor-vehicle branch at a cost of $103,692; 11 new positions with the mines department for $56,988; seven new positions in the provincial secretary's department at $27,846; seven new jobs in the transport and communications department at $26,148; and four new positions with the Library Development Commission at $15,330 this year.

Lauk, EDA Chief Clash —Both Unrepentant

Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk clashed Tuesday with Hugh Aitken, the visiting president of the Export Development Corporation — and both went away unrepentant.

The clash came at a luncheon for the EDC president, during which Lauk made the following charges:

—The Export Development Corporation's loan program has a $1 million minimum and cuts out about 90 per cent of the businesses in British Columbia. Large companies in Toronto and Montreal get most of the loan benefits.

—He said the Vancouver office of the Export Development Corporation is just a token gesture and staff should be increased if the program is to help B.C.

—He said the profile of EDC is far too low in the west. The provincial government had to publicize the services of the federal agency because of a week public relations effort by Ottawa.

Aitken, in a news conference after the luncheon, remained unrepentant on the first two points.

He said the minimum loan level would remain at $1 million and the EDC had no intention of increasing its staff level from the present two officers and one secretary in Vancouver.

The EDC, however, would increase its public relations drive and would accept a B.C. suggestion that the EDC help promote more export sales, but he didn't say how this would be done.

Aitken, however, strongly defended EDC policies and said they could benefit B.C.

While there was a $1 million minimum for the loan program, there was a second program where smaller orders could be arranged and payment guaranteed by the EDC.

If a B.C. company wished to sell to a company in Brazil, the EDC would help either by loaning money to the buyer, thus giving the B.C. company instant payment, or the EDC could supervise the contract and guarantee the B.C. company it would eventually collect from the company in Brazil.

In the second case, no loan is involved.

For example, a B.C. company could sell $100,000 worth of equipment to a company in Brazil and, if the buyer did not eventually pay his bill, the EDC would pay the B.C. company 90 per cent of the amount and would try to recover the money from the company in Brazil.

There is no minimum on the guarantee program. In fact one Canadian sale of $15 worth of flashlight batteries to Goa, a Portuguese colony in India, was guaranteed by the EDC.

The loan program minimum, however, would remain at $1 million.

Aitken said the foreign lines of credit were usually for terms of seven, 10 or even 15 years and it was EDC policy not to get involved in loans under the $1 million level.

Aitken said the B.C. office makes no decisions but simply gathers information and forwards it to Ottawa for action by the board of directors, which must approve all loans and guarantees. A staff of two officers was large enough for this type of liaison role, he said.

Aitken said an officer could be sent from Ottawa to Vancouver if a really big sale was brewing.

He said that of the $2 billion that the crown corporation had loaned out since 1945, B.C. firms had benefited by receiving more than 10 per cent of the total — with $223 million.

Aitken is in Vancouver today to conduct a meeting of the EDC board of directors, the first regional meeting in B.C. since 1970.

Meanwhile, Economic Development Minister Lauk also remained unrepentant today.

A spokesman for his office said the minister feels the loan limit must be reduced below $1 million or companies in Ontario and Quebec will continue to reap most of the benefits from the taxation funds.

The department also continues to feel the Vancouver office of EDC must have more than two officers if it is to be helpful. Work of the office should be expanded from its present role of moving in after a sale is arranged. The EDC should help to arrange export sales as well.

The Vancouver EDC office also should be granted more authority, the department spokesman said.

SPENDING, WINNING GO TOGETHER

Spending was synonymous with winning in the July 8 federal election, according to a survey of Vancouver Island returning officers.

In each of the four Island ridings, the winner spent more than the other candidates, according to figures filed with the returning officers by campaign managers.

In Victoria, the winner Allan McKinnon, Conservative, spent $16,109.87. This was higher than Liberal Frances Elford $11,636.21, and Peter James, NDP, $5,536.64.

In Esquimalt-Saanich, the winner Donald Munro, Conservative, spent $14,351.65. Other candidates were Liberal Don Joy $9,677.49 and Peter Smart, NDP, $6,946.31.

Closest race in the spending battle was in Nanaimo-Colwichan-The Islands, where Tommy Douglas was re-elected under the NDP banner.

Douglas spent $11,268.43, Conservative Don Taylor spent $11,181, and Liberal Raymond Patrick Kane spent $7,234.71.

Co-Op Tenants Halt Conversion

Conversion of an apartment complex into condominiums in Port Moody has been stopped through the joint efforts of the provincial govern-

$11,000 'Grace' For Ferry

Highways Minister Graham Lea has granted the Lasqueti Island ferry service $11,000 "purely as a matter of grace."

The ferry service, operated by Western Ferries Ltd. of Parksville, had a 36 per cent increase in traffic from April to July of this year and requested compensation from the government to pay for the necessary additional ferry runs.

A cabinet order this week approved an $11,000 grant above the $3,250 monthly payment provided by the government.

But the order noted that the highways minister "does expressly deny liability and purely as a matter of grace is prepared to recommend that the claimant—be allowed added compensation."

ment and the apartment tenants.

The tenants have formed the Mountain View Housing Co-operative and purchased the five three-storey apartment buildings and the government has purchased the 7.66 acres of land under the apartment buildings.

Purchase price of the land was $1.5 million and the government has also given the co-op an "interim loan" of $3.63 million to buy the buildings, pending approval of a mortgage from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Crestwell Holdings Ltd. of Vancouver, originally owned the 217-unit apartment and applied in the spring for permission to convert the complex to condominiums.

The United Housing Federation of Vancouver assisted the tenants in forming a co-op to buy the apartment and so far the co-op has 58 members.

Once the turn-over is complete, the co-op members will be eligible for the $500 home acquisition grant and will receive homeowner grants.

Co-op members will pay downpayments of $600 for a one-bedroom suite, $800 for a two-bedroom suite and $1,000 for a three-bedroom.

Drug 'Dealer' Jailed

A convicted drug dealer described as a middleman in the B.C. heroin trade was sentenced Tuesday to eight years in prison.

Karel Markl, 24, of Burnaby, received the sentence from Judge Leslie Cashman in Victoria county court.

Markl had been found guilty Oct. 3 of possessing 86 caps of heroin for the purposes of trafficking.

During the two-day trial prosecutor Bruce McConnan said police found the heroin in five balloons suspended by small magnets under dashboard of Markl's car May 9.

Fire Hits N.S. Fortress

LOUISBOURG, N.S. (CP) — Fire overnight heavily damaged the chapel area of Fortress Louisbourg and destroyed restored religious artifacts and paintings.

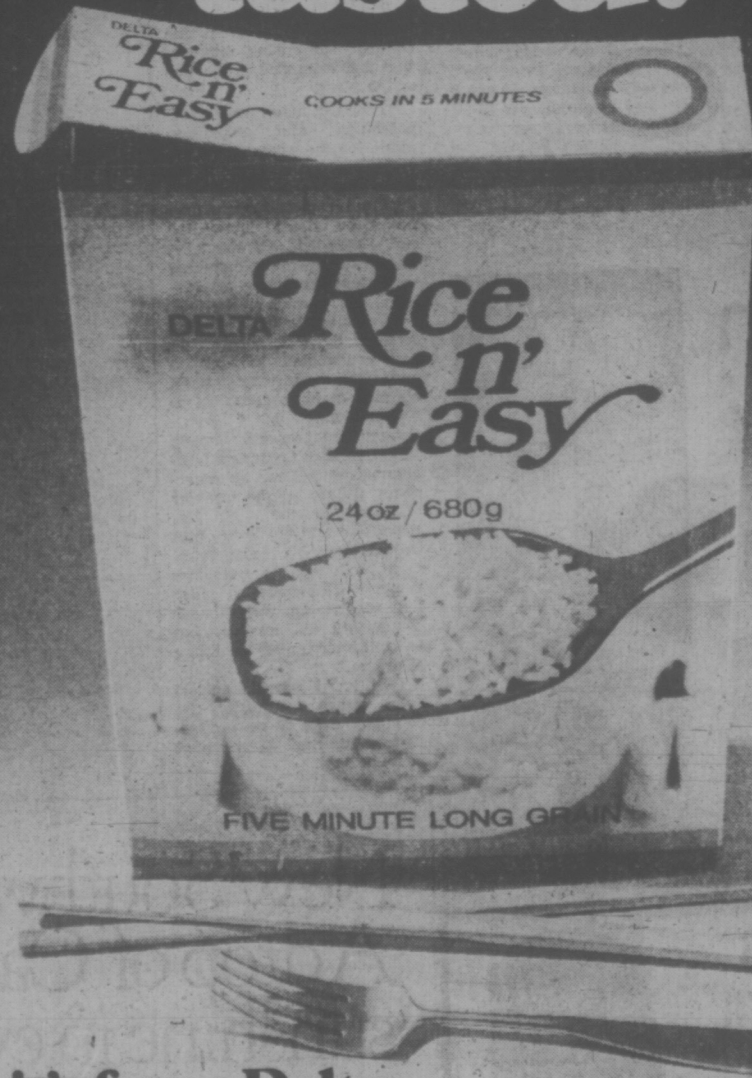

The national historic site, largest restoration project of its kind in Canada, is 23 miles from Sydney on Cape Breton Island.

Officials described the blaze as "like another siege," but said an 18th-century fireproof safe prevented the flanges from spreading to the authentically-furnished governor's quarters.

The Louisbourg volunteer fire department, assisted later by equipment from nearby Sydney, contained the fire which broke through the roof of the chapel, part of the barracks in the king's bastion.

URBANE MR. MARCHAND STUDIES EVERYTHING

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand has a marvellous capability of turning away the icest question with a warm smile and warmer wit.

For example, Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and The Islands) was deadly serious when she asked Marchand why he had not yet released a feasibility study on an Arctic railroad, one which might haul oil more efficiently and with less environmental danger than a pipeline.

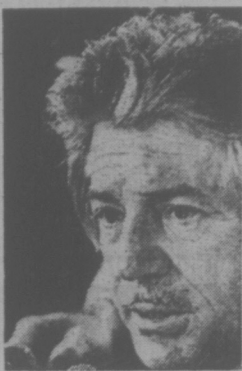

Marchand answered, typically, that it was being studied and when his department had completed its study the report would be released.

Opposition MPs are also demanding release of a report on a fatal air crash at Frobisher Bay last February. They get the same answer.

The answer is becoming so routine that one opposition member asked if the minister would save everyone a great deal of time by telling the Commons what matters were not being studied by the department.

Everything is under review, replied Marchand with that charming smile.

Lalonde Scraping For Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday he is still trying to "scrape up funds" in his department to provide the $2.5 million extra needed for the Medical Research Council's approved operating grants.

Lalonde said his department is scrutinizing its programs, trying to find "100,000 here and 100,000 there" to meet the agency's current budgetary requirements of $44.9 million.

Following a meeting with representatives of the major national medical research associations, Lalonde said his department was still uncertain what level of financial support the government should commit to medical research.

Dr. Charles Scriver of Montreal, president of the Canadian Society for Clinical Investigation, told reporters Lalonde would not promise to increase the MRC's 1975-76 budget by at least 10 per cent to allow for inflation.

United Issue Comes to Boil

OTTAWA (CP) — Day-long wrangling over United Aircraft of Canada Ltd.'s production plans culminated Tuesday in Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie saying he does not know if the company violated contracts with the government.

During a session of the Commons economic affairs committee, he attempted to explain contracts under which United Aircraft at Longueuil, Que., has been awarded $83 million in government financial aid.

But, asked by reporters if the contracts were violated when the strike-plagued company shifted some production of aircraft engines to the United States, Mr. Gillespie replied: "I don't know."

"I think the important thing here is to try and stabilize what is a very difficult situation and to ensure that the Canadian government's rights are fully secured in this situation. The third thing which I think is important is to ensure the customers of this company are served."

In committee, he said that under the contract the company cannot transfer design rights outside Canada when research and development is funded by the federal government and the company must use Canadian sources for its production where economically feasible.

Pressed by Ed Broadbent, New Democrat parliamentary leader, to specify how the government can ensure that United Aircraft produces Canadian-designed aircraft engines at Longueuil, Mr. Gillespie said:

"In my point of view, the contract stands."

"The transfer from Longueuil to the U.S. took place when the company was not able to meet its obligations to its customers. It did so to protect the work and future of the Canadian company."

If the 40 per cent of the Canadian production had not been shifted to U.S. plants, contracts would have been lost.

Mr. Gillespie said repatriation to the Montreal-area plant already has begun even though the nine-month strike at Longueuil continues and referred to a letter from the company promising repatriation and expanded production at the plant.

"They can only meet the repatriation and expansion plans for the plant if the recruitment continues or if the labor situation stabilizes."

"You mean as soon as they break the union?" interjected Mr. Broadbent. Of the 2,500 United Auto Worker members who went on strike in January, 1,400 remain off the job.

In addition to the Canadian funding, the U.S. government had contributed $36 million and the company itself claimed to have spent up to $200 million.

After unsuccessfully trying to get regular Commons business suspended for an emergency debate on the transfer of work to the U.S., Mr. Broadbent told the House that United Aircraft's pledge to return production is worthless because it contains a rider that repatriation would occur as quickly as possible, but without interrupting the filling of orders.

That could provide an escape clause to justify the company even if no production is returned in the next year, he said.

Barney's Supreme Sacrifice Home Only Cost $130,000

By PETER THOMSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It was touching to read that Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson is setting a good example for Canadians by cutting down on housing space.

Danson told an interviewer he had sold his 150-year-old farmhouse in Willowdale and bought a smaller, more contemporary house in Central Ottawa.

According to the report Danson told his interviewer he was "overhoused" with the Willowdale farmhouse with its four bedrooms, three bathrooms and loads of living space, especially since there is only himself and his wife Isobel at home now.

Lest you get a tear in your eye thinking of the sacrifice Danson has made let us quote an advertisement for the house he has purchased in Ottawa.

It is described as being: "On Rideau Canal. This superbly designed and crafted contemporary house in delightful garden offers the very best in downtown living. Foyer-dining room 32 feet long, living room 29 feet. Roof is covered with shakes. House is air conditioned and has electronic air filter. Double garage. Asking $130,000."

It doesn't sound as though Barney and wife are too severely underhoused at the moment.

Foreign Cash To Be Sought For Housing

OTTAWA (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson said Tuesday the government should aggressively seek foreign money for housing mortgages.

It is not possible to subsidize all new housing with public funds "and we must continue to seek new pools of capital which can be tapped for housing money," he told the Commons.

"I think the time has come when we should consider seeking housing non-equity capital from outside Canada in a more active and deliberate way."

Mr. Danson told the Commons that, in addition to foreign capital, "pension funds should be much more active in mortgage investments."

"I know their participation in housing has increased... but I do not think the full potential of these funds as a source of capital for housing has been reached."

Currently, about 14 per cent of the available pension fund money is invested in mortgages.

Mr. Danson said he plans to continue with existing government programs "along with new ones which I am developing" to stimulate the construction industry.

"Because of rising prices, high interest rates and the reluctance of private lenders to commit mortgage funds, the annual rate of housing starts this year is substantially lower than the record levels of recent years."

Mr. Danson also said his department plans to continue

Big Effort On Behalf Of Women

OTTAWA (CP) — A major effort will be made next year to change attitudes which stereotype women into the role of homemakers, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday.

He announced in the Commons that the government has allotted $5 million to finance seminars, conferences and advertising campaigns designed to improve women's status in 1975. Next year has been designated International Women's Year.

Lalonde, minister responsible for women's status, said, prevailing attitudes often prevent women from taking an equal part in society. Television, for instance, left the impression that all women were pretty housewives concerned only with waxed floors and sweet-smelling laundry.

Andras 'Opposed On Clamps'

ANDRAS

TORONTO (CP) — Plans put forward by Robert Andras, federal immigration minister, to cut back on immigration have met with almost universal opposition from other ministers who consider them discriminatory, according to the Globe and Mail.

The newspaper quotes a cabinet source as saying that opposition sprang up around Andras' proposal, the effect of which would be to reduce immigration from South America, Asia, the Caribbean and parts of Europe by making more stringent the regulations under which relatives of people already in the country can be nominated immigrants.

However, it says the source was not convinced that the overriding opposition to the plans would mean their defeat.

He said passage of regulations through cabinet often depends on how strongly the minister is prepared to defend it, the newspaper says.

An official in Andras' office said the regulations had been discussed by the cabinet but denied there had been the dissension.

Aldermen Reject Go-Kart Track

Victoria's land-use planning committee Tuesday urged city council to turn down a request for a go-kart race track on the Victoria West waterfront, because of the potential noise nuisance affecting the surrounding residential area.

The application came from a city constable, Ken Diben, who envisaged using the cadet parade ground on the former Navy League property, now under city ownership, as a go-kart track.

The project would help youngsters mainly in the Vic-

West and Blanshard areas, he said, and a preliminary canvass of residents indicated they would not be opposed to the idea.

But Ald. Alf Hood said he was "skeptical" that the noise would be tolerated by nearby residents, and city manager Jim Bramley added: "I don't think they realize just how much noise will be made."

Diben had proposed that the parade ground be used from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays for go-kart practising and racing, while mini-bikes used the adjacent grassed areas.

Although that suggestion is destined for rejection, the committee did agree that the old rifle range and a nearby storage shed on the Navy League property "could" be used by go-kart and mini-bike enthusiasts for club meetings and machine maintenance.

ONLY 29% IN U.K.

LONDON — Only 29 per cent of British people believe in God, says a public opinion poll published Sunday.

The poll of 1,093 persons was conducted by Opinion Research Centre for a religious

The BBC calls it the first major survey of religious beliefs in Britain since a Gallup poll in 1963 showed 38 per cent believed in God.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Michael Anbar, head of Stanford University's mass spectrometer research centre, claims to have come up with a method of connecting oil spills with the ships from which they probably came. A sort of "oil fingerprinting," the key to the method is a machine called a field ionization mass spectrometer which can provide precise molecular weight profiles of oil spills showing exact proportions in the goo. "Just as no two fingerprints are exactly alike, no two oil samples are alike," Anbar said.

$4M Takes Mutsu Home

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's nuclear ship Mutsu returned to its port in northern Japan Tuesday after local fishermen and the government reached a $4 million settlement.

The Mutsu left on its maiden voyage Aug. 26 from Mutsu port in Aomori province. For nearly two months local fishermen kept the 8,214-ton ship from returning to its home port when the vessel developed a leak in the nuclear reactor.

Government envoy Zenko

Suzuki, chairman of the executive council of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, signed the agreement Monday night with a representative of the Aomori Fishery Unions, Aomori prefectural governor Shunichi Takauchi and Mutsu city Mayor Kanji Kikuchi.

The government agreed to pay $4 million for settlement. About $2.7 million will be used to promote fishery in Mutsu City and the rest will be used to compensate fishermen for the time and money lost while they went on strike during the dispute over the ship's return to port.

WASHINGTON MEETING URGED

Horner Beefs on Cattle Quota

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan should go to the United States immediately to hold meetings with his counterpart in Washington, Agriculture Secretary E. L. Butz, to determine U.S. intentions toward the import of Canadian cattle.

That suggestion was made in the Commons Tuesday by Jack Horner (PC-Crowfoot). He said there is great uncertainty in the cattle industry. He pointed out that the run is about to start.

The minister should be prepared to go to Washington at once to discuss the on-again off-again quota on imports and embargoes between Canada and the U.S.

Only by such direct action would the Canadian market know what is going to happen, suggested Horner.

"This is very important to the fall run of cattle," he said.

Whelan said a meeting took place in Washington Tuesday.

Attending were beef producers from all countries concerned including Australia, New Zealand, Argentina and the United States. Canada had representatives at the meeting.

"As far as our quota is concerned, it is set for the year," said Whelan.

"We do not know what the U.S. is going to do. If the member has any further information on what they are going to do I would be pleased to receive it," he added.

Horner said Whelan is the minister of agriculture and should not be in the position of asking an opposition member for information.

The Alberta MP said the agriculture minister could do "some good" by going to Washington and talking to Agriculture Secretary Butz.

Apology Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — Sen. Joseph Sullivan said Tuesday that Sen. John Godfrey's criticism last week of Team Canada 1974 hockey officials and player Rick Ley constituted a breach of privilege in the Senate.

"An apology is owed to Team Canada, the hockey officials associated with that team, to the good name of hockey in this country, to Rick Ley himself, and above all, to this chamber," Sen. Sullivan said.

Unemployment insurance payments in the first eight months of 1974 totalled $1.546 billion, up five per cent over the same period last year, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

In 1973, a record $2.2 billion was paid out over the full year.

Higher average payments offset a reduced number of benefit-weeks paid by the commission. In 1974, the average payment had been $73.21 weekly to the end of August, up from $67.37 for the same period in the previous year.

Benefits paid in August declined to $137 million from $159 million in July but still were one per cent above the $125 million paid out in August 1973.

Subsidy 'Saved East'

OTTAWA (CP) — A government program to subsidize the cost of imported crude oil saved consumers in Eastern Canada about 15 cents a gallon on home-heating oil, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

Macdonald told a Commons committee that without the subsidy, introduced earlier this year, price of heating oil in the eastern provinces probably would be about 50 cents a gallon compared with the present price of about 35 cents.

He made the comments during committee consideration of supplementary spending estimates from the department dealing with the subsidy plan.

The committee on miscellaneous estimates passed a vote approving government spending of $470 million on the program through Governor-General's special warrants from April 1 to Oct. 31.

Spending under special warrants was required after the Petroleum Administration Act, which would have given spending authority, died on the order paper when the Commons dissolved for the July 8 election, Macdonald said.

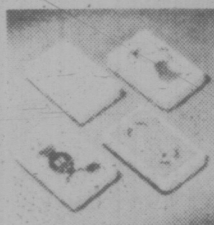

But a second vote, providing funding of $350 million for November and December as well as putting the program into the hands of the department's energy supplies allocation board, was allowed to stand after opposition members said they had some reservations.

The committee said that vote will be discussed again at a future meeting.

Under a federal-provincial agreement reached last winter, the federal government is using funds received from an export tax of $5.20 a barrel on crude oil to offset large increases in the price of international oil during the last two years.

The program has led to a fixed Canadian price of $6.70 a barrel. The difference between that domestic price and an $11 international price is paid by the federal government through its subsidy fund.

town talk

A jolly old lady from South Pender Island brought a burst of raucous laughter to the turgid proceedings of the legislature's municipal matters committee at its real property taxation hearings last week.

Mrs. Winifred A. Spaulding was describing her wild scrub land backed by a steep rise of terrain contributing to its unsuitability for development. Such land should remain as a haven for man and wildlife, she contended, and not be subject to crippling taxes that force owners to sell out.

Besides, she said, who would want to build on land like hers: "... that mountain at the back. I don't think even Block Bros. could put a house on it!"

It's a dog's life — for dog owners who are honest enough to go to city hall and buy a licence. It's five dollars a year (per male dog) for the little white tag, and there's no discount for the year only having a couple of months to run.

However, for those people prepared to let Rover run the risk of the dog catcher until the end of December, from Jan. 1 to March 31, the tag costs a dollar less "to encourage people to buy them early," a city hall clerk explains.

So why don't they knock $2 off the price of a '75 tag bought now, and three dollars off a '76 tag ...

Thanksgiving is only a memory but the turkey keep re-appearing — in sandwiches, in soup, in turkey à la king — a tribute to the bountiful size of this remarkable bird.

But wait a minute. A bird is supposed to fly. Can these plump giants really get airborne anymore?

No they can't, says Les Guy, sales manager for Maplewood Poultry Processors Ltd. on Sooke Road.

He estimates the biggest birds prepared for this Thanksgiving were about 30 pounds live weight.

Domestic turkeys "don't fly, they flap, they try," he says. "And when they get to be that big, they don't even try any more."

For generations, says Guy, the flight pattern of the domestic turkey has been the two or three feet from roosts.

New, wild turkeys, between 12 and 15 pounds — they fly.

Trustees 'Sick' on Sex Discrimination

Attitudes of Greater Victoria school board trustees to sex discrimination are "sick," says a member of the B.C. education department's advisory committee on sex discrimination.

"I think it is sick when discrimination is considered funny; there's something very sick," Mimi Robertson of 1149 Wychbury said Tuesday.

She said sex discrimination is "very prevalent" in Victoria schools.

Robertson had suggested to the school board's administration committee that they invite Reva Dexter, newly-appointed special adviser on sex discrimination for B.C., to a board meeting.

The committee decided not to invite her.

"I'm not in favor of adding a glow to this particular topic," said Trustee Bill Ross.

Inviting Dexter would only give more publicity to a topic that has already had considerable publicity, he said.

Trustee Dr. Philip Ney said he'd like Dexter to attend a meeting only "if she attended with a member of the opposite sex. In order to investigate sex discrimination," he said, "both a man and a woman should be appointed."

"Oh, come on now, we don't want any more appointments down there (at the provincial government)," replied Ross, laughing.

Trustee Lavinia Greenwood, also laughing, said the board may get more publicity by not meeting with Dexter than by meeting her.

Ney questioned how much discrimination there is against women, considering they live longer than men, own more real property, and have the most important job — raising children.

Trustee Dr. Hal Knight thought talking to Dexter might be useful.

"I think perhaps we could learn something," he said.

Robertson said the most obvious sex discrimination in local schools is in industrial education and home economics in junior high schools.

'very prevalent'

Few girls take industrial education, she said, and when they do "it's a powder puff course. They make knick-knacks and candles" while the boys learn electronics.

Girls continue to be steered into one kind of course, boys into another, she said.

Dexter has been appointed special adviser for a one-year term to study and advise on elimination of discrimination and sexual stereotyping in B.C. schools.

The advisory committee on sex discrimination represents different women's and teachers' groups and was appointed by Education Minister Eileen Daily last spring.

Cash Advance For Road

Developers of the Broadmead estate in Royal Oak have offered to advance Saanich $60,000 so they can reconstruct 1,600 feet of Royal Oak Drive, west of Ambleswood Drive, this fall.

Broadmead Farms Ltd. manager G. A. Rolston has suggested to municipal administrator Bill Tremayne that Broadmead carry out the road improvements, billing the municipality for its share of the roadwork costs.

Tremayne is out-of-town until Oct. 23 and public works committee chairman Ald. Sandy Noel expressed surprise Tuesday "when the Broadmead proposal was included on the meeting's agenda."

Municipal engineer C. T. Warren said Tremayne was still negotiating terms with Broadmead but had asked the matter be aired. Warren said there was some urgency involved if the paving work was to be done in time this year.

In this proposal, Rolston states his company is aware that no council can commit another but asks the proposal be endorsed in principle.

The stretch of Royal Oak would be widened to 46 feet with four traffic lanes and have landscaped bays and special lighting.

The committee agreed that the Broadmead proposal be deferred until Tremayne's return. It will be thoroughly discussed at the first committee or council meeting after Tremayne has finalized his negotiations with the developers.

PEARLMAN

Lawyer Named Negotiator

Veteran management negotiator E. E. Pearlman today was named as the bargaining co-ordinator for Greater Victoria municipalities and the Greater Victoria school board.

Civic leaders chose a bargaining co-ordinator 13 days ago but refused to name him, pending consultation with him.

All Canadian Union of Public Employees contracts expire at the end of this year and negotiations in a number of areas have started.

CUPE represents nearly all school board and civic employees in a wide variety of occupations, including clerical, maintenance staff and tradesmen.

Capital Regional Board chairman Jim Campbell said after a meeting this morning civic leaders are developing a contract proposal.

"We hope we'll meet the needs of employees in light of current conditions and make negotiations short and happy."

Hire Laid-Off Men, Merchants Urged

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Bob McHaffie today urged local merchants to hire additional staff to make jobs available for men laid off because of the lumber slump.

"The situation within the lumber industry today is of grave concern," he told the annual meeting of the chamber at The Empress.

"The impact probably will not be as severe in the Victoria area as in more lumber-industry oriented communities but, nonetheless, we have many laid-off people and the prospects for them are gloomy, especially approaching the Christmas season."

He said Victoria area merchants should re-examine their work force and hire the men on a temporary basis where possible.

McHaffie also urged the four core municipalities to start a program of deferred work projects to assist the men.

Work that needs doing but has a low priority should be launched at periods when unemployment rises — such as the present layoffs.

"I would suggest that the municipalities, Canada Manpower and ourselves could surely design such a scheme."

"A deferred projects scheme would no doubt take some time to organize and activate, cool comfort for those already laid off," he said.

"However, it is in my opinion practical."

More than 350 men have been laid off in the Victoria area due to the lumber and plywood slump during the past month.

McHaffie said merchants and city councils should accept a responsibility to see the men find employment in this area.

The chamber president began his address by criticizing Mayor Peter Pollen for not giving the chamber "the support that it deserves."

He did not elaborate.

However, earlier the chamber criticized city hall for going ahead with the mall project without adequate consultation with merchants or the chamber executive.

McHaffie said that despite urgings from some members, the chamber would not get involved in partisan politics.

"We have been challenged locally on several occasions to do this and I have noticed a certain temptation by some of our members to promote this."

"I am emphatically opposed to the idea — our position in this community is to work with government, any government," McHaffie said.

The chamber has historically had a policy of being non-partisan.

Garbage Scrap Nets Fine

Rita Estates Ltd., 305 Goldstream, was fined $50 after pleading guilty in provincial court Tuesday to a charge of failing to comply with an order to cover garbage.

Prosecutor Rick Isaac said a forest ranger complained in April about garbage on land near Goldstream Road.

The company was required to cover the garbage, which defence counsel Don Laughton said was left by campers unable to get into Goldstream Park.

The garbage was not covered until October.

Maximum penalty for the offence, a violation of the Pollution Control Act, is a fine of $1,000 plus $500 for each day an order is not carried out.

Realignment Proposed For Shelbourne Street

In an effort to save some of the plane trees on Shelbourne between Torquay and Kenmore, Saanich municipal engineer Cliff Warren has suggested a realignment of road-widening purposes.

The realignment would save the trees on the west side but reduce to eight feet the distance between property lines and curbs on the east side of Shelbourne.

This would be in comparison with the 21 feet distance between property lines and curbs on the east side of Shelbourne.

Public works committee chairman Ald. Sandy Noel said Tuesday Warren has gone to "great pains" to save the plane trees on the east side of the street.

Ald. Bill Campbell, while agreeing the realignment of the street was a good compromise, warned council could expect some opposition from residents on the west side.

Remembering the furore raised when plane trees farther south on the street were cut down for road-widening (the plane trees were planted as a memorial to Saanich's war dead), Ald. John McDonald commented:

"If we don't compromise,

all Saanich will be mad at us."

Warren said there were fewer homes on the west side and they were all set at least 20 feet back from the road.

He proposed the residents be approached and asked if they will allow Saanich to plant trees on their property to replace the plane trees that will be lost on their side of the street.

Warren said today the trees on the east side of Shelbourne, about 50, are much healthier and bushier because of pruning carried out by B.C. Hydro.

Community Correction Centres 'Refreshing' Change

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

When a veteran corrections officer says there is a "refreshing" change under way in the provincial jail system, the ears prick up and it's time to take notice.

After all, isn't a jail a jail? What kind of refreshing change can be made to that sombre syndrome?

Department of corrections officials think they have an answer and it comes under the label of community corrections centres.

Officially, the first centre opened last week in the Vancouver suburb of Marpole.

But Victoria could lay claim to being first.

A brick house in front of the main prison building on Wilkinson Road has been operating as a de-facto community corrections centre since April. Corrections officials are enthusiastic about the new program which is designed to get low-risk, minimum-security prisoners out of the traditional jail setting and into something more compact, more relaxed, and more conducive to rehabilitation.

None is more enthusiastic than Preston (Tim) Thimson, 39, newly-appointed director of community correction centres on Vancouver Island.

Thimson has been charged with setting up two 20-inmate centres in Victoria by next spring, and another two in smaller communities — up Island, possibly Duncan and Nanaimo.

A corrections officer for 17 years, Thimson calls the program "refreshing" and says

"from all the others, I have seen this is the only one which returns people to their obligations to the community."

"I'm no softie," he adds. "I believe justice must be done, but I have seen a lot of people rotting away in jails."

By "a lot" he means more than 70 per cent of the prison population.

He doesn't feel jail is the answer for them and many modern day penal reformers will agree.

"All jails do is manufacture culture carriers," he says. "They fortify criminal interests. In the big jail the atmosphere is the subculture and creates a negative faction which has an insidious and terrifying influence on everything that happens."

"We have got to stop throwing men in jail

"Instead of the big institution, let's use our dollars at the pre-court level because the results are not forthcoming with those going through the judicial system we have now."

Because of the unnatural setting of jails, he says, a person almost has to have a split personality to survive.

"If he wants to stay alive he has to get along with the other prisoners."

"If he wants to get out of jail he has to do things which will place him in good light with the parole board."

"He has to have a pretty strong personality to maintain any sense of individuality."

The solution he feels is smaller jail units, such as the community centres.

"What's it going to be like? Fantastic. No results have come close to the success rate of people completing a similar kind of program."

He is referring, to the temporary absence program, from which the community correction centre scheme was born.

It was started in earnest three or four years ago and involved essentially two groups of prisoners: those not that criminally inclined, who were placed back into the community on work-or school-release bases, and those more criminally sophisticated, who were serving perhaps longer jail terms and needed transitional help in returning to the community.

In the first group, the success rate has topped 95 per cent; in the second, 80 per cent.

Combined, the walkway

'no softie'

Thimson feels there is nothing more productive than "hooking the man back up with responsibility."

"Why should we perpetuate dependency in the jails?"

Community corrections centres will be kept small, informal, homey. Though inmates' movements will be controlled and regulated 24 hours a day, the centre from the outside will look no different from any hostel.

They have been afforded a low status up to now, mainly because of public attitude.

"We will have to start educating the public and hope to appeal to their humanitarian instincts."

"The community has to be involved. We can't just throw our problems under the rug and forget about them."

The department is looking for suitable sites and working closely with municipal officials.

"The centres don't necessarily have to be houses in residential areas... they could be buildings in commercial or industrial zones."

"However, we want places that are not going to be a concern with neighbors."

But Thimson and the corrections branch are hoping the public will appreciate the reality of the penal reforms and the need to establish community-oriented programs.

"Up to now when a parolee gets out of jail he is largely dependent upon community agencies and public welfare."

"But those graduating from the community corrections centres will probably have money in their pocket... and what's more, some of their dignity restored."

'Emotional' Athletics Look for Quick Ending

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland A's don't plan on going back to Los Angeles.

"We're a very emotional ball club and we could start steamrolling," said Reggie Jackson after the A's beat Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 Tuesday night and took a 2-1 lead in the World Series.

The A's, confident and comfortable in Oakland Coliseum, can finish off the National League champions if they win the next two games here, with Ken Holtzman pitching tonight and Vida Blue Thursday night.

"I know we will be facing a couple of 20-game winners," A's manager Alvin Dark said of Andy Messersmith and Don Sutton. "But we've got a couple of 20-game winners for them, too."

Actually, neither Sutton, Holtzman nor Blue won 20 games in 1974, but Dark contended: "I consider them all 20-game winning pitchers."

The A's have cashed in on all the breaks to beat the Dodgers in the first and third games.

"If you make a mistake against a great ball club like us, you're going to get beat," said Jackson.

Los Angeles catcher Joe Ferguson, the goat of the game with two errors, agreed with Jackson.

"They are definitely a team of opportunity," Ferguson said of the A's.

The first opportunity for Oakland came in the third inning after pitcher Catfish Hunter struck out against Al Downing. Centre fielder Bill North singled sharply to left for his first hit of the series and went to third on Bert Campaneris' ground ball to third baseman Ron Cey.

North's aggressive base running paid off for Oakland. After Sal Bando walked on a 3-2 count, Jackson bounced a ball in front of the plate and Ferguson muffed it, allowing the first run of the game. Joe Rudi then singled to centre to drive home Bando from second base and the A's had a 2-0 lead for 25-game winner Hunter.

Downing walked Dick

Green leading off the Oakland fourth, and the A's found a way to get him all the way around.

Hunter sacrificed the runner to second and, after North fled to Bill Buckner in left field, Campaneris singled home the A's third run—the one which turned out to be their gamewinner.

The Dodgers produced solo home runs by Buckner and Willie Crawford in the eighth and ninth innings, but reliable Rolfe Fingers preserved Hunter's victory.

Hunter was lifted after giving up Buckner's blast in the eighth. Left-hander Downing, not as heralded as Hunter, appeared to be a victim of fate.

"I don't think he pitched badly," Los Angeles manager Walter Alston said of Downing, who only won five games in 1974.

"He was a little wild, but I don't think anyone else could have done any better."

But Downing didn't last through the fourth inning.

So Liske Is a Lion; Hey Now, That Helps

The weekend in review, or the new theme song in Vancouver is "there's gonna be some changes made." And that concerns both of that city's two major league clubs.

The Lions fell flat on their Taylor Field reputation in that fiasco at Regina on the weekend. It was a game they shouldn't have lost, really, and in doing so they didn't gain much stature, did they?

Meanwhile, the Canucks certainly didn't get off and running in the National Hockey League stakes, either, getting but a single point from a tie with Atlanta in their two-game home stand.

So what happens? Suddenly the Lions have quarter-back Peter Liske in from Calgary, probably the worst-kept secret of the week; and also, last year's all-star tight end Lefty Hendrickson is back in camp on a five-day trial. It's not a bad combination and it means simply that coach Eagle Keys and general manager Jackie Parker are going for the downs right now in the Lions' bid for a Grey Cup berth.

Liske has got to be a big plus for the Lions because there's no doubt he can throw the football as well as anyone. Besides, even if that is his only talent, his appearance in the Lions backfield might make their attack even more diversified for the simple reason that the threat of his passing arm could loosen up opposition defenses even more. And that would open up the way for Monroe Eley and Lou Harris to tear up even bigger chunks of yardage. Then with Hendrickson in the fold, that would give the Lions another excellent receiver.

Bob Was No Friend

If that would solve one problem, the Lions still have another. And that concerns the punt return situation. Bob Friend, who handled the chore on Sunday in Regina, was no friend indeed, and even before he dropped the crucial catch late in the game, he had fumbled earlier and never did look too sure on any of his receptions. Sure, it's a tough job, but it's one that must be done and, if not properly, it could prove costly, just as it did at Regina.

As for the Canucks, Phil Maloney said he wouldn't deal unless he had to in order to defeat St. Louis and Minnesota, the two clubs he figures the Canucks must beat in their division. Well, he soon found out, and that 5-3 loss to St. Louis on Saturday certainly didn't put his club in a very good light. So he acted. Of course, only time will tell how the trades will affect the teams but from a cursory glance (and last night's result in St. Louis) it would seem the Canucks might turn out to be winners, especially on the Buffalo deal.

Defenceman Jocelyn Guevremont, the Canucks' first draft pick in 1971, has never played to the potential predicted for him and, if he does at Buffalo, that will be fine with Maloney, who said when the team was here that in his opinion Guevremont was a better player than he had shown as a Canuck. As for McSheffrey, he was ticked for Seattle anyway.

Dave Dunn's loss, however, may be the one that hurts, but Maloney thought it necessary because he needed a right-hand shot on defence in John Griedle to back up Bob Dailey, who is playing with an injured wrist. Mike Robitaille, the defensive acquisition from Buffalo is a solid hitter although he doesn't have the scoring power of Guevremont.

Strength in the Middle

Key to the deal obviously is Buffalo's Gerry Meehan, a centre. The Canucks were caught with their pivotal situation showing this fall when captain Orland Kurtenbach decided to retire and take on the coaching duties at Seattle. And so far there has been nobody who seems ready or able to step in and fill Kur's skates. If Meehan can do it, then Maloney may have gained the upper hand from that old horse trader, Punch Imlach. Certainly the Canucks needed a centre and Meehan, who has scored 94 goals in the last four years, must rank as capable as most at his position if not indeed better than what the Canucks have at present.

Also in on the Toronto end of the deal is Garry Monahan, a tried and proven left winger. He will take over from Dunn and also could be a big help to the Canucks as a penalty killer, a specialized department in which he has been used by the Leafs, who did not use him regularly.

And glory be, Guevremont is the second top Canuck draft pick to be traded away. Dale Tallon, the top choice in 1970, was the first. He went to Chicago, remember, for Gary Smith and Jerry Korab, and Korab later went to Buffalo for defenceman Tracy Pratt and forward John Gould.

Canucks didn't do too badly in that shift, if looks as if they might have done even better this time around.

They had better, the saying goes, because already that credibility concerning the need only to beat St. Louis and Minnesota is beginning to show. And just as obviously, Maloney knows it.

Besides, so much for draft picks. Especially two.

JACKSON ALL OUT JUST FOR THE MONEY

OAKLAND (AP) — Joe Ferguson opened the gates and Reggie Jackson ran through them.

"I won't run full speed unless money is on the line," said the Oakland A's Jackson, who faced that situation and hustled to first base on a key play in Tuesday night's 3-2 third-game World Series victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

Jackson, who was a doubtful starter for the series opener last Saturday because of a sore hamstring muscle, jogged through most of the pre-game practice.

"There's no money involved in batting practice," he said with a smile.

But with runners on first and third and two out in the third inning, Jackson helped break up a scoreless tie when he chopped a high bouncer in front of home plate.

"When I saw they weren't going to get me, I thought I had a base hit — I thought I'd chopped the ball that high," said Jackson.

But the Dodgers' catcher Ferguson, who was Saturday's fielding hero with a perfect double-play throw home from right field on a ball hit by Jackson, made an error trying to field the bouncer.

The first of two unearned A's runs scored on the play.

Winning pitcher Jim Catfish Hunter was also in a joking mood after the victory which moved baseball's defending champions one up in the best-of-seven series.

"We made a lot of ball players famous for great fielding plays in the World Series," said Hunter, who was aided by two double plays started by Dick Green and a running catch in deep centre field by Bill North.

Tennis Centre 'Real' This Time, Says Organizer

No one wants to say too much about it right now, but a planned five-court bubble-top indoor tennis centre on a site on Keating Crossroad in Central Saanich is expected to open next Jan. 2.

Behind the venture is Edgar Rhombert, manager of Georgia Pacific Motors, the Victoria BMW dealership which sponsored the B.C. Open tennis tournament here during the summer.

Rhombert is giving out few details at the moment except to say that "this is a reality, not like the planned centre at Playland which never got off the ground."

Rhombert dodged other questions Tuesday, saying full details would be released at a press conference scheduled for Oct. 24. But he has already disclosed his initial scheme to many of the city's tennis players.

Together with his wife Caroline, Rhombert recently resigned from the Racquet Club of Victoria's tennis committee and announced plans at the committee's annual meeting for his proposed indoor centre.

Greg Miller, president of the Vancouver Island Lawn Tennis Association, also declined Tuesday to say much about Rhombert's plans.

But he did say that he and other VILTA officials were "delighted" that Victoria was finally going to get an indoor centre.

"We applaud this move with 100 per cent enthusiasm," Miller said. "This time it's a certainty; the site has been chosen, the municipality is right behind it, and it will definitely go ahead."

Miller said initial plans call for a single bubble-top structure housing five courts as a private club venture. And if this is successful, a four-court permanent building will be added, providing a total of nine courts under cover.

"An indoor centre like this has been needed here for a long time," Miller said. "It will be the best thing that has ever happened to tennis on Vancouver Island."

Victoria Cougars have extended their undefeated record on the road to three straight, and that makes it easier for coach Pat Ginnell to overlook "a psychological sag" suffered by his players Tuesday.

Cougars continued to find success on the Western Canada Hockey league roads by playing the Broncos to a 3-1 tie before 2,400 fans in Lethbridge.

"We could have won it," said Ginnell, "but I'm not knocking the split in points. The players seemed to be sluggish and part of the reason is the Sunday (6-4) win in Edmonton."

"They wanted that game in Edmonton and they may have let down after getting it."

Cougars, who continue a 10-game road trip with a Thursday game against the Tigers in Medicine Hat, bounced back from a 3-1 deficit to salvage the point in Lethbridge.

Greg Miazga and Curt Fraser scored Victoria's second-period goals while defenceman Rick Lapointe counted Cougars' first. Ron Delorme, Alex Tidy and Bryan Trotter scored for the Earl Ingard-coached Broncos.

Standing out for Lethbridge was goaltender Lorne Molleken. He made 23 stops, but the big ones were clear-cut breakaways by Jim Gustafson (twice) and Rick Peter.

Peter suffered a shoulder injury late in the game and may be a doubtful starter for Cougars' next game. The injury has been diagnosed as a possible ligament tear or slight separation in the shoulder.

The possibility of a break was discounted. "It's painful, but there is movement," said Ginnell, who added that Peter will undergo a more detailed examination today.

Ginnell left the team in order to attend a league meeting in Saskatoon today. He didn't discount the possibility of a trade.

Rival coaches, including Ingard, have expressed an interest in centre Derek Haas, who refused to report to Victoria's pre-season training camp.

"They're still interested," said Ginnell, "but everybody wants a steamboat for a sailboat. So far, I haven't seen anyone who could help us."

In other league games Tuesday, New Westminster rebounded from two losses in Flin Flon to defeat Winnipeg Cougars 5-3. At Regina, Rob Tudor banged in three goals to lead the Pats to a 7-2 victory over Kamloops Chiefs.

Liske Joins B.C. Lions; Douglas, Sovio to Stamps

VANCOUVER (CP) —

Peter Liske will be in the lineup here Saturday when B.C. Lions face Saskatchewan Roughriders, the Lions said Tuesday in announcing a Western Football Conference trade bringing the veteran quarterback from Calgary Stampede.

A Lions spokesman said the acquisition of Liske, 33, for import backup quarterback Karl Douglas and Canadian tight end Henry Sovio, strengthened their quarterback position. It said Don Moorhead remains B.C.'s number one signal-caller.

B.C. is first in the WFC and Calgary last.

The Lions also have placed Canadian tight end Lefty Hendrickson on a five-day trial. He was a WFC all-star last season and retired before this season after knee surgery, but now says his knee is 100-per cent recovered.

Liske is in his sixth season in the Canadian Football League, having served with Toronto Argonauts and Calgary before spending two seasons each with Denver and Philadelphia of the National Football League and then returning to the Stampede.

HAPPINESS IN TORONTO

By The Canadian Press

Frank Mahovlich wasted little time in making his presence felt in the World Hockey Association, scoring three goals in Toronto's season opener Tuesday night.

"I think Frank showed the fans that he's happy to be back in Toronto," said coach Billy Harris, whose Toros beat New England Whalers 6-2 before a crowd of 9,261.

In the other season opener, Winnipeg Jets beat the Blazers 6-2 at Vancouver.

Wrapping up the exhibition schedule, Cleveland Crusaders shut out Michigan Stags 6-0.

Mahovlich, who used to play for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League and moved to the Toros from Montreal Canadiens, was the most conspicuous of the Toros' newcomers. Paul Henderson, who moved this year from the Leafs, scored once; centre Vaclav Nedomansky from Czechoslovakia added another goal, and Tony Featherstone, another convert from the NHL, added two assists.

Mahovlich scored twice in the first period while Henderson and Bob Leduc added single goals. Mahovlich added his third goal on a power play early in the second period, giving the Toros a 5-0 lead.

Newcomers also were prominent in the Winnipeg victory at Vancouver. Ulf Nilsson and Anders Hedberg from Sweden and defenceman Heikki Riihiranta from Finland each scored once.

Riihiranta, who also assisted on a goal by Norm Beaudin, was impressive on defence, along with Lars-Erik Sjaaback of Sweden.

Another Finlander, forward Veli Pekka Ketola, helped set up Riihiranta's goal.

TORONTO (6) — Frank Mahovlich 3, Paul Henderson, Bob Leduc, Wayne Dillon, NEW ENGLAND (2) — Tom Webster, Bill Swain. Attendance: 9,261.

WINNIPEG (6) — Ulf Nilsson, Anders Hedberg, Heikki Riihiranta, Danny Johnson, Danny Spry, Norm Beaudin, VANCOUVER (2) — Claude St. Sauveur, Mike Pelyk.

New Rule Jolts Blues

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The National Hockey League season is only one week old, but storm clouds already are forming.

St. Louis Blues, beaten 6-4 Tuesday night by Vancouver Canucks, were the first to protest against a new rule.

"How am I supposed to go to the penalty box?" asked the Blues' Garry Unger, who was penalized for a delay in the third period.

"He didn't tell me I had the penalty," added Unger in reference to referee Bob Myers. "I'm not going to the penalty box just because he has his arm in the air."

The Blues, playing their home opener before 17,314, were leading the Canucks 4-3 when Myers called the game's 14th penalty, a two-minute minor against Unger for cross-checking.

That would have put them at a player disadvantage, but minor skirmishing between the two teams broke out.

When order was restored, Unger was sent to the penalty box with his two-minute penalty plus two more minutes for delay.

Vancouver thereupon seized advantage to forge a 4-4 tie 43 seconds later, on Dennis Kearns' deflected slapshot and scored the winning goal during Unger's second penalty.

Reaction to the double assessment was different, as might have been expected, in the locker rooms of the Blues and the Canucks.

"There's nothing new about a delay penalty," said Vancouver coach Phil Maloney, who nonetheless admitted: "The big break, of course, was the Unger penalty."

"But new rule or no, you're not supposed to take all night to get off the ice," said Maloney. "He cross-checked (Chris) Oddleifson in our end, then he went after Tracy Pratt at their end."

"What I understand the rule to be is that if you don't go right to the penalty box you get a bench minor," said Blues coach Lou Angotti.

"You're supposed to be two men short for two minutes," Angotti contended. "But why should I have asked Myers? I thought it was better we have five against four than five against three."

Overshadowed by Vancouver's flurry following the penalties were two earlier goals by the Canucks' Dennis Ververgaert and two by the Blues' Brian Ogilvie.

"I thought they (the officials) were calling the little things and letting the obvious things go," Unger said.

"They're trying to figure out the rules, and nobody knows them."

Victory Eludes Canadiens Despite Switch in Goalies

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens can't seem to get on the winning track, even with a change in goalies, a 39-29 advantage in shots and a supposedly weak opponent such as New York Islanders.

The Canadiens, who managed only ties in their first two National Hockey League season games, including one against the Islanders, went into Uniondale, N.Y., Tuesday night and came away on the short end of a 6-3 score.

Montreal switched from Ken Dryden to Bunny Larocque and outshot the Islanders by that 39-29 margin, but New York, led by Denis Potvin's two goals, stormed to a 3-0 lead, allowed the Canadiens to catch up and then banged in another three.

In other NHL action, the expansion Washington Capitals earned their first point of the season in their home opener with a 1-1 tie against the surprising Los Angeles Kings and Vancouver Canucks earned their first win of the season with a 6-4 decision over the Blues at St. Louis.

The unbeaten Islanders now lead Division 1 with five points in three games while cross-town rival Rangers trail the division with only two points in two games.

St. Louis and the Canucks now share the Division 2 lead while Los Angeles, playing its first four games on the road, leads Division 3 with six points.

"Six points is good for four games on the road," said

Kings coach Bob Pulford who takes his club to Toronto for a game against the Maple Leafs, Division 4 leaders, tonight before the Kings finally head home.

Goalie Ron Low stopped 33 shots, including 16 in the third period to preserve the tie for the Capitals who opened before a Washington crowd of 8,093.

At St. Louis, Dennis Kearns and Paulin Bordeleau scored power-play goals midway in the third period to overcome a 4-3 St. Louis lead and newcomer Gary Monahan, acquired in a Monday trade from Toronto, added another goal to clinch the Vancouver win.

Dennis Ververgaert and Brian Ogilvie of the Blues each scored twice.

Canadian Women Advance

MEXICO CITY — Despite a loss to South Korea in a preliminary-round encounter, the Canadian women's volleyball team advanced to the second round of the world championships here Tuesday.

Canada opened the tournament with wins over Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria before dropping a 15-13, 15-7, 15-10 decision to South Korea.

The 21 record allowed Canada to move into the second round along with South Korea and the top two teams from each of the other five divisions.

Other teams in the same second-round division as Canada are Russia, Poland and either Hungary or Romania. Play begins Friday in Tijuana.

The Canadian men's team failed to qualify for second-round play and is expected to stay in Mexico City.

Panther Martin Proves Deadly for Bass, Trout

If the contents of my tackle box had to be reduced to a single lure, my choice would be the Panther Martin spinner.

And, more specifically, it would have to be the one with a yellow and red tail.

Although the experience of fly fishing for both trout and bass is preferable, I'm not above grabbing my spin-casting rod if flies aren't producing and the camp larder needs stocking.

Since the smell of freshly-caught trout sizzling in a frying pan brings an added dimension to any outdoor adventure, I don't feel guilty about plugging (for once) a specific lure.

The deadliness of this lure was first experienced during a bass-fishing jaunt to a tiny lake off the Malahat.

It was the middle of a blazing-hot summer day and nothing seemed to be moving. After attaching a long succession of lures to my line, I decided to try my then recently-acquired Panther Martin.

From then on the action was hot and heavy with a fish coming in with just about every cast. All but one, which later ended up in the oven, were turned loose to grow a little larger and perhaps wiser.

Subsequent bass-fishing trips have proven that the lure is productive either fished from the shore or casting into weed beds from a canoe.

This past summer, I even stooped to using the lure on trout in Silver Lake.

A brisk wind made fly-fishing a possible hazard to wife Judy and son Greg, the other occupants of the canoe.

So, with a little bit of reluctance, I broke out the spin-casting rod and began working the shoreline, dropping the lure near possible overhanging banks and sunken logs.

As with bass, nearly every cast produced one of the small alpine rainbows inhabiting that particular lake with ridiculous ease. Because the weather was hot and the trip out fairly long, the fish we caught were released.

While releasing these fish, a point we'd noticed before was driven home.

The triple hook of the lure was swallowed by the fish about 50 per cent of the time, making it very difficult to extract the barbs without harming the fish to some degree.

Trout or bass caught on flies are easy to release because the hook always seems to go through a portion of the lip.

So now the Panther Martin is only used when obtaining a fish to eat is of prime importance. It is that deadly.

One of the best methods of fishing this lure is to work it like a buzz-bomb, casting out and retrieving with short bursts of about a foot or two in length separated by pauses.

Running a close second to the Panther Martin in my list of favorite lures is the Flatfish, which can either be trolled behind the canoe or cast. Unfortunately, it sometimes has a tendency to get tangled up while casting because of the two triple hooks it sports.

If either one of these lures is lost, I replace it at the first opportunity. They're missed that much.

But I still prefer fly fishing.

NIBBLES: Our trip last week to the Interior was mostly for visiting relatives, but some likely-looking fishing spots were noted for further jaunts. . . . The exotic fall colors west of the Coast Range, where even the needle-bearing tamarack turns hillside a greenish gold, and the lack of traffic make this an ideal time to see more of the province. . . . Anyone going there from now on, however, should put on snow tires or carry chains. . . . There was snow on the roadside through Rogers Pass.

BRAVES DOWN ALBERNI

Saanich Braves of the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League defeated Port Alberni of the North Island League 6-3 in an interlocking game Tuesday night at Pearkes Arena.

Tom Tilliston led Braves with two goals and three assists while Ken McLaren also scored twice and singles came from Brian Moroni and Mike Schemm.

Brad Ysowich, Rich Schievink and Darrell Labourec repaid for Port Alberni.

Gord Mitchell blocked 22 shots in the Saanich net while Port Alberni goalie Kim Bres made 23 saves.

Mt. Douglas Snaps Field Hockey Tie

Roberta Feldman found the mark twice Tuesday and led Mt. Douglas out of a tie with Norfolk House and into second place in the Greater Victoria High School Girls' Field Hockey League.

Roberta's two goals were just enough to give Mt. Doug a 2-1 edge over Norfolk House, which managed only a goal by Mary-Ann Wiggins.

keep Mt. Doug one point behind leading Oak Bay, which trounced Claremont 5-1. Cindy Bray, Jan Carruthers, Mary Cavin, Sue Taylor and Sherri Sudlow scored for Oak Bay. Leslie Howe got the Claremont goal.

St. Margaret's, with goals by Bev Waterfield and Beth Taylor, nipped Esquimalt 2-1. Cindy Langlois scored for the losers.

Leslie Godfrey scored three times to give Vic High a 3-0 win over Parkland and Pam Kozak and Laura Kelly scored to give Spectrum a 2-0 victory over Belmont.

Gene Littler Big Winner In Japan

INZAI, Japan (AP) — Gene Littler fired a two-under-par 69 Sunday to win the $300,000 Pacific Master golf tournament with a 279 total, five strokes ahead of runner-up Bert Yancey.

Littler collected $65,000 for the victory, golf's biggest prize. Yancey was runner-up for the second consecutive year after a final-round 73 and a 72-hole total of 284, Hsieh Yung-Yo of Taiwan was third with 285.

Defending champion Jumbo Ozaki of Japan, who beat Yancey in a playoff last year, and Australia's Bruce Devlin tied for fourth with 286. Ozaki had a final-round 71 and Devlin shot a closing 72 on the 71st-yard, par-71 Sobu Country Club course.

St. Michael's Beats Jutes

Reg Moore scored a try and kicked two conversions to lead St. Michael's University School to a 16-10 victory over University of Victoria Jutes during an exhibition rugby match Tuesday at UVic.

David Wasyluk and Dmitri Hardman scored the other University School tries.

Bruce Kilshaw set the pace for UVic with a try and conversion and Brent Isaacs scored the other try.

Bledsoe Traded By Rough Riders

WINNIPEG (CP) — Full-back John Bledsoe has been traded by Winnipeg Blue Bombers to Ottawa Rough Riders for future considerations, the Western Football Conference club announced Tuesday night.

Bledsoe, 23, six-foot-one and 225 pounds, played college football at Ohio State and joined the Bombers part-way through the 1973 season. He was put on the club's injury list Sept. 27.

Cec Follows Golfing Trend But Marty Doesn't

Cec Ferguson followed the trend but Marty Richards supplied the exception when the two golfers captured club championships at the weekend.

Capping an outstanding year, the 24-year-old Ferguson claimed the Gorge Vale championship to go along with victories he scored earlier this year in the City Amateur, the Island Open and the City Intermediate tournaments.

Despite his favorite status, Ferguson's 10 and 8 victory over southpaw Bob Beauchemin in Sunday's 36-hole final marked the first time Cec has won the Gorge club crown.

Ferguson served up a three-under-par 69 Saturday to defeat Grant Milliken 3 and 1. Beauchemin took the easy road to the final when Jeff Jones, his semi-final opponent, was unable to play.

In Winning, Ferguson followed a pattern set by Ron Howard of Royal Oakwood, Carl Schwante of Victoria and Keith Burrell of Uplands. All are "first-time" winners of club titles.

Richards bucked the trend. A former winner, he reclaimed the Glen Meadows' title with a strong comeback to defeat junior Don Cowan on the 37th hole. Cowan was four up with five holes to play.

Still to be decided is the Cedar Hill champ, and Ron Griffiths has a chance to follow the trend. Seeking his first title, Griffiths moved into the final against defending champion Gord Rands by defeating Ken Morgan, 5 and 3.

Rands had defeated Fred Worthington in the other semi-final.

Griffiths might consider a hole-in-one as an omen. Warming up for Sunday's semi-final against Morgan, Griffiths scored his sixth career ace Saturday on the 17th hole.

Also counting a hole-in-one during the weekend was Mike

Phil, who sank his tee shot on the 143-yard 15th hole at Glen Meadows.

ALSO IN GOLF: Dr. and Mrs. Bob Graham captured the Gibson Cup, a mixed two-ball competition at Victoria.

Low gross honors went to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thompson.

Members of the Victoria District Committee will play their annual field day Oct. 26 at Oak Bay.

Ski Weekend a Disaster So It Has to Get Better

SCHOLASTIC SCENE

By Jim Crerar

When Ken Brown tells you there'll be a big improvement in the fortunes of the University of Victoria's ski team this winter, you know he's not just another coach giving you a pre-season snow job.

After what happened at a Pacific Northwest Collegiate Ski Conference meet at Snohomish, Wash., last January, his cross-country skiers and downhillers have nowhere to go but up.

"We weren't experienced at all in cross-country last year," Brown related. "Our skiers didn't know anything about it and I was trying to teach them. We went to this meet at Snohomish and one of our skiers, Chris Stranger, broke his harness about three miles out on a six-mile course."

Everyone waited around the finish line, but darkness fell and Stranger remained a no-show.

"We were standing by, ready to go out after him, when he finally came around the bend," Brown said. "He was carrying one ski and plunging about a foot into the snow with every other step."

Stranger wasn't alone in his misfortune. Bill Beatty, another UVic skier, made a wrong turn in the cross-country race, and went two miles off course.

"His contact lenses somehow got fouled up during the race," Brown recalled, "and he could hardly see when he entered the slalom the next day."

Beatty wasn't among the front-runners, but he got full marks from Brown for his efforts.

A good night's sleep might have helped, but even that was not to be.

The two Canadian schools at the meet, UVic and UBC, were quartered in the same lodge — and that's using the term in its broadest sense.

There was one room upstairs for the UBC women's team.

There was one room downstairs for the UVic and UBC men.

There was no heat.

The water was frozen solid.

"Even after we did get some heat in the place, the water never did thaw out," Brown said. "We got some water from a restaurant, but we had no place to shower after the cross-country race the first day. There must have been 15 to 17 guys sleeping in that one room. It was a pretty smelly weekend."

That would be enough to turn off most coaches forever, but not Brown, a 23-year-old student taking third-year geography and science. He began coaching six years ago in North Bay, Ont., in the Nancy green Little League program and is starting his second year at the UVic helm.

A former cross-country, slalom and giant slalom competitor, Brown will attend a cross-country coaching clinic in Norway, Nov. 28-Dec. 10. He also has organized a Christmas ski camp at Cranbrook.

At the moment, though, he's raising funds to cover this winter's travel costs for the team. He and manager Murray Robinson have arranged a ski swap at the UVic Student Union Building Saturday, Oct. 26.

"We'll need a big turnout," Brown explained, "because

... no snow job

Leisure Time Distributors in Vancouver have given us a really good deal on 100 pairs of Kazuma Skis. They're last year's model but they're brand new. I've skied on them and they're excellent. They'll probably be going at less than cost, but we should be able to make a good profit if we can sell them all."

Skiers with gear to swap, meanwhile, should bring it to room A and B at the Student Union Building before 9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 25. The swapping starts Saturday at 11 a.m. with films and demonstrations all day and a dance at 8 p.m.

As for this year's team, Brown has about 15 trying out, including Sandy Moe and Harry Measure, both experienced Can-Am and Pontiac Cup competitors. The only returnee is Stranger, back in spite of his broken-harness ordeal at Snohomish.

He's looking for a big improvement this season, too. After all, he'll have two skis.

Spectrum, Tyees Trim Runners' Lead

Things are getting tighter at the top in the Greater Victoria High School Soccer League.

Second-place Spectrum and third-place Vic High Tyees both gained a couple of points on the leading Reynolds Roadrunners Tuesday and Mt. Douglas Rams closed the gap on fourth-place Oak Bay Bays to one point.

Roadrunners were idle Tuesday. Spectrum crushed Parkland Panthers 7-1 behind Dan Hood's four-goal performance. Terry Pollack, Doug Vincent and Stu Holroyd were the other scorers while Mike Noese got the Parkland goal.

And at Vic High, the Tyees defeated Oak Bay 3-1 on two goals by Ron McGovern and one goal by Brian Ayres. Charlie Fisher scored for the Bays.

Rams moved up on the Bays by shutting out Belmont

Next games: Friday — Parkland at Vic High; Reynolds at Esquimalt; Belmont at Spectrum; Mt. Douglas vs. Oak Bay; Royal Athletic Park.

Braves 3-0 at Mt. Doug and in Tuesday's other games, Esquimalt Dockers scored their second win of the season when they surprised Claremont, Spartans 3-2 at Claremont.

Ron Arcuri, Doug Angrove and Jim Bergin scored for Esquimalt while Claremont got one goal from Perry Underwood and another off an Esquimalt defender.

Veteran Bull Back in Pen, With Fat Pact

CHICAGO (AP) — Veteran forward Chet Walker has ended his holdout against Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association, signing a one-year contract for an estimated $200,000.

Meanwhile, two other key Chicago players, forward Bob Love and guard Norm Van Lier, remained absent from the club's training camp. Both want to renegotiate existing contracts for pay increases which would give them more than $200,000 each a season.

The Bulls begin their regular season Friday night at home against Atlanta Hawks.

Burnley Trips Ipswich

LONDON (CP) — Burnley took a 1-0 victory Tuesday over Ipswich Town and moved to sixth place in the First Division of English League soccer.

Paul Fletcher's goal knocked Ipswich — without a win or a goal in its last four matches, out of first place. Liverpool and Ipswich have 17 points each, but Liverpool leads because of a superior goal average.

Another team which moved closer to the top was Derby County, 2-1 winners over Sheffield United. It was Derby's first away win of the season, putting the team in third place, just ahead of Everton which was held to a 1-1 draw by West Ham.

But there was no relief for defending champion Leeds United. The club lost 1-0 to Birmingham City to remain near the bottom of the standings.

Manchester United, Second Division leaders, was held to a 0-0 draw by Portsmouth, while Sunderland moved into second place, three points behind United, with a 3-0 triumph over Sheffield Wednesday.

Landing Fee Plan Postponed

Flying clubs in Canada have been told the federal Ministry of Transport will postpone a proposed system

CHINESE LANTERN FESTIVAL

The Chinese Lantern Festival on Saturday will feature a display of two traditional Peking lions which recently arrived from Hong Kong.

Replicas of the lions guarding the Imperial Palace in Peking, the animals' appearance means people present have gained the favor of the heavens in Chinese tradition, said a festival spokesman.

Sponsoring the event is the Chinatown Lions' Club, and proceeds will be used to purchase a bunny bus for transportation of Victoria's crippled children.

The festival is open from 1 to 10 p.m. at Central junior high school on Fort St.

Cutback Urged In Chum Fishing

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — The director of fisheries in Washington State has urged a drastic cutback in Indian commercial fishing for chum salmon.

In a letter to 14 tribes, Thor Tollefson said runs of chum, also known as dog salmon and used mostly for canning and smoking, were "very depressed."

The only exception was an anticipated 75,000 surplus in waters east of the Kitsap Peninsula and south of the Tacoma Narrows in Puget Sound, he said.

of landing fee for small aircraft for at least 18 months.

Harry King of Victoria, new Pacific Zone director of Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association, said the controversial proposal to impose a fee of $5 per landing, or $100 a year flat fee for private light planes will be reviewed by the ministry to enable an examination of landing fees generally at airports controlled by the federal department.

Flying clubs opposed the fee on grounds that it would add further to taxation already borne by club members, most of whom do not own aircraft but who must pay for licences and fuel, which is heavily taxed.

King noted the cost of fuel in Victoria in nine years had almost doubled — from 37 cent a gallon for 100-300 cc. gasoline in 1965 to a current 73 cents.

Flying clubs now pay a small fee for the use of Ministry of Transport landing fields, and if the proposal were adopted, it was expected municipally-operated fields would probably come up with a similar fee, he said.

The flying clubs believe the fee system is archaic and should be abandoned. At Vancouver, for example, a $1 fee per landing has been charged for many years.

King said there is less opposition by clubs to the cost of emergency locator transmitters, which for some aircraft owners was prohibitive when the crash-proof devices first came on the market.

An approved ELT will be mandatory for all aircraft operating 25 miles or more from an airport, commencing Jan. 1, 1975.

The cost ranges between $175 and $195 for the two Canadian-made models enforced by the MOT, which has insisted on higher durability and endurance standards than previously approved transmitters.

BURL WINCHESTER of Montana State University will conduct a one-day workshop on transactional analysis Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Canterbury Inn, 310 Gorge Rd. Transactional analysts see human behavior falling into three patterns, that of parent, adult or child. Registration for the workshop is at Camosun College.

Warship Adopted

New Westminster will become a parent Saturday.

The mayor and council will adopt the Esquimalt-based supply vessel HMCS Provider in an on-board ceremony at dockside in New Westminster. The ship will spend several days in New Westminster, arriving Friday. The mayor and council will attend a luncheon aboard Provider Saturday, the "adoption" ceremony taking place at a reception slated for 6 p.m.

On Sunday a 100-man contingent from Provider will march to Queen's Avenue United Church, led by the Royal Westminster Regiment Band.

Provider will be open to the public Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. The New Westminster visit will be Provider's first sailing under her new commanding officer, Capt. Colin Grey, who assumed command Sept. 30.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An eight-month jail term and 18 months' probation were given a 22-year-old Nanaimo man in provincial court Tuesday for stealing $184 from the Poodle Dog Cafe, 1241 Government.

Colin Richard Kelly, of Nanaimo, earlier pleaded guilty to "breaking out" of the premises after committing theft. Kelly was in the cafe Sept. 13 at 6:40 a.m. when an employee arrived.

The employee left the restaurant to call for help, and on returning had to side-step Kelly who was running towards her with a meat cleaver.

Kelly dropped the cleaver at the entrance. Defence counsel David Lison said the cleaver was used to pry open a drawer, not to attack the employee.

Judge William Gistler noted that Kelly, who had successfully finished his parole on another offence, had reverted to crime to support his heroin addiction.

Hugh Donald MacKinnon, 18, of 1697 Earle, was given a five-month jail term and a year's probation for loitering in women's washrooms.

He had been convicted previously of four similar offences.

Sharon Davies, 33, of 2671 Blanshard, was fined $100 for shoplifting two blouses Sept. 19 from Simson-Sears. The blouses were worth $25.

Three persons were fined $75 each for possessing marijuana: Thomas Parry Flynn, 20, of 8540 Moxon; Andrew George Barr, 18, of 1647 Monterey; and Wyatt Barton Dwight Bergeron, 17, of 930 Empress.

Barney Bruce Morton, 22, of 1110 Queens, was charged with possessing marijuana for the purpose of trafficking and remanded to Oct. 22 for election of trial method. He was released on his own $1,000 bond.

In traffic court, Donald David Legere, 20, of Work Point Barracks, was given a 21-day jail term for driving while under suspension. He was also prohibited from driving for 10 months.

Wayne Clinton Rutan, 18, of 610 Dunedin, was fined $375 and banned from driving for 75 days for impaired driving.

Toddlers love 'em any time of day

That's a fact — most youngsters are so fond of one particular cereal, they'll eat it morning, noon and night. It's the cereal many of these youngsters ate as their first solid food when they were wee babies — Farley's Baby Feeding Biscuits. Now they're toddlers and nursing bottles are for babies, these sturdy toddlers eat their Farley's with a spoon. Serve Farley's and milk to your youngster. Or, for a between-meals snack, let your youngsters have a Farley's to eat just like an ordinary biscuit. Farley's are good for growing youngsters — and far from ordinary, for Farley's have added Riboflavin, Niacin, Iron and Calcium. Ask for Farley's Baby Feeding Biscuits at your favourite food store.

Is Canadian History Dull? Hell No!

The average Canadian's lack of knowledge of his country's history is appalling, says an associate professor of history at the University of Victoria.

"Canada has a history, a very exciting history," Alf Loft told a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club, Tuesday but perhaps Canadians are "too concerned at riding off in all directions looking for national identity."

His topic was: Canadian History. Is it Dull? Hell no!

There is "no other country whose citizens don't know who the hell they are," said Loft, and Canadians have a history studied by people whose "deeds stagger the imagination."

Take David Thompson, for example.

Most Canadians have never heard of him, said Loft. The Thompson River, named after him by friends Simon Fraser, was one of the few never seen by Thompson.

Yet he is "recognized as one of the greatest land surveyors the world has ever known."

He surveyed an area of two million square miles of "most hostile land," bigger than India. His maps "still can't be improved on for accuracy."

And he died as hungry as he grew up and lay in an unmarked grave until 1927.

Sanford Fleming, vaguely remembered for creating standard time zones, was "one of the greatest railway builders of this or any other country. In another country this man would be a national hero. In this country he's a forgotten whirlwind."

The voyageurs who discovered much of Canada, such as Simon Fraser and Alexander Mackenzie, are the "forgotten men of our history."

He described the voyageurs as "supermen" and said "surely, when there is teaching, is there nothing exciting" about Simon Fraser, the man who first explored the mighty Fraser River.

The history of bush pilots "would fascinate any students. I don't know why it isn't taught in schools."

Loft said it is gratifying that there is a growing interest in Canadian history but he hoped that Canadian nationalism will not mean anti-Americanism.

"You can be a great Canadian but you don't have to be anti-anything," he said.

He also called regional nationalism obnoxious, saying "we must be Canadian nationalists first and easterners and westerners last."

Lifestyles Cut Men Down

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian men die too young, says federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

He told a conference of the International Foundation of Employee Benefit Plans that life expectancy of women exceeds that of men by five years.

And men lose three times as many years of potential life as women through the five major causes of early death — automobile accidents, coronary disease, lung cancer and other respiratory diseases, suicide and other accidents, the health minister said.

He listed some examples: — In 1971, 4,000 men died in automobile accidents compared with 1,600 women; — Last winter, 112 men died in snowmobile accidents compared with 15 women.

— Seven times as many men as women died from industrial accidents and six times as many from cancer. The ratio is similar for drownings, cirrhosis of the liver, suicide and bronchitis.

— In 1971, more than 18,000 men between the ages of 35 and 70 died of cardiovascular disease, but only 7,000 women.

The health minister said the most important contributing factor is the difference in lifestyles between men and women.

He blamed what he called "self-imposed hazards which are often a matter of choice."

"You can call them diseases of choice or neglect. Most are also diseases of affluence."

Unless men change their behavior to reduce risks, "little progress can be made in reducing premature death and unnecessary loss of years of life," he said.

Lalonde said in an interview that it was up to individuals to modify their behavior but the government should lend a helping hand through advertising encouraging a healthy lifestyle.

Bank Troubles: Who's Next

BRUSSELS (UPI) — On Monday, Belgium's second-largest bank reported losses of at least $15 million. A day later, a major London banking-insurance firm announced it was in trouble.

Who's next?

In the jumpy economic situation, no one knows. In the past few months, a succession of banks across the globe have either collapsed or struggled through crises.

Almost all pleaded common problems — money shortages, inflation, the oil crisis, tight credit.

Most of all, they were done in by floating exchange rates.

With currencies fluctuating freely against each other, some banks made bad gambles and lost millions. Others suffered great losses through allegedly criminal currency speculation by employees.

So far, there has been no chain reaction of bank failures like those that helped cause the depression of the 1930s.

But the recent crises feed on each other, a Brussels banker explained, "because not only is the public losing confidence in banks, but banks are losing confidence in each other."

"There's less trust except in the very biggest banks, and without trust less business is done," he said. "In this atmosphere, it's mostly the smaller banks that suffer."

So far this week, the Bank of Brussels reported losses of $15 to $37 million through illegal speculation by its own foreign exchange dealers, and Jessel Securities, a big London banking house, said high interest rates and falling share values had left it unable to write any new business.

Other victims of foreign currency problems include New York's Franklin National Bank, which went broke Oct. 8 but was taken over by a European consortium, and the Cologne, West Germany, Herstatt Bank, which collapsed altogether.

Two Swiss Banks — Lloyd's Bank of London and the Union Bank — reported huge losses, through foreign currency speculation. Three smaller West German banks and an Austrian bank closed their doors in the wake of the Herstatt collapse.

The British-Israel Bank in Tel Aviv was liquidated Sunday because of a shortage of funds and even the Chase Manhattan Bank reported Oct. 2 that securities in its bond-trading account had been overvalued by $34 million.

These are only the big public cases.

"If you went down Bankers' Row and got really honest answers, you'd find that almost every bank has dropped a million dollars or so recently through speculation," an American banker in Brussels said.

The floating rate system, with currencies fluctuating without limits, offers chances for both big profits and big losses.

Bankers explained that foreign currency dealers, seeking a big killing, sometimes speculate above their own banks' self-imposed limits.

If the deal sour, the dealers then use more of the banks' money to try to recoup. Eventually, they are caught — usually when discrepancies show up in the banks' computerized accounting.

KNEE-HIGH PERCH is taken by perky Toronto squirrel which is receiving a handout from Sheila Munro, a recent arrival from Edinburgh, Scotland.

'Tiny Fort Knox'

CALGARY (CP) — A Calgary financial writer whose books were seized last month by income tax officials in connection with the ownership of gold by American citizens said Tuesday a bank where the gold is being held is a "tiny Fort Knox."

C. V. Myers, who writes a financial newsletter for a Swiss firm called Inter Publishing, said if Canadian tax officials are allowed to open the safety deposit boxes containing gold they will find the names of some of the American owners of the gold.

The gold was purchased by Inter Publishing for the American citizens — who by American law cannot own gold anywhere in the world — and stored it in Canadian banks.

Myer has claimed the seizure of books and records from his home and from the offices of his lawyers and accountants was illegal since the ownership of the gold was not illegal in Canada.

He said Canadian tax officials were acting for the U.S. Internal Revenue Service which is attempting to track down the owners of the gold.

Meanwhile, an RCMP officer confirmed Tuesday that four constables assisted income tax officials in the raids on Myers' home and the offices of his lawyer and accountants.

Staff Sergeant Harry Metcalfe said four officers took part in raids Sept. 19.

He said the officers often join the Department of National Revenue searches because of the possibility of violence by those being searched.

"We're just there in case they hit a violent type," said the officer. "People can be unpredictable."

Income tax officials have asked to see the contents of the safety deposit boxes but Myers and the publishing company have demanded assurances that the identities of the American owners will be protected.

Mines, Markets Linked

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Development of a $400-million transport and transfer system linking Western Canadian coal mines with energy-hungry eastern markets was announced here Tuesday.

Thunder Bay Terminals Ltd., a newly-formed Canadian company, made the announcement at a city council meeting while applying for a permit to build a new $30-million bulk handling terminal for the coal.

The system will involve movement of coal from the Rockies 1,400 miles by rail to the Thunder Bay terminal where it will be transferred to ships for distribution throughout eastern Canada.

Slated to begin operation in 1976, it will create 1,200 new jobs and be able to move three million tons of coal annually.

The system was designed jointly by Canadian National, CP Rail, and Neptune coal Terminals Ltd., a subsidiary of Federal Industries Ltd. of Vancouver.

In a release, Thunder Bay Terminals said the $400-million capital investment will be needed to open new — and expand existing — mines, carry out track work, acquire locomotives and cars, develop the Thunder Bay terminal and obtain ships.

They said eastern Canada can no longer depend on American mines for coal requirements.

Furthermore, Ontario Hydro — a potentially prime customer — has said significant volumes of western Canadian coal must be available as early as 1977 to provide adequate coal supply to generating stations operating and under construction.

Thunder Bay Terminals will manage and operate the new terminal, which will be ready to receive the coal by the latter part of 1976 and start lake shipping into eastern Canada by the spring of 1977.

Average Family Income Up "Sunshine"

OTTAWA (CP) — Average family income in 1973 rose by 11 per cent to $12,532, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday. The figure for 1972 was $11,300.

The net gain in the total money income of families before taxes and other deductions was three per cent after rises in the consumer price index are subtracted, the agency said.

There was a greater gain for unattached individuals, with a 14 per cent increase in average incomes to $5,210 from $4,572. The net gain after cost-of-living increases are subtracted was six per cent.

The agency also reported that the proportion of family units receiving total income of less than $5,000 fell to 26.2 per cent in 1973 from 30.1 per cent in 1972, while the proportion receiving more than $15,000 annually rose to 22.9 per cent from 16.7 per cent.

An $8,000 Welfare Spree

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia man who took an $8,000 vacation while on government assistance earlier this year, will continue to collect welfare payments, says Human Resources Minister Norm Levi.

B.C. is legally bound to keep up the payments despite the "unfortunate" Mexico vacation, Mr. Levi said. "It is a terrible thing" that J. Angus Philip of North Vancouver spent an $11,050 damage settlement on a holiday instead of using it to repay 18 months of welfare payments as he had agreed to do when he went on government assistance.

But Levi said Philip has a wife and four children "and we cannot abandon them. We are legally obliged to provide welfare as the father is not working."

Philip signed a repayment agreement after being disabled in a car accident in October, 1972.

But a section of the federal government's Canada Assistance Plan forbids any such assignment of welfare payments. Philip said he signed the repayment agreement because welfare officials told his lawyer there was no other way of getting benefits.

After collecting about $10,000 in welfare over a year and a half, Philip finally got the damage settlement from the car accident in June of this year.

He said he took his wife and two of the children on a vacation in Mexico and spent the rest of the money on debts.

Philip reapplied for welfare in early September but North Vancouver Mayor Tom Reid refused to sign any of his cheques.

175 HOMELESS - AFTER BLAZE

SURREY (CP) — A fire early Tuesday caused about $250,000 damage to a low-income housing development, leaving an estimated 175 people homeless.

Sixty-six of the 331 units in the apartment complex were rendered uninhabitable by the fire.

Apartment manager Arthur Stevens said some families lost all their belongings and few, if any, of those hardest hit had insurance.

Temporary shelter was found for all those unable to return to their apartments. A spokesman for the Surrey fire department said the fire appeared to begin with a minor explosion in an apartment on the second floor of the three-storey block.

BCTF Alleges Class Squeeze

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Teachers Federation charged Tuesday that the provincial government is considering cutbacks in classroom construction.

In a statement circulated at the opening of a two-day government-sponsored conference on educational facilities, the BCTF said there are serious overcrowding problems in schools.

New classrooms are needed because of class size reductions and construction freezes imposed by the former Social Credit government, the statement says.

"That there are serious problems of overcrowding suggests that the department is not prepared to provide adequate facilities," the statement said.

Further, the lengthy delays in approving new school construction suggests that the government is considering the curtailment of classroom construction in B.C.

Suggesting the conference has a "hidden agenda" — a cutback in "capital construction, the federation called for more immediate solutions to space problems.

In her opening remarks, Education Minister Eileen Dailly denied that the conference has a hidden purpose. Any construction curtailment would be up to the treasury board, she said later.

SURREY 'DRAGGING ON PURPOSE'

SURREY (CP) — Mayor Bill Vander Zalm says his municipality is dragging its heels in helping the British Columbia government provide more housing in B.C.

More housing would add to Surrey's already severe imbalance of taxation revenue and place further burdens on current homeowners, Vander Zalm said.

The mayor was commenting on a statement by Housing Minister Lorne Nicholson who said the attitude of municipalities toward housing seems to be "to regulate, impose and red tape."

Mayor Vander Zalm said the government must give a better deal to municipalities.

Eight per cent of Surrey's tax revenue is derived from industrial and commercial properties, compared to Richmond which receives about 40 per cent from industry and commerce, he said.

Current homeowners, said the mayor, would be strapped with paying more for police and fire protection, schools, roads and recreational facilities required by new residents.

In Port Coquitlam, Mayor Jack Campbell said local governments can't afford new amenities and levying impost charges is one way of keeping up.

Coquitlam Mayor Jim Tonn said his municipality has not adopted a no-growth or stop-growth policy and is doing its best to eliminate red tape when it comes to housing construction.

6 Growers To Opt Out

VERNON (CP) — Six of about 500 fruit growers in the North Okanagan have indicated they intend to opt out of central selling by the Oct. 31 deadline. British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association President Charles Bernhardt said Tuesday.

Growers who wish to sell independently or through other agencies than B.C. Tree Fruits, will not benefit from the government's income insurance scheme, which begins Oct. 31.

The BCFGA will hold a meeting Thursday at which those who wish to opt out of the organization will be given opportunities to make statements.

"We have sent registered letters to those we know intend opting out, inviting them to speak at the meeting, but so far only two have said they want to be heard," said Bernhardt.

SOCIALISTS BID FOR CITY SEATS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five candidates to run for aldermanic seats on city council in the Nov. 20 civic election have been nominated by the League for Socialist Action.

One nominee, Jackie Henderson, 27, is the Vancouver organizer of the League and headed a Socialist civic slate in Toronto in 1972, running for mayor.

She also ran for board of education in Toronto in 1969. Another League candidate, Monica Jones, was a candidate for alderman on the socialist slate in the 1971 Saskatchewan civic elections.

A League news release said the entry of the LSA candidates into the election follows the failure of the NDP Vancouver area council to field a full slate of candidates.

Half slates of five candidates each for the 10-seat aldermanic race have been nominated by the NDP, and the committee of progressive electors, a civic party also considered left-wing on the political spectrum.

Full slates have been nominated by the Electors Action Movement, which currently dominates city council, and the non-partisan association.

Langdale Protest A Solo Event

VANCOUVER (CP) — A union spokesman said Tuesday the refusal of British Columbia Ferries officers to make an extra trip from Langdale Monday night was not connected with a current contract dispute.

The B.C. Government Employees' Union spokesman said the officers have the right to refuse overtime work and were exercising this prerogative under the terms of the master agreement.

About 47 cars were stranded overnight at the Langdale ferry dock on the Sechart Peninsula when ferry officers refused to make the extra trip to Horseshoe Bay.

A B.C. Ferries official at Langdale said the cars were the backlog from the last scheduled 10:30 p.m. sailing. An extra trip is often made.

"Their hangup is that it happens every holiday weekend and they feel management should arrange the schedule so that people should not have to work such a long day," said the spokesman.

The extra trip would involve four hours more than the average 10 hour work day.

CATTLE STARVED

MAPLE RIDGE (CP) — An inspection of a local herd found 65 to 70 head in an emaciated condition and five carcasses, a veterinarian said Tuesday in provincial court.

Dr. Derrick John Hopkins, testifying at the trial of Edward Arthur Watson and his wife Doreen, told the court that during the March inspection of the Watson farm, he found the cattle were starving.

The Watsons have been charged with failing to provide suitable and adequate feed for their herd of Black Angus cattle.

Sauces Lift Food Flavor

By HILDA BEASTALL.
Why is it that meals cooked in the bush, often without the common seasonings of salt, butter or sugar, have such appetizing aromas and superb flavors?

This question was posed by a retired surveyor-mapmaker recalling the occasion of the cook being lost in the woods with the food supplies, and the crew eating oatmeal cooked in a billycan, served on a piece of wood, without even a spoon.

We reached the conclusion that hunger turns the simplest food into a royal feast. The appetite and taste of most of us is jaded by a superfluity of food, so we seek something different, some new flavor or aroma, to make the food attractive. Words such as "tangy", "spicy goodness" become symbols of food desirability. Instead of the food itself we substitute the symbol and find it still unsatisfying because we are not sufficiently hungry.

So it is with our most expensive cuts of meats and the freshest of vegetables, we feel they need the occasional lift of a sauce or dressing.

Basically the simplest sauce will camouflage the real flavors least; it should never monopolize the flavor of the dish.

This is where the art of using herbs is useful. Garlic is the most subtle of them all, regardless of its opponents. Now that the new crop of garlic is in, discover for yourself this most ancient of all herbs.

With meat to be cooked in liquid, use a whole peeled garlic clove without cutting or bruising. The oil is then extracted by the heat of the liquid but the odor is not released into the air.

The garlic oil blends with the liquid and penetrates the fibres of the meat, not only aiding in tenderizing but developing its flavor. No odor of raw garlic remains in the food but its effect is noted in a richer total flavor.

The cooked garlic can be discarded before serving time for it has no further appeal than a little dab of flour paste.

Vegetable and meat soups made completely at home are easily improved by a whole garlic clove added to the ingredients at the beginning of the cooking process.

If you have trouble getting the outer papery skin from the clove after breaking the clove loose from the complete bulb, drop it into boiling water for one minute. Pour off the water; the outer skin will come away easily with a twist of a pointed knife.

When you need to revive interest in green beans at the end of the season try this unusual Nut Sauce.

NUT SAUCE

For Green Beans

1/2 cup finely chopped raw peanuts

3 Tbsp soft margarine

1 Tbsp chopped parsley

Brown the nuts in margarine for a few minutes; add the cooked and drained green beans and parsley. Reheat and serve.

The same sauce will enliven steamed cabbage and white cauliflower if you should ever become jaded with these good foods.

A Basic Sauce for many vegetables needs little explanation or directions.

BASIC SAUCE

For Vegetables

3 Tbsp soft margarine

1 egg yolk

2 tsp lemon juice

2 Tbsp boiling water (approx.)

In a small saucepan melt the margarine; add the egg yolk and lemon juice beaten lightly together. Stir over gentle heat until mixture begins to thicken. Add boiling water slowly, stirring constantly.

The sauce should be creamy and smooth but still pour easily over the hot vegetables.

To vary this sauce for those suffering from extreme non-hunger, add a quarter teaspoon of curry; or a dash of paprika; or a few grains of nutmeg, a few celery seeds or sesame seeds. All are pleasant variations.

Fresh or dried herbs to be added if wished, either one or a mixture of all, are: chopped parsley, chives, tarragon, chervil, or land cress. All except tarragon are commonly grown in boxes on apartment balconies, in patio squares near outdoor barbecues or in vegetable plots. Some are available commercially in dried form.

As the crisp cool days of fall turn to winter, may your appetites return to just the hunger point so that you once again experience the pleasures of enjoying good food simply cooked and seasoned.

YOUR TURN TO COOK: SPECIALTY CHICKEN

By JANE DIXON

(Today's reader recipe was sent in by Mrs. Al Dixon, of Cobble Hill. If you have a family or favorite recipe you would gladly share, please send it to the Family Desk, 2621 Douglas.)

One of my husband's favorites, this recipe is guaranteed to feed six people and then some. A nice thing about this recipe is that it can be simmered for a long time in a pot or put into a pressure cooker. You can use stewing fowl instead of frying chicken, it takes a little longer to become tender but you can save some money to buy the bottle of wine.

My husband doesn't like eggplant so I substitute zucchini and find it tastes the same. The olive oil gives this dish a "different" taste and the zucchini or egg plant along with the tomatoes are your vegetables.

SPECIALTY CHICKEN

One 2 to 3 lb. frying chicken cut into serving pieces.

One Spanish or medium onion, diced.

One-quarter cup olive oil.

One 14 or 16 oz. can of mushrooms, drained.

One large can whole or stewed tomatoes.

One small can tomato paste.

Half bottle of dry white wine.

Half eggplant or zucchini cut into 1 inch cubes.

Garlic to taste.

Salt and pepper to taste.

Three or 4 tablespoons flour.

Oregano.

Parmesan cheese.

Spaghetti.

Dredge chicken with 3 to 4 tablespoons flour (I put it into a paper bag and shake); sauté chicken until golden brown in olive oil along with onions and garlic. Add the rest of the ingredients down to oregano, cover and simmer until chicken is tender, one to three hours, depending on type of chicken used. You can thicken the sauce if desired.

Half hour before serving sprinkle one tablespoon oregano into pot. Serve over spaghetti and sprinkle parmesan cheese on top. Served with a small salad, this meal is a real filler.

Cheese Sauce for Vegetables

CHEESE SAUCE

(With skim milk powder)

3 tablespoons butter

3 tablespoons flour

1/2 teaspoon salt

Dash pepper

1 1/2 cups water

1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

Dash cayenne

1/2 to 3/4 cup skim milk powder

1 cup (4 ounces) grated medium cheddar cheese

Melt butter, blend in flour, seasonings and skim milk powder. Gradually add water.

Stir and cook until smooth and thick. Add grated cheese and stir until melted. Make about 1 1/2 cups medium sauce, enough for 6 servings of vegetables.

Pasta a Favorite Inflation Fighter

Today's goal of modern homemakers is to provide nourishing meals requiring reasonable time and energy to prepare. Homemakers still want the best value for the money they spend. However value means buying time, convenience and variety. With so many women working outside the homes and shopping less often, the packages of seasoning and sauce mixes available today offer more innovative use of ingredients.

It is indicated that during inflationary times shoppers turn to pasta products. Family budgets prove that such times are at hand today.

MANICOTTI PARMIGIANA
Manicotti is a large hollow type of pasta which is stuffed with a meat or cheese filling. The manicotti are then placed in a sauce and baked allowing for a full mingling of flavors. Manicotti Parmigiana makes a hearty main dish and is ideal to make ahead for busy fall and winter days.

1 package (1 1/2 oz.) spaghetti mix
1 can (28 oz.) tomatoes
1 can (7 1/2 oz.) tomato sauce
2 tablespoons Lawry's garlic spread

1 1/2 teaspoons seasoned salt

8 manicotti shells

1 pound ground beef

1/2 cup chopped green pepper

1/2 pound Mozzarella cheese, diced

Parmesan cheese

Mix first five ingredients in large saucepan. Cover and simmer for 20 minutes. Meanwhile, cook manicotti shells in boiling salted water about 7 minutes; drain. Brown ground beef and green pepper in skillet. Drain fat. Remove from heat and stir in Mozzarella cheese. Stuff manicotti shells with meat-cheese mixture.

Pour 3/4 of sauce in bottom of 12x8x2-inch baking dish. Place stuffed manicotti shells over sauce, top with remaining sauce. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake in 375 deg. F. oven 30 minutes. Makes 4 to 8 servings.

Butterfly shrimp cocktail hors d'oeuvres.

Tips On Deepfrying Shrimp

Deepfried Butterfly Shrimp is a delightful addition to any cocktail party menu. Serve deepfried butterfly shrimp with Chinese plum sauce.

The following suggestion will ensure successful and safe deepfrying:

—Use a large, deep pan, round or oval shaped, a pan which will not easily tip over.

—Other necessary equipment are a basket and skimmers.

—Food fried in abundant fat is crisp, cooked all through and easy to digest. The batter is sealed immediately and therefore does not absorb fat.

—Make sure that the fat has attained the proper cooking temperature. In order to maintain this temperature, only deepfry a few shrimp at a time.

—In order to avoid unpleasant odors, we suggest that you deepfry in peanut oil, which is odorless.

DEEPFRIED BUTTERFLY SHRIMP

(6 to 8 people as an hors d'oeuvre)

1 pound of raw shrimp, in their shell (size 15 to 20 shrimp per pound)

2 garlic cloves, smashed, and finely chopped juice of 1 lemon

salt

freshly ground pepper

BATTER:

1 cup all purpose flour

1/4 teaspoon salt

2 tablespoons peanut oil

1 1/2 cups, less 3 tablespoons cold water

2 egg whites

oil, for deepfrying.

Peel each shrimp down to the last section, leaving it and the tail attached to the shrimp. Devein and wash the shrimp. Cut each shrimp 3/4 of the way through along its inner curve. Flatten the shrimp with the palm of your hand.

In a mixing bowl, combine the shrimp, garlic, lemon, salt and pepper. Cover with wax paper and refrigerate. While the shrimp are marinating, prepare the batter:

In a mixing bowl, combine the flour and the salt and then add the peanut oil and the cold water. Blend well. Refrigerate the mixture, uncovered, for 30 minutes. Beat the egg whites until very stiff. Remove the batter from the refrigerator. Gently, but thoroughly fold the egg whites into the batter.

Half fill a deep fryer with peanut oil and heat the oil to 350 degrees. Dip the shrimp, one at a time, into the batter and then drop them carefully into the hot oil.

Deep fry the shrimp for 3 to 4 minutes, or until golden brown. Drain the shrimp on paper towels and serve them with plum sauce.

Food Fun Is Found At the Dairy Counter

Dairy products are truly beautiful foods. They are fun to eat and fun to drink. To enjoy more of them, more often we can all benefit from a few tips from the home economists, Agriculture Canada when shopping for dairy foods.

Generally the price of milk and cream depend on the percentage fat content — whipping cream being the higher priced and fluid skim milk the lower priced.

Skim milk powder and evaporated whole milk are more economical and do not require refrigeration. Reliquified skim milk may be used to make puddings, sauces, gravies, creamed dishes and baked products. For beverages, equal parts of reliquified skim milk powder and whole milk may be combined to produce milk which contains approximately 2 per cent fat.

Buying milk in large containers saves money, so it is wise to buy the largest size which can be used within three to four days.

Bulk or store-sliced cheese usually is lower priced than prepackaged sliced, shredded or grated cheese.

Mild cheddar costs less than old as the aging increases the price.

If specials are offered on it, most cheeses except creamed cottage and cream cheese can be frozen for about 3 months for use in cooking, although freezing may cause some change in texture.

Added ingredients such as herbs or fruit in cream or cottage cheese increase their cost.

Compare prices of natural versus process cheese, 'store-brand' versus 'brand name' cheese and Canadian-made versus imported.

Ice milk and low fat ice creams cost less than rich ice creams and have fewer calories and more calcium.

Wasted foods are very expensive. Milk which has soured makes delicious cakes, muffins and biscuits. Cheese which has become dry and crumbly may be grated and used in cooking or for toppings for casseroles.

By MARY MOORE

After enquiring around of every cook I met I discovered that Canadian born cooks are not using the variety of sausages that Europeans do.

I have a cousin married to a German Canadian. When he goes home to the Black Forest area to see his folks he always return with some kind of smoked sausage which he hangs in his cold cellar to slice little pieces from when he is working on his lathe.

Mariska was one of my helpers and often wondered why I did not add a finishing touch of sliced sausage of some kind to my homemade soups.

Do you put variety sausages to the best use? More than 200 sausage products in all shapes and sizes are available on the market. Liver-wurst and salami and Polish sausage in lunch sandwiches? Cheese stuffed jumbo wieners wrapped in pastry and baked? Do you make the best use of comparatively low cost pork sausages?

I was pleased to receive many letters praising our Ham and Pork Roll (July 5, '74) that called for sausage meat. It was a real professional product.

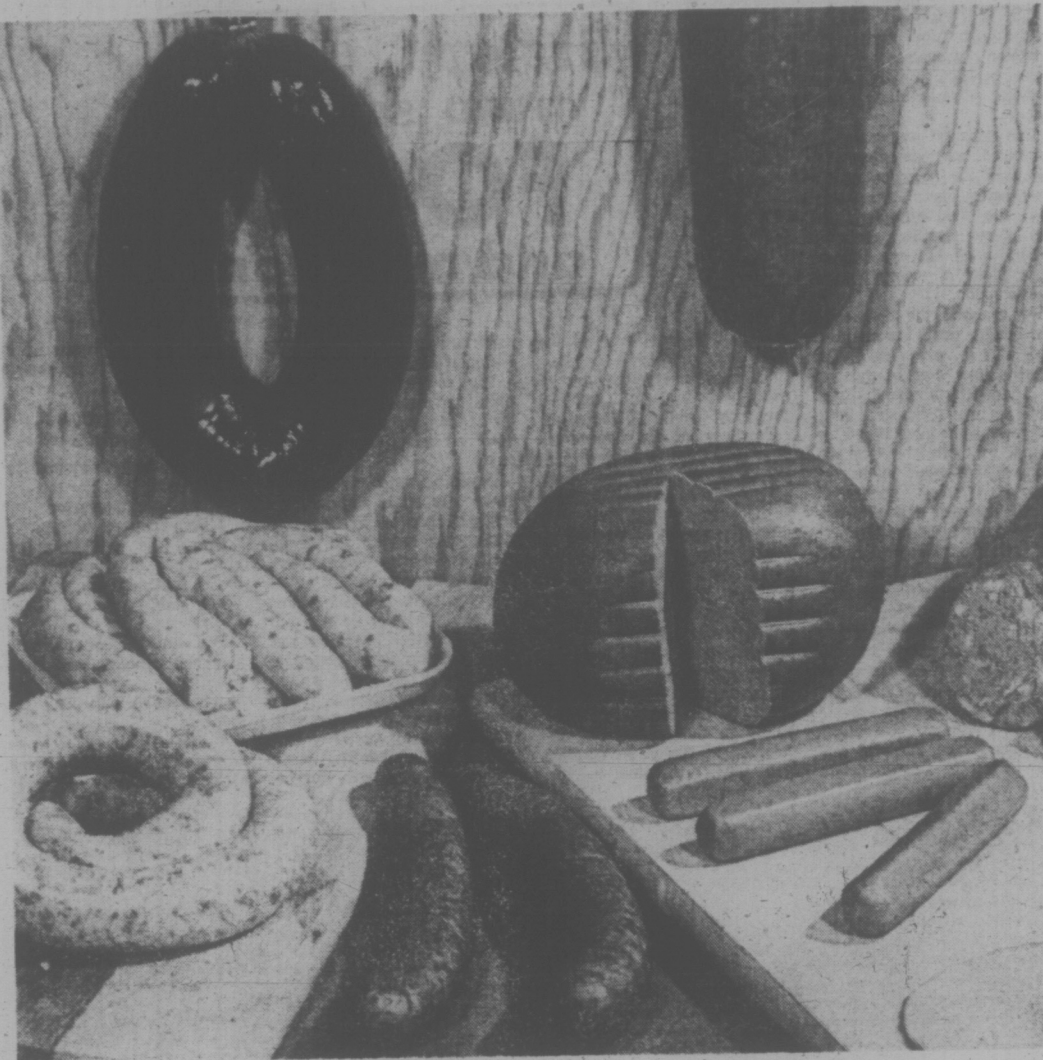

So — I am going to repeat a popular dish — Sauerkraut and Wiener Bake that will warm the cockles of our European transplants.

SAUERKRAUT AND WIENERS

(Serves 6 to 8)

12 medium-small potatoes, two 28-oz. cans sauerkraut (drained), ¼ c. hard butter or margarine, 2 tbsp. beef bouillon cordial, 2 to 2½ c. hot water (divided — see below), 1 lb. best quality wieners cut up.

Wash, pare and quarter potatoes. Into very large baking dish or roasting pan put potatoes and drained sauerkraut. Toss them with two forks to mix. Cut the hard butter or margarine into pieces and dot it over top. Combine the beef bouillon cordial with 2 cups of the hot water and pour this evenly over top. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. uncovered for 2 hours. (About every 20 minutes remove from oven and toss with forks to combine potatoes, sauerkraut and juice.) Cut each wiener into 8 equal pieces and add, tossing to combine. Continue to bake uncovered 1 hour longer, still tossing mixture every 20 minutes. During this last hour watch mixture and if it appears to be too dry add the remaining ½ cup hot water. Be careful though because you don't want your mixture to be soggy. Total baking time is 3 hours.

More than 200 varieties of sausage are marketed.

You will notice that there is no salt or pepper added to this dish. Some of our tasters added both when served at the table. Others did not add any.

Inflation and convenience foods have not tied our hands. We can still have the finest quality dessert by making it ourselves.

Doris W's chocolate cake is an outstanding example of what you can do.

This cake can compete with any former prize winner.

Make it this weekend and for upcoming birthdays.

MILK CHOCOLATE CAKE

2-3 c. butter or margarine (room temperature), 1½ c. granulated sugar, 3 eggs, 3 squares melted unsweetened chocolate (see below), 2 c. sifted cake-and-pastry flour, 2½ tsp. baking powder, ¼ tsp. salt, ½ c. milk, 1 tsp. vanilla (OR 3 tsp. if artificial).

In beater bowl cream together butter and sugar. Add eggs and beat well. Stir in melted, slightly cooled, unsweetened chocolate. (NOTE: Melt chocolate squares in a large cup standing in shallow pan of boiling water.)

In another bowl sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Add alternately with the milk to the creamed mixture combining thoroughly and scraping down sides of bowl and up from bottom often. Stir in vanilla.

Pour batter evenly into two wax-paper-lined and buttered 9" layer cake pans. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes. Cool on cake racks then remove cakes from pans.

Sprinkle a serving plate with sugar and place first layer on it. Spread with WHITE CREAM FROSTING made by combining ¼ cup butter or margarine, 4 cups icing sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons vanilla and ½ cup milk and beating until thoroughly combined and creamy smooth. Put on top layer. Frost sides and top.

If you want to glamorize this beauty refrigerate at least 20 minutes and drizzle melted chocolate over top and sides. (I melted 2 squares unsweetened chocolate with 2 teaspoons butter and let it cool before drizzling over chilled icing.)

Budget-Wise Stop Waste

Wise food shopping is not the only way to keep a close eye on the budget. According to Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada, avoiding waste is another excellent way to get your money's worth in the kitchen.

—Dry stale bread in the oven and roll or grind it into crumbs. Use these for breadings meats or vegetables, or as a topping for casseroles.

—Add leftover cooked fish, chicken, meat or cheese to a tossed salad, a casserole, an omelet or a sandwich spread.

—Keep leftover soup by freezing it in an ice cube tray. When frozen, remove the cubes, store them in plastic bags in the freezer. Thaw and heat the cubes as needed.

—Use sour milk or cream in chocolate cakes, muffins or pancakes.

—Chili makes a great leftover dish. Grind bits of leftover meat, poultry, even liver and kidneys together—chili is spicy enough to mask the flavor difference.

—Use up small quantities of jelly left in jars. They can be combined, melted down and used as a glaze for ham or luncheon meats.

—Use drippings in gravies and sauces; chicken fat in biscuits and cookies; beef fat for browning onions for casseroles or spaghetti sauce; ham fat for frying eggs, seasoning beans or cabbage.

Crab: Treasure of the Sea

By CRAIG CLAIBORNE

One of the great (and none too abundant) prizes of North American waters is known in unusually informed circles as Callinectes Sapidus. This is the blue or hard-shell crab of the Atlantic. For some reason crab meat is rarely listed among the hors-d'oeuvre riches (caviar, foie gras, smoked salmon, lobster) in classic culinary literature, which seems odd, for it certainly ranks with lobster as one of the treasures of the sea. Crab meat is a versatile delicacy. It makes a splendid key ingredient for curried soup; crab cakes are a delight and so are crab fritters.

CURRIED CRAB SOUP

4 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1 clove garlic, finely minced
1/2 cup peeled, cored and finely diced apple
1 tablespoon curry powder
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 cup peeled, chopped, fresh, ripe tomato
3 cups chicken broth
Salt and freshly ground pepper
1/2 pound crab meat
1/2 cup heavy cream
Tabasco sauce
Chopped parsley for garnish

1. Melt the butter in a saucepan and add the onion. Cook, stirring, until wilted and add the garlic and apple. Stir briefly and sprinkle with the curry powder and flour.

2. Add the tomato and chicken broth, stirring rapidly with a wire whisk. When thickened and smooth, add the salt and pepper to taste and crab meat and simmer 10 minutes. Add the cream and bring to the boil. Add a touch of Tabasco. Serve piping hot with chopped parsley garnish.

Yield: Six servings.

CRAB CAKES

1 pound crab meat
1/2 cup finely chopped parsley
1 cup chopped scallions
1 1/2 cups fresh bread crumbs
2 eggs
1/4 cup milk
Tabasco sauce
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt and freshly ground pepper

2 tablespoons prepared mustard, preferably Dijon or Dusseldorf
Oil for deep frying
Tartar sauce

1. If necessary, pick over the crab meat to remove any traces of shell or cartilage.

2. Empty the crab into a mixing bowl and add the parsley, scallions and three-quarters cup of the bread crumbs.

3. In another bowl, beat the eggs and add the milk, Tabasco sauce, salt and pepper to taste and mustard.

4. Blend well and pour this over the crab mixture. Stir gently to blend, leaving the crab as whole as possible. The mixture will seem rather wet and loose, but it is manageable when the cakes are finally coated with bread crumbs.

5. Shape the crab into oval or round cakes and dredge them in the remaining crumbs. Press between the hands to make the crumbs adhere and the cakes hold together.

6. Heat the oil for deep frying to 325 degrees and cook the cakes in a basket until golden brown all over. Drain and serve hot with tartar sauce.

Yield: Six crab cakes.

BEIGNETS DE CRABE (Crab Fritters)

1 1/2 cups flour
Salt and freshly ground pepper
2 tablespoons olive oil
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
Tabasco sauce
2 eggs, separated
1 cup milk
1 cup finely chopped scallions

Lamb Casserole Over Noodles

For a delicious and economical dinner idea, why not try this Harvest Casserole. Serve it over rice or noodles for a complete meal. For more recipes and information on lamb, write Information Division, Agriculture Canada, Ottawa, KIA 0C7 for the publication "Canadian Lamb" No. 1501.

HARVEST CASSEROLE

6 1/2-inch lamb sholder chops (about 2 pounds)
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup red currant jelly
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup water
3 carrots, cut in 2-inch fingers
2 sliced onions
3 pears, quartered lengthwise
2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons cold water

Snip fat edge of chops and brown 1 minute each side in fat. Remove chops and drain fat from pan. Melt jelly and add lemon juice and water. Cook carrots in jelly mixture 7 minutes and onions 1 minute. Place chops, vegetables and pears in baking dish. Combine cornstarch with cold water and add to jelly mixture. Stir and cook until thick and clear and pour into baking dish. Cover and bake 30 minutes at 325 deg. F. 6 servings.

Zoos Don't Want Pets

DEAR ABBY: An anthropologist wrote to you recently, advocating the rearing of chimpanzees instead of children. He stated that one can always sell a mature, healthy chimp to a zoo when it became hard to handle (and at twice what he paid for it), and facetiously went on to ask, what zoo would take a human? Herein lies a serious misconception.

The zoo DO NOT want these former pets! Lately, since exotic pets have become fashionable, zoos around the country have been swamped with "offers" to take chimps, ocelots, cheetahs, birds, fowl, lizards, etc. off the hands of those who had no idea what they were getting into when they purchased the young creatures.

These cast-offs are usually refused because former pets make poor zoo specimens. Their health may be suspect, their behavior, neurotic, or they may be simply unable to cope with their new environment. Then, too, zoos have better sources of supply—

So the buyer of such a pet must acknowledge the fact that he'll have to keep it for its lifetime. It's either that, or return it to a wild state in which it can no longer survive, try to find a shelter that'll accept it, or the easy way out—have it destroyed.

Abby, please appeal to self-styled animal lovers, or status seekers, to resist buying a wild animal unless they are prepared to learn how to raise it and give it a good life. Otherwise, the animal suffers, the environment suffers, and so does the owner. They shouldn't buy it and then expect the zoo to bail them out after the novelty has worn off. That's not what zoos are for.

DEAR GEORGE: Thanks for speaking for our furred and feathered friends who can't speak for themselves.

DEAR ABBY: My 55-year-old wife (in name only for the last 10 years) and I are having a disagreement, and want you to settle it.

My wife telephoned a local dinner and dance spot and reserved a table for two near the orchestra on a Saturday night. This was confirmed, but when she and her friend (a widow) showed up, they were told there were no tables available in the room with the orchestra. She argued that she had reservations, but to no avail. They were seated in another room away from the orchestra and dance floor.

When my wife asked me why I thought she and her friend were treated this way, I said: "If two unescorted women dine together, it could give the place a bad name, because the women could be (1) Lesbians, or (2) looking to pick up men."

Do you think I was wrong in my evaluation? — The Male View.

DEAR MALE: Your "evaluation" is not necessarily correct. But whether or not a public dining and dancing establishment can lawfully discriminate against women without male escorts is another matter. If two women elect to dine together, whom are they hurting?

Travellers Miss Their Farmer's Omelette

When they turned Arnhem's old Hotel de Korenbeurs into a pub last year, countless Dutch businessmen and travelling salesmen not only found themselves out of a stopover spot. They had lost Johanna Meester's cooking as well.

For Johanna was accustomed to tending to a man's hearty appetite for tasty, home-style meals without fancy French titles and strange, foreign spices. Her goulash and paprika cutlets were famous.

Johanna knew what to do with nutmeg, too. Like any good Dutch housewife, she sprinkled it generously on the stringbeans. French beans, cauliflower, celery, red cabbage, leek, endive, asparagus, sprouts and chicory, and included it in the chopped meat (gehakt) and stewed steak (runderlappen).

But what they all clamoured for was Boerenomelet (Farmer's omelette), and for dessert a generous helping of Chipolata pudding, a house speciality.

After 29 years in the hotel business, Johanna retired. "My daughter and son-in-law weren't interested in the hotel," she explains. "It was hard to get staff, and I'd have to work seven days a week, including holidays, till late in the night, and often alone. There are times when I miss it, though."

These days, 58-year-old Johanna is nearly always to be found at her five-room house in Oosterbeek, near Arnhem, with its lovely garden and huge picture windows. The kitchen is modest, compared with the facilities she had at the hotel, but the food is as good as it always was.

Johanna lives alone with her pet poodle, Bijou. She divides her time between the garden (where room has been spared for a small herbarium), listening to classical music, occasionally playing the piano and singing, and doing all sorts of handwork.

Being alone, she normally wouldn't spend much time cooking, were it not for the neighbors — who enjoy being frequent guests at the Meester residence, nearly as much as Johanna enjoys cooking for them. "As for myself," she says, "most of the things I cook for visitors I'm not allowed to have. A few months ago I joined a weight-watcher's club."

BOERENOMELET (Farmer's omelette)

No one can remember just when this popular Dutch omelette was invented, or if it had its origins in any one particular part of the country.

Today, however, it is on the menu of countless Dutch restaurants from Friesland to Limburg. And it is rarely, if ever, prepared twice in the same way — not even when served in the same restaurant.

For this tasty dish is primarily composed of leftovers, and variation possibilities are endless.

Ingredients: 1 finely chopped onion; 2 oz. butter; 2 oz. bacon cubes; 2 oz. cooked ham; some peas, carrots, beans, cooked potato cut into cubes, pickled onions, a dash of curry; 1 teaspoon chopped parsley; 3 eggs; 1 tablespoon cream; a dash of salt.

Any other leftover bits of meat or vegetables may be added or substituted, and some like to top the omelette with a tomato sauce.

Fry the onions in butter until glassy, but not brown. Add the bacon and ham and fry slightly. Then add the peas, carrots, beans, potato, curry, and pickled onions and warm. Set aside.

In a clean frying pan with a flat, smooth bottom, melt 1 oz. butter and heat till nearly light brown. Whip the eggs, salt and cream vigorously and pour into the pan.

By continually shaking the pan the eggs become solid without sticking. Place the filling on one side of the omelet and cover with the other side.

Your Horoscope

Forecast for Thursday, Oct. 17

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis is on how you face "our issues." Money is involved — and so are emotions. Key is to unearth what has been buried — and to use what you find in constructive, productive manner. Debts, taxes, commitments are in picture. But you can take steps which make you free!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You find that those who, in recent past, would not talk are now regular chatterboxes. That's good if you display charm, flexibility. Apples, especially where partner, mate enters picture. Be gracious and avoid "I told you so" demeanor.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your home life is spotlighted — do you like what you see? That is a question which now is paramount — and what can you do about it. A sensitive person, playing an important role in your life, wants you to go in direction which helps you to grow. Be smart enough to listen!

CANCER (June 21-July 23): Good lunar aspect coincides now with emotional responses, special dealings with children, speculation rather than logical conclusions. Emotions continue to dominate as you sort truth from fiction. This is not easy but it is necessary. Pisces, Virgo could be involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Practical matters dominate — you get the facts and you will be in position to do something about correcting past mistakes. Emphasis is on building, reinforcing structures. Older individual lends benefit of experience.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What begins as perhaps a "minor idea" reaches major proportions. Your writings receive attention, more so than usual. Your thoughts, put to paper, gain wide circulation. Greater degree of expression is indicated and that is all to the good!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New approach proves profitable. Means stress originality, independence. Invest in your own ideas, abilities. Refuse to be backed into emotional corner. You have right to live your own life. A possessive "lover" should be made aware of that fact.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle is high — take initiative. Check Libra message. Heed inner voice. Timing, judgment are apt to be on target. Do what comes naturally. Be you and you can't go wrong. Aquarius could be in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Reports from "confidential sources" may be exaggerated. A friend, crying for attention, could concoct bizarre story. Keep balance and maintain sense of humor. The rumor factory is running overtime.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can do something solid about carrying out desires. You obtain needed material. A friend shows the way, even where money backing enters picture. Be confident. Welcome experiences which come from the acceptance of social invitations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Career changes are possible, perhaps even probable. A "talky" associate could get ball rolling. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play key roles. You could get recognition now for task performed in past. You may also be "kicked upstairs."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel, writing, a variety of experiences — these are featured. Nothing is status quo — forces are scattered. Leave fine points, details for another time. For now, grasp situation, picture as a whole. An obese friend or associate confides problem. Be receptive but don't get too involved.

TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY — you are an organizer, promoter, one capable of handling money and responsibility. You are creative, love power, can imprint your style — and when you love it is all or nothing. You have been confused because of too many irons in fire this year. Much changes where that is concerned — you soon will be working on "something solid." Capricorn, Cancer persons play significant roles in your life.

Swedes' Socialist PM To Visit Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Olof Palme, Sweden's flamboyant socialist prime minister, caused a sensation a few years ago when he appeared in the sexually explicit Swedish film I Am Curious Yellow.

Palme, who arrives in Ottawa Thursday for talks with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, and will be in Victoria Sunday, was minister responsible for the state church in the Swedish cabinet when he made his acting debut.

He responded to the inevitable demands in parliament for his resignation in a manner that Trudeau might well have appreciated.

"After one hour of debate I told my co-debaters that it had been an interesting discussion but I had to finish because, being minister of the church, I had an important meeting with the archbishop to attend to," he recalled later.

The exploits of the 47-year-old Palme have outraged foreign governments, made him one of his country's most controversial figures and contributed to Sweden's reputation, as in the words of Trudeau adviser Ivan Head, "the cutting edge of the left — very active, outspoken and moral."

Palme, who is making his first visit to Canada to continue talks that he and Trudeau had at their first meeting in Austria last winter, says he was actually tricked into the short-lived acting career.

"I was asked to take part in a documentary on the class society in Sweden," he said of his role in I Am Curious Yellow. "I had no idea that it would also be a documentary on some other parts of human endeavor."

Palme has been a controversial figure since his early days as a student member of Sweden's entrenched Social-Democratic Labor Party. He is a frank admirer of the teachings of Karl Marx and Mao Tse-tung but says much of the Communist message is unworkable in today's complex western society.

He is said to have little patience with slogan-chanting leftist groups who "wait for the revolution ... don't get into the system and try to influence it, guide it."

As a youth on the loose in Europe, Palme quietly married a Czechoslovakian girl to enable her to flee her country. He now is married to a child psychologist and has three sons.

Said to be an informal person who likes to mingle among the people, he returned from a recent official visit to the Netherlands by ship-working as an engine room stoker.

As a cabinet minister in 1968 he shocked U.S. diplomats by marching alongside the North Vietnamese ambassador in an anti-war demonstration outside the U.S. embassy in Stockholm. At one point, the U.S. withdrew its Swedish ambassador to protest Palme's strongly worded criticism of the U.S. role in Vietnam.

But when he became prime minister in 1969 they did not discourage him from acting as an information pipeline to relay news of imprisoned soldiers from Hanoi to families in the U.S. And the protest did not deter him from funneling millions of dollars in Swedish non-military aid to North Vietnam after the ceasefire was signed.

The Swedes played a leading role in helping refugees escape the military dictatorship in Chile after the Marxist government of Salvador Allende was overthrown.

Palme's controversial approach to foreign affairs caused another furor when Swedish diplomats in Santiago had a confrontation with Chilean soldiers over the fate of an injured refugee.

Palme believes in blunt talk and — occasionally — action on such international issues despite Sweden's officially neutral stance in foreign affairs.

"People who say this contradicts our neutrality are mistaken," he told an interviewer. "This criticism would only be valid if our policies were formed under pressure from some outside power."

"We, and only we, decide what stand we shall take on various world issues ... it is important that small nations make their views known."

Officials of both Canada and Sweden say Trudeau and Palme share many of the same concerns about international problems. These include the spread of nuclear weapons, the role of developing countries in helping to solve international political and economic problems, the growing problem of food shortages in developing countries, and the international peacekeeping duties conducted by both countries under the United Nations.

These are expected to be the main areas of discussion for Trudeau and Palme Friday.

The two met at a meeting of the Club of Rome, the exclusive international think-tank, in Salzburg last winter and hit it off from the start, officials say.

Head has said that Trudeau is keenly interested in learning more about the Palme approach to international affairs. Swedish officials say that Palme greatly admires Trudeau.

"We really concluded that our two countries have tremendously much in common and this is shown in many international affairs where Canada and Sweden have worked beautifully together," Palme has said of the Austria meeting with Trudeau.

Swedish officials say Palme visiting only Canada on the five-day trip underlines the importance he attaches to relations between the two countries.

He will visit Parliament Friday morning, hold discussions with Trudeau in the afternoon and then spend Saturday, Sunday and Monday in Winnipeg.

NURSING CLASS SET

Royal Jubilee Hospital will conduct its second annual emergency care seminar for nurses Oct. 24 and 25.

Theme of this year's seminar is management and transportation of the acutely ill and injured. It will be held in the Eric Martin Institute theatre.

About 100 nurses from all over Vancouver Island attended last year and more are expected this year.

Doctor Salary Declarations Eyed in Sask.

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Provincial Health Minister Walter Smishek says "perhaps the time has come to reconsider the situation" in which government employees must publicly declare their earnings but doctors are exempt.

Speaking to an NDP nominating convention, Smishek said the income of any Saskatchewan government employee who earns over $4,000 a year is reported to the public accounts.

The name and salary of a clerk-stenographer who earns $4,800 a year is public information, in sharp contrast to the name of the physician who receives in excess of $190,000 in public funds, said Smishek.

He noted a Medical Care Insurance Commission report says the average payment to physicians is $49,000, and is expected to rise to $51,000 in 1974.

This doesn't include payments from other sources, such as the Workmen's Compensation Board, The Cancer Commission, government and private insurance, the department of social services, and payments for patients from out of province. These add another 10 per cent to a physician's income.

Smishek said the combined gross payment to three specialists from MCIC in 1973 "totalling $325,000" exceeded the $500,000 combined total paid to the Saskatchewan premier and cabinet.

The minister admitted doctors have expenses. According to the latest federal government figures, the average overhead for a Saskatchewan physician amounts to $15,800.

Smishek also said he was concerned over a statement made by president of the Saskatchewan Medical Association, Dr. M. A. Gormley, to the effect that doctors may increase their income by reducing quality in favor of quantity.

In Saskatchewan, about 300 appendix operations are performed per 100,000 people, compared with 225 in the rest of Canada.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

By FRED KARPIN

In many deals, declarer has an easily-makable contract if he can ruff out one of his losers. But the defenders, foreseeing this possibility, promptly leads trumps, thereby taking away declarer's hope. In these cases, declarer must find another hope.

The above is the theme of today's deal, which came up in a rubber-bridge game. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The ten of clubs was now led, and when East followed suit with the four-spot, South discarded his three of hearts. West captured this trick with his jack — and, simultaneously, he became end-played.

If West cashed the ace of hearts, he would make a winner out of South's king. And if, instead, he played the ace of clubs, he would establish dummy's queen as a winner (declarer ruffing the ace, of course). And declarer could always reach dummy via the queen of clubs he would discard a losing heart.

Magic Word: Alternatives

This year's magic word in education circles is "alternatives."

Witness two conferences scheduled for the week-end of Oct. 25, one in Campbell River and one in Banff and both to discuss alternatives in education.

Ken Hurn, principal of Victoria's more-structured alternative school, Sentinel elementary, will speak in Banff to Western Canada educational administrators on Alternative Schools — The Traditional Approach.

Art Lamrock of Greater Victoria school board and Mark Horne of Sooke will tell Vancouver Island school trustees in Campbell River about alternative programs for students who can't fit into the regular school system.

Rockefeller have extended beyond the realm of political figures to some of his long-time friends connected with journalism.

According to informed sources, Rockefeller has reported in his tax returns a gift of $150,000 to Emmett John Hughes, author and former Newsweek columnist. However, Hughes insists the money was not a gift, but deferred compensation for his work as political strategist and speechwriter during Rockefeller's abortive presidential campaign of 1968.

A $10,000 gift was also reported to Joan Braden, a well-known figure in Washington's social life and the wife of syndicated columnist Thomas Braden.

Rockefeller also made gifts to two other former associates in New York's government — $100,000 to Henry Diamond, former environmental conservation commissioner and now executive director of Rockefeller's Commission on Critical Choices, and $100,000 to James W. Gaynor, a private consultant who was Rockefeller's state housing commissioner for 15 years. Neither man could be reached for comment.

Hughes and Braden are long-established friends of the former New York governor. Braden was an executive of the Museum of Modern Art in New York 25 years ago when Nelson Rockefeller was head of the museum. Mrs. Braden also worked for Rockefeller in the past. Hughes, now a professor at Rutgers University's Eagleton Institute, served the Rockefeller family both before and after his stint in the 1960s as a magazine columnist.

In a telephone interview, Hughes said the $150,000 was arranged for him by Rockefeller because he was foregoing a new opportunity in journalism in order to help the governor's late start in the '68 presidential sweepstakes. The campaign ended a few months later when Richard Nixon won the Republican nomination.

"In the spring of '68, right after I left Newsweek," Hughes explained, "he asked me to come on the campaign staff and take charge of political strategy. In order to do this, I had to forego another association in journalism and he felt he had to compensate me for that."

Hughes is the author of the recent book, "The Living Presidency." Although currently a professor, he still writes occasional political articles. This year, for instance, he has had articles in Newsweek, The New York Times Sunday Magazine and The Washington Post.

The apparent conflict between his own recollection of the transaction and the reported tax returns of Rockefeller is unresolved. According to informed sources, the $150,000 is reported as a forgiveness of notes. But Hughes said there were no notes or loans.

The compensation was arranged on a deferred basis, involving stock investments held for him by Rockefeller's financial managers, Hughes said. When the stocks depreciated instead of increasing in value, Hughes said, their value fell considerably below the original agreement of $150,000.

"It was not a gift or a loan or a note," the writer said. "It was a fixed sum that Rockefeller and I agreed on."

Hughes said the portfolio is still active and that each year he pays whatever income tax is due on it.

Mrs. Braden and her husband flew to Uterboro, N.H., Friday to visit friends and could not be reached for comment on the $10,000 gift which Mrs. Braden received, reportedly in several stages this year and last.

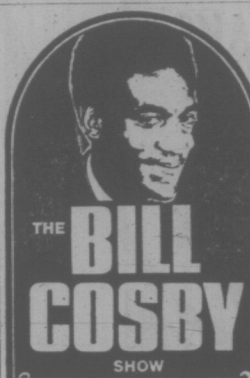

Joan Braden has a prominence of her own in the capital as one who gives regular and very fashionable dinner parties. Her Sunday evening salons frequently attract such famous names as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt.

Tom Braden, former editor and publisher of a newspaper in Oceanside, Calif., has written a Washington-based political column for five years.

In August, shortly after President Ford nominated Rockefeller for vice-president, Braden wrote:

"Rockefeller will try harder at being vice-president than any man who ever held the job. And unless he wants to waste all that energy, President Ford had better start thinking about what he wants Rockefeller to do."

New Round of Talks Set On Canada's Constitution

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday a new round of constitutional talks with the provinces will be held on a bilateral basis and there will be "no occasion in the immediate future when it will be publicly discussed."

The prime minister earlier announced Ottawa would try again to reach agreement with the provinces on a formula for amending the constitution.

The constitution — the British North America Act — now can be amended only with final approval from the British Parliament.

There have been discussions with the provinces, going back to 1925, on formulas for bringing the constitution to Canada.

Trudeau said in the Commons Tuesday there have been "many dozens" of proposals and his mind is open to all of them. But it would be "quite a period" before he could indicate what the "general direction will be."

HE TRIED FOR BIRDIE BUT GOT AN AIRPLANE

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — A tee shot on the 12th hole of the Fort Washington golf course beamed a crop-dusting pilot who was spraying the fairways. "I was dazed for a minute," said David Hughes, the pilot. The ball soared through the plane's windshield and bounced off his helmet, he said.

"I circled a few times and when my head cleared set down on this little airstrip in Papagni's vineyard," the flyer said. Course officials said 24-year-old golfer, Mike Bakula, of Fresno, offered profuse apologies.

Reagan May Switch Again

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan indicated Tuesday he is considering heading a third party in the 1976 presidential elections.

Asked at his weekly news conference if he would put principle over party if the Republican party did not live up to its promises, the Republican governor replied, "Oh, yes."

A former Democrat, Reagan reminded reporters that he had left that party because of principle in the 1960s.

"There have been moments in time when a new party emerges," Reagan added.

"Whether we've reached that point, I don't know. Time will tell."

Reagan's discussion of a possible emergence of a third party was the strongest indication yet that he might consider leading such an effort in 1976 if his own party fails to heed what he has described as the mandate given to former president Richard Nixon in the 1972 election.

prince probably will serve a term of one to two years after the retirement in about five years of Sir John Kerr, the current governor-general.

OTTAWA — T. C. Douglas, who will be 70 this Sunday, broke three ribs in a weekend fall from the roof of his cottage. His wife said Tuesday the MP for Nanaimo-Chowan-The Islands was putting a cover over the chimney of the building when he fell eight to 10 feet onto a stone terrace.

DES MOINES — The Shady Grove store will have to install a new outhouse and new inside plumbing or close down, the Iowa Attorney-General's office said Tuesday.

The state's law office agreed with the Department of Agriculture order requiring the new installations at the 88-year-old country store in Buchanan County.

State law requires that facilities which sell beer must have separate rest room facilities for men and women. Mardene Fink, whose family has operated the store since 1886, said she has located another outhouse, but cannot afford to install hot and cold water plumbing.

MELBOURNE — The Herald says Prince Charles is likely to be appointed the next governor-general of Australia. The newspaper says the lip began the last leg of a three-day visit to Canada today with a brief tour of sites for equestrian events at the 1976 Olympic Games. The Duke, president of the International Equestrian federation, arrived from Gagetown, N.B., late Tuesday after a visit to the Royal Canadian regiment, of which he is colonel-in-chief.

WASHINGTON — As a surprise for their 26th wedding anniversary Tuesday, President Ford arranged for his wife Betty to be serenaded from the White House lawn by singer Tennessee Ernie Ford. The first lady, recovering from breast cancer surgery, was clad in a lounging robe as she stood arm-in-arm with the president, smiling and clapping for the country singer and the 26 young people with whom he toured the Soviet Union.

Earlier, the president and his wife had a quiet lunch in their living quarters, where he gave her a pin of the presidential seal encrusted with diamonds. Betty gave the president a silver-plated football, the ball used when Ford played centre in the College All-Star Game of 1934.

VERSAILLES, France — A French court today found two men guilty of transporting counterfeit United States dollars to France from Canada, but released a woman in the case. Police testified that 800,000 in bogus dollars was found in the baggage of Dina Messina, 35, Francis Hubert, 40, and Michele LeBour, at their Paris hotel in June, 1972. Miss LeBour told the court that she did not know how much money was involved and that she had agreed to transport the money "at the request of Hubert who wanted to buy a restaurant in France."

Miss LeBour was acquitted. Hubert was sentenced to five years in prison, with three years suspended, so that he can be freed immediately. Messina was sentenced to five years in prison, with two years suspended.

90TH BIRTHDAY MARKED IN JAIL

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Nelson Mitchell's body has been punctured three times by bullets, he has been arrested 42 times and is serving his fifth term in the Texas State Penitentiary.

His convict friends call him "Big Track" because he wears size 13 shoes. Officers call him "Nine Lives."

"I just don't like people messin' with me," Mitchell said of his previous trouble with the law.

But if he was tough on the outside, he is a model prisoner on the inside. Warden Harry Husbands gave Mitchell a cake on his birthday this year and he just about has the run of the place.

"Nine Lives" is 90 years old and is serving four years for a shootout with a Fort Worth policeman who tried to interfere in an argument Mitchell was having with a friend in 1973.

"I recovered from the wounds to stand trial and it was then that officers gave me the other nickname — 'Nine Lives,'" he said.

Mitchell is six feet, three inches tall, weighs 165 and with broad shoulders and erect bearing could pass for between 50 and 60. He takes care of the trees and flowers in the prison yard and points with pride to a tall pecan tree.

"I planted that 50 years ago," he said.

Practised Hand at Italy's Helm

ROME (AP) — The man who will try to forge Italy's 37th post-war government from the country's squabbling political parties comes equipped with a background in economics, a taste for political warfare and an aversion to communism.

A minor Fanfani also brings a rare expertise to the job of premier — he's been there three times before.

The 66-year-old leader of the Christian Democrats was picked unanimously by his party to try to revive the centre-left coalition led by Mariano Rumor that collapsed Oct. 3. All Italian premiers since 1945 have been members of the Roman Catholic-backed party.

President Giovanni Leone officially asked Fanfani Monday to form a government, and the "little warrior" plunged into negotiations with the Socialists and Social Democrats.

Fanfani pledged "austere measures" to help Italy's economy, now suffering from an annual inflation rate of about 20 per cent.

His nomination apparently ended, at least for now, the possibility of government participation by the Communist party.

After the collapse of Rumor's government, largely in cabinet squabbles over "the Communist question," many observers thought a viable new government could no longer deny a share of power to the Communists, who constitute Italy's second-largest party.

Fanfani said his chances of reviving the former coalition were "not encouraging."

At five-foot-four, Fanfani has stood as a giant in Italy's history since the Second World War.

Trained as an economist, he entered politics soon after the war and quickly rose through a series of cabinet posts until he was named premier in January 1954.

He returned to head the government from July, 1958, to January, 1959, and again from July, 1960, to April 1963.

CAN'T RALLY PEOPLE SO THEY SET BOMBS

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A police intelligence officer says radical groups have switched to planting bombs because "no one shows up for their demonstrations."

Berkeley Police Lt. Paul Lawler said Tuesday that if Mario Savio, a free speech movement leader, showed up at the University of California campus today "he would be a complete flop."

"They have found out they can't rally enough people so they're taking a different tack," Lawler said of current movements.

Lawler was commenting on bombs found over the weekend at two Safeway stores and the company's headquarters. A group called the Chicano Liberation Front claimed responsibility for planting the devices.

Canadian Indians At Lat-Am Talks

—ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — Indian leaders from six Latin American countries and Canada issued a 23-page document Tuesday calling for wholesale return of Indian lands.

Scores of representatives of Indian tribes from Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Ecuador, Paraguay and Venezuela met near here this week behind closed doors for the Southern Cone American Indian Parliament.

Canadian Indians participated as observers.

Chief Simeon Gimenez, who said he represented the Canadian National Brotherhood of Indians, invited fellow chiefs to meet in Canada next year.

At that meeting the Indians plan to discuss how to gain representation in the United Nations.

"The American Indian is the thousand-year proprietor of the land," the report said. "The land is the Indian's."

DIALECTS USED
The document, in Spanish, Portuguese and four Indian dialects, listed major Indian grievances and urged a closer tie among Indians "in the struggle for the reindication of our rights."

Whatever attack against our community or any one of its members," leaders of the Indian parliament said, "is felt by us as a blow against all American Indians."

The document also called for an end to what it termed Indian extermination.

In the future, it said, "it will be more difficult to continue exterminating our brothers."

The Indian parliament, held in the town of San Bernardino 20 miles north of Asuncion, is supported by the Inter-American Foundation, the World Council of Churches and the Catholic University of Paraguay.

Of which every person is hereby required to take notice and govern himself accordingly. GIVEN under my hand at Victoria, British Columbia, this tenth (10th) day of October, 1974.
Gordon Hayward,
Returning Officer.

U.K. Economy Hopes Rising

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson met Britain's union and industrial leaders Tuesday night and both sides left No. 10 Downing Street confident that the new-Labor government is steering a straight course towards solution of Britain's economic crisis.

The moderate tone of Wilson's first post-election pronouncements "already" has brought cheer to London's financial district and by close of trading Tuesday the Stock Exchange index of leading stocks was up 8.5 points at 2057, the best increase in more than a month.

After a 70-minute meeting between government ministers and members of the Confederation of British Industry (CBI) Tuesday night, informed sources said Wilson had promised urgent moves to improve business liquidity and profitability.

These measures will be included in an anti-inflation budget to be announced by Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey on Nov. 12.

The Pledge to industry is expected to produce another bright day on the stock exchange today.

There was also hopeful reaction from leaders of the Trades Union Congress (TUC) who met Wilson and his ministers immediately before the CBI meeting.

After the meeting, TUC General-Secretary Len Murray said it has been agreed that although Britain's economic problems are considerable there is no need for despair.

"What we have to do together is replace despair with determination," he said.

"This was the strong theme running through our discussions."

Wilson's meetings with the trade union and industrial leaders were set against the background of a financial crisis facing the British banking system, Jessel Securities.

Jessel asked that trading in its stock be suspended on the Stock Exchange Friday, saying that one of its insurance offshoots might be unable to meet commitments.

Earlier Friday the prime minister met with his cabinet to establish priorities in Britain's battle against inflation.

As Wilson was meeting with the trade union and industrial leaders at his official residence here, Conservative Opposition Leader Edward Heath called on the Labor government to repair relationships with Britain's friends abroad, particularly those in Europe.

"We need them. They want us. Yet today they watch us sadly, waiting for us to join them in the struggle for world stability and global sanity," Heath said.

In a radio-television broadcast in response to a similar broadcast by Wilson on Monday.

Heath said: "I will continue to do all I can to hold Europe and ourselves together, but Europe won't go on waiting for ever. Nor will our allies—however patient they may be—put up for long with the uncertainty over Britain's defences."

Art Young said "quite a few" applications for the job were received but only nine were worth examining closely. Three men, all from B.C., and possibly a fourth from out of province, will be brought to Victoria for interviews, he said.

The post has been vacant since August when John Forrester, the region's first director of hospital planning, resigned to take a position with the Alberta government.

The job involves initiating and co-ordinating regional development of hospitals and the next person to hold it will work with the regional board's new hospital and health planning commission, a 12-member body being formed.

Planner Applicants Narrowed

The chairman of the Capital regional hospital board said today he hopes appointment of a new planner can be announced within four weeks.

Art Young said "quite a few" applications for the job were received but only nine were worth examining closely. Three men, all from B.C., and possibly a fourth from out of province, will be brought to Victoria for interviews, he said.

ALTA. AD 'SEXIST'

CALGARY (CP) — Grant Nofley, leader of Alberta's New Democratic Party, said Tuesday the province's tourism minister is trying to be Canada's answer to Playboy magazine publisher Hugh Hefner by using advertisements to promote tourism which exploit women.

Nofley said a Travel Alberta television commercial sponsored by the government is sexist and "an insult to every woman in the province."

The advertisement is one in a series depicting Alberta as the place "where the action is."

At one point, a woman who is being embraced by her male companion says "no matter what kind of action he's got in mind, Alberta's got it."

"Depicting women as sexual bait to attract tourists to Alberta is an insult to every woman in the province," said Nofley, a first-term M.L.A. from Spirit River and the only member of the NDP in the legislature.

Representatives of Calgary women's groups didn't seem to be as upset about the advertisement as Nofley, however.

Dr. Ruth Gorman, a women's rights advocate here, said she couldn't let too excited about the ad.

"The fact that a young man is also being used in the commercial would indicate that women are not being singled out in the ad," she said.

Joni Chorney, president of the Calgary branch of the Council of Women, said "I guess seeing something offensive in the ad lies in the eye of the beholder."

Mudslide Cuts Land Links To Rain-Soaked P. Rupert

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — All land links to this west coast city were cut and power was out for 5½ hours Tuesday after a mudslide struck Highway 16 about 60 miles east of here.

A ministry of transport spokesman said the nearby airport was still functioning.

British Columbia Hydro officials said the slide severed the main power line supplying the city. Power was first knocked out from 10:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. until the auxiliary system was turned on. The city was again without power from noon to 5 p.m. when the auxiliary broke down and had to be repaired.

Auxiliary systems at the city's hospitals continued to function throughout the day.

An RCMP spokesman here said that everything had gone smoothly during the power failures and there had been no accidents due to the shortage.

He said the RCMP handled Tuesday's problems with its normal force and calling upon volunteers was unlikely.

RCMP said the highway may open today.

A Hydro spokesman at Kitimat, about 80 miles southeast of here, said temporary repairs to the power line would be attempted today but permanent repairs would take longer.

Bill Warring, a Hydro line supervisor, said making repairs on the line would be difficult as the line is in a canyon off Highway 16 and is made more inaccessible by bridge washouts between Terrace and the break site.

More than two inches of rain fell within 24 hours and the weather office predicted more rain for today and Thursday.

A Canadian National Railway spokesman said the line

1970 U.S. Report Urged African Tilt

By MURRAY MARDER

WASHINGTON, (WP) — The Nixon White House in 1970 secretly endorsed the "selective relaxation" of U.S. policy toward Southern Africa's white-ruled regimes during the explosive black independence drive, according to newly-disclosed information.

An unprecedented inside look at how Nixon administration strategists grappled with the conflicting goals of U.S. economic self-interests vs. African self-determination has now become available. The basic secret report, known as National Security Study memorandum 39, never intended for public use, is certain to have international and domestic repercussions.

The state department has officially declined to discuss the report, prepared under the direction of Henry Kissinger, when he had the single hat of presidential national security adviser. But no matter what the report recommended or what the White House did about it, the state department insisted, there was no "tilt" of American policy toward African white supremacy governments.

Less officially, state department sources are making a more sophisticated attempt to dispel the "tilt" charge, out of concern over the consequence that it may have here and abroad.

In view of the conservative, pro-business attitude in the Nixon White House, these sources contend, "there was little change" that actually took place from the pro-self-determination policy toward Africa first set by the Kennedy administration.

"Where did this (tilt) occur?" asked one state department official. "I think the proof is hard to find. I think it is a credit to us that we were able to maintain the policies that existed for a decade basically intact."

Others argue that with the escalating sweep of the black independence drive in Africa in recent years, any retrogression of U.S. support for it, or even holding to a stand-pat position, amounted to "tilting" backward.

In any event, disclosure of the contents of NSM 39 brings to public view insiders' blunt strategic assessments of the competing U.S. interests in Africa, assessments that no nation would normally make out loud.

The charges of U.S. "tilt" toward the minority white regimes of Africa were aired last week by columnist Jack Anderson and by Washington freelance writer Tad Szulc, writing in the October issue of Esquire magazine. Both quoted Form NSM 39 plus other sources. Anderson made available to The Washington Post a copy of NSM 39.

This intergovernmental study, 71 pages plus appendices about half as long, is dated Aug. 15, 1969, the year that President Nixon came into office. A presidential decision order based on the secret study was issued in early 1970, variously reported as January and February.

According to several sources, the recommendation for a "selective relaxation" of U.S. policy toward southern Africa's white regimes was made by Kissinger, primarily based on what was known as "option two" among five choices offered for a new policy.

The report is based on "the policy dilemma within the U.S. government" over what is described as "the inherent equivocation" in American policy.

This was perceived as the problem of how to protect American "economic, scientific and strategic interests" in Africa and yet maintain "political credibility" for declared U.S. policy, in a manner in which "the political costs will not be excessive."

The policy choice made by the White House was reportedly based in considerable part on the following premise from Option Two in the strategy review:

"The whites are here to stay (in southern Africa) and the only way that constructive change can come about is through them. There is no hope for the blacks to gain the political rights they seek through violence, which will only lead to chaos and increased opportunities for the Communists."

"We can, by selective relaxation of our stance toward the white regimes, encourage some modification of their current racial and colonial policies and through more substantial economic assistance to the black states (a total of about $5 million annually in technical assistance to the black states) help to draw the groups together and exert some influence on both for peaceful change."

"Our tangible interests form a basis for our contacts in the region, and these can be maintained at an acceptable political cost."

The region involved in the study is composed of Zambia, Malawi, Rhodesia, Mozambique, Angola, South Africa, Southwest Africa (Namibia), Swaziland, Lesotho and Botswana.

The report underscored that "Some four million whites in South Africa, Namibia (Southwest Africa), southern Rhodesia, Angola and Mozambique (the latter two Portuguese territories) dominate 30 million blacks."

In the United States, the report cautioned, "although Congress as a whole does not show substantial interest in southern Africa, an increasing number of congressmen and senators are concerned about our relations, particularly with South Africa, and are willing to support resolutions or inquiries about U.S. policy."

"The problem" for U.S. strategy, said the study prepared by the National Security Council Interdepartmental Group for Africa, was bluntly this:

"1. Our interests in the white states to the degree they are seen as at least tacit acceptance of racism affect our standing with African and other states."

"2. The prospect of increasing violence in the area growing out of black insurgency and white reprisal could jeopardize our interests in the future."

The secret review described U.S. interests in the region as "important but not vital."

They include, the reports said, U.S. investments, "primarily in South Africa, (which) total about $1 billion and our trade yields a highly favorable balance of payments advantage."

The United States, it was emphasized, "has an important interest in the orderly marketing of South Africa's gold production which is important to the successful operation of the two-tier gold price system" then, although no longer, in effect.

Strategically, the report cited the geographic importance of the southern African region, "particularly with the closing of the Suez Canal and the increased Soviet activity in the Indian Ocean."

"The U.S. uses overflight and landing facilities for military aircraft in the Portuguese territories (of Angola and Mozambique, which also provided the United States with port facilities) and South Africa," the report noted.

American facilities in South Africa also included "a missile tracking station under a classified agreement," plus a U.S. space-tracking facility which in 1973 was ordered to be closed down in stages.

No-Knock Law Repeal Voted in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States House of Representatives has voted to repeal a controversial no-knock law which allows federal agents to search residences in some instances without identifying themselves.

The measure was sent to the Senate Tuesday on a voice vote.

The 1970 law was designed to crack down on drug offenders. It allows federal judges to issue warrants authorizing justice department agents to break into residences unannounced for searches in cases where the property being sought might be destroyed or the agents would be in danger if they knocked.

In calling for repeal of the law earlier this year, the House commerce committee said there have been cases in which justice department agents "in their eagerness to crush illicit drug trafficking, have mistakenly broken into the homes and apartments of dozens of innocent families, terrorizing the occupants and heavily damaging property."

If you've suffered long enough with hemorrhoids, try new Anusol Plus.

Suffering with hemorrhoids for even five minutes can be five minutes too long.

However, if you've put up with hemorrhoid pain on and off for several years now, new Anusol Plus is here to bring you some long overdue relief.

First it contains an anesthetic ingredient. This numbs the maddening itch of hemorrhoids. It cools that searing, burning sensation. And it eases away even severe hemorrhoid pain. And, while it does all this almost as soon as you apply it, the relief it gives will last for hours.

Then, once the pain is looked after, new Anusol Plus does several things to help your hemorrhoids heal.

roid swelling and inflammation. A soothing, cooling emollient guards tender hemorrhoid tissues against further irritation.

And two antiseptic ingredients help to curb infection. What's more, Anusol Plus comes in a silky smooth cream form. So it goes on gently, without adding to your suffering.

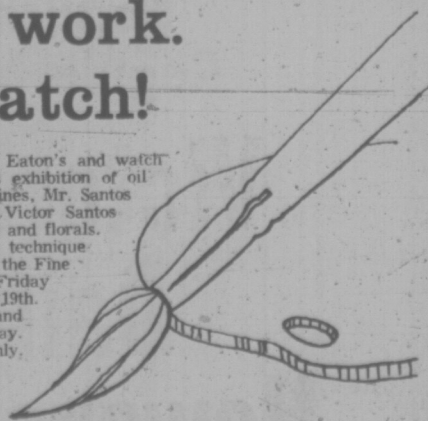

When new Anusol Plus looks after hemorrhoid symptoms this well, don't you think it's time that you tried it? Sold at pharmacies only, in cream or suppository, ask for new Anusol Plus. It's the hemorrhoid medication that says you've suffered long enough.

Gov't Ads Cancelled In Struck Paper

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Saskatchewan's New Democratic Party government has cancelled 75 per cent of its advertising with the Times-Herald for the duration of a strike by composing room and press room employees.

Advertisements provided under statute and provisions of the Public Service Act, such as legal ads, tenders and employment opportunities, will be exempt from the cancellation, the government said.

Labor Minister Gordon Snyder said Tuesday that ads involved in the cancellation order are those for the departments of continuing education and agriculture, Saskatchewan Telephone, Saskatchewan Power Corp., Saskatchewan Hospital Services, the Human Resources Development Agency and other government offices.

The Times-Herald was notified of the government's decision last Thursday by the agencies involved, J. A. C. Struthers and Dunskey Advertising Agency.

Snyder said the action had been under consideration for some time and came about because of a government wish to remain aloof from the situation.

"We think at a time when the strike is in progress it is inappropriate for us to mass advertise. Mass advertising would make it appear that the government is supporting one side or another."

Police Seize Betting Cash

CALGARY (CP) — A Calgary man has been ordered to appear in provincial court to face charges of bookmaking and illegally recording bets after police seized about $22,000 in recorded bets in a raid on a Calgary apartment.

Police declined to name the man but said the raid netted bookmaking articles and bets on Canadian and American football games, hockey and baseball games, as well as local horse races.

Bets ranged from $2 to $1,000.

Clean-Up Costly

EDMONTON, Alta. (CP) — The potential cost of curbing pollution at a North Western Pulp and Paper Ltd. mill here have doubled over estimates of three months ago and a study on methods of easing emissions is not yet complete, a company official said Tuesday.

Gordon Wilkinson, company controller, said in July the company would spend about $10 million to reduce water and air pollution at the mill but now puts the figure at around $20 million and says "costs are going out of sight."

Competition in Air

EDMONTON (CP) — Leth-

bridge-based Time Air Ltd. goes into competition with CP Air with its Grande Prairie, Edmonton service and with Pacific Western Airlines with its Edmonton-Calgary service Sunday when Time begins flying the two routes.

Stubb Ross, Time president, said the firm had invested $300,000 in a Fairchild F-27 for the Edmonton-Calgary run. Time will use an 18-passenger Twin Otter between Edmonton and Grande Prairie.

'Few Benefits'

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta will derive few benefits from investment in the Urban Transportation Development Corporation, Werner Schmidt, leader of the provincial Social Credit Party, said Tuesday.

Alberta's, as yet undefined, monetary commitment to the corporation is a subsidy to eastern Canadian cities to help solve their urban transportation problems, he said.

Schmidt said Edmonton and Calgary are not big enough urban centres and will not benefit from any new technology developed by the agency.

Victoria Premiums Cheapest

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Automobile insurance premiums in Victoria next year will still be the lowest in B.C. despite discounts announced Tuesday for all other regions of the province.

Transport Minister Robert Strachan said Victoria's 1975 rates will remain the same as this year and will compare favorably with private insurance company premiums across Canada.

But while Victoria rates stay the same, government revenues will be pumped into Autoplan to provide cheaper insurance for all other areas of the province.

Discounts on last year's premiums, ranging as high as $48, will apply to motorists in other areas of the province as the first step towards establishing a flat-rate insurance across B.C., with Victoria's rates serving as the base.

Victoria will benefit, however, from a 20 per cent across-the-board reduction in premiums for all commercial and recreational vehicles in B.C.

Strachan, who announced the rate structure in his role as president of the Insurance Corporation of B.C., said it was too early for ICBC to start making any changes in its rate structure.

So the actual premium structure will remain the same next year "except for a few anomalies that were ironed out" and the discounts will simply be subtracted from the old premiums.

Discounts for private vehicles are calculated by taking half the average difference in rates between Victoria and each area in the province and will amount to as much as $48 in northern B.C. for newer cars and those carrying collision insurance.

NEWS BRIEFS

TRICKY DICKY ALL SOLD OUT

CHICAGO (UPI) — Richard Nixon is picking up popularity among the trick-or-treat set. Mrs. Frieda Fenster, owner of a Chicago novelty shop, has already sold out her supply of Nixon masks, though the big business doesn't start until two weeks before Halloween. "All the supply houses seem to be out of them, too," she said. "I guess it's the Watergate thing, or the resignation, or both, that made the difference this year. We only sold a few last year."

Food Kills 3

LA RONGE, Sask. (CP) — RCMP have reported three persons dead and another in serious condition in hospital after an apparent case of food poisoning near La Ronge in northern Saskatchewan. The victims, who became ill after supper Saturday night at a cabin 20 miles north of La Ronge, are George Stothers, 64, of Shawinigan Lake, Patrick Stothers, 14, of Regina and Donald Thomson, 14, of Saskatoon.

Prime Rate Cut

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada said Tuesday that it will lower its prime lending rate to 12 1/4 per cent from 12 3/4 to U.S. customers, effective today. The bank said the new rate reflects "the cost to us" of U.S. funds.

'Ruinous' Quake

FAENZA, Italy (UPI) — The Rendani Observatory said today it recorded a ruinous earthquake, probably centred near the Soviet-Iranian border and lasting more than two hours. "The effects of the phenomenon must have been extremely ruinous," it said.

A New Forces 'Elite'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Defence Minister James Richardson surprised the armed forces Tuesday, announcing that while creating an elite force the government will let recruitment lag.

He also announced in the Commons that because the size of the forces, now numbering 83,000 persons, must drop because of increased costs, the tasks they perform also must be cut.

He gave no indication of what chores will be cut.

Gen. Jacques Dextraze, chief of defence staff, whose effective military strength now is reported to be down to 78,000 persons, said it is up to the minister to decide what tasks are to be cut.

Richardson said the forces must be well paid, well equipped, well trained, well housed, well fed, well disciplined, well led and well motivated.

"In other words, we need an elite force that is proud of the job it is doing for Canada — a force with a high morale to which many more Canadians would be glad to belong."

That remark came after he said the forces will be reduced by not replacing all of the 8,000 or 9,000 persons who leave the forces each year.

"We cannot achieve some of our objectives in a few months or perhaps in some cases in a few years, but at least we should recognize the concept, and have the vision of the kind of Canadian armed forces that we want to build, and we should be working steadily toward that achievement."

He spoke through a continuous stream of catcalls from Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East), whose constituency has a large armed forces population. "Nonsense," the MP called at one stage.

Richardson said the main tasks of the forces are defence of sovereignty, commitments to the North America defence system (NORAD), commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and peacekeeping.

He said he and Gen. Dextraze agree that the forces now are overworked and any reduction in personnel would have to be accompanied by a reduction of tasks.

There has been no cut in the defence budget. The 1974-75 expenditures were estimated to be $2.5 billion — $100 million higher than originally budgeted.

The ratio of 67 per cent of the budget for personnel and only 11 per cent to equipment must be changed, he said. To do that personnel costs had to be reduced.

He said his proposals are designed to help those already in the forces and to improve their capability. The payroll

Meanwhile, George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) warned Tuesday any move to further reduce Canada's commitment for a defence force in Europe would totally destroy whatever reservoir of goodwill this country has left with the members of the European Economic Community.

He said he and Gen. Dextraze agree that the forces now are overworked and any reduction in personnel would have to be accompanied by a reduction of tasks.

Head Out To Sea: Abductor

By DEREK SIDENIUS

With a 30-30 rifle in one hand and a bottle of Tia Maria in the other the abductor of an American couple in their 24-foot sailboat from Victoria Inner Harbor Sunday night ordered his captors "to head out to sea."

He said he didn't want to go to the U.S. or Canada because he was wanted by the authorities in both places. Victoria police Det. Ed Hardy said today, releasing further details of the bizarre incident.

Hardy said the abductor sat in the cockpit after ordering the couple into the boat's cabin and swilled the liquor mixed with milk throughout the night-long ordeal.

At one point he fired the gun in the air as a warning to the boat owner — a 35-year-old Bremerton man — to keep still.

"Do as I say or I'll blow your heads off," he told the man and his 28-year-old female companion.

The harrowing journey ended 14 hours later when the couple steered the boat into shore about seven miles northwest of Jordan River while the abductor, chilled and weary, had gone to sleep in the cabin with his gun across his lap.

Hardy said the couple were afraid to approach the man and decided to abandon ship.

The owner let the woman off on some rocks and then sailed the boat in the opposite direction.

But as he was trying to round a rocky point the boat ran aground and veered back in the direction where the woman had got off.

He jumped overboard and swam for shore.

Hardy said the abductor woke up and tried to sail the boat out into the strait.

The woman whose legs had been badly bruised from slipping on the rocks lay in the bushes and watched the boat pass by. The abductor was at the helm and fired a couple of rounds wildly into the bushes.

The boat went around a corner into a shallow bay

Samson Faces Charges

MONTREAL (CP) — Former RCMP constable Robert Samson was arraigned today on two charges arising from the July 26 explosion of a small bomb at the home of Melvin Dobrin, president of Steinberg's Ltd.

Samson was charged with making an explosive device, an offence punishable by five years, and placing it near the Dobrin residence, punishable by 14 years.

Crown Prosecutor Fernand Côté said he had no objection to the release of Samson pending preliminary hearing, tentatively set for Nov. 12, provided certain conditions were met.

Earlier, Fire Commissioner Cyrille Delage ruled the explosion "is of criminal origin" and recommended that the former constable "face criminal charges."

Samson, suffered injuries including partial hearing loss in the explosion, and is currently serving a 60-day prison sentence after being cited for contempt of court for refusing to testify when the inquiry opened in late August.

Samson, who said he was at the Dobrin house after receiving an anonymous telephone tip that he would find something interesting there, has since been dismissed from the anti-terrorist squad of the RCMP.

"It's one of the most complex investigations I can remember in my many years experience as fire commissioner," Delage said. "At one point during the inquiry, the investigators and myself wrote down 41 possible motives for the bombing."

"I believe we've eliminated 39 and we won't be able to eliminate the 40th unless we find William Obront."

Obront, a Montreal businessman, has been described in police testimony at the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime as a member of the underworld. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest last week.

Youth Charged in Death

An 18-year-old youth was charged in Victoria provincial court today with murder punishable by life in prison in connection with the stabbing death of Stanford Wray, 53, of 1296 Palmer Close Tuesday.

Curtis William Christie of 1303 Gladstone was remanded in custody to Friday to fix a date for preliminary hearing.

Police arrested Christie at a house in Vic West early Tuesday evening. He offered no resistance and was not armed.

Wray, a faller for a logging company in the Nanaimo area, was found about 2 a.m. Tuesday on the sidewalk of Grant Street and Fernwood Road. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Victoria General Hospital.

Also in provincial court today Mark Kendall, 19, of 5178 Old West Saanich Road, charged with manslaughter in the death early Saturday of Gordon Robert Smith, 28, of 7874 Lochside, was released from jail in his own recognition in the sum of $2,500.

Prosecutor Gordon MacDonald did not oppose Kendall's release noting the youth was a local resident without any previous convictions.

He was remanded to Thursday to set a date for preliminary hearing.

Smith was found on the parking lot of the Royal Oak Inn, 4616 Elk Lake Road, early Saturday and died shortly after being taken to hospital.

It is believed a fight occurred but Saanich police declined to say how Smith died.

Police continue to ask for assistance in locating any person who may have knowledge about an incident which took place in the parking lot 1 a.m. Saturday.

Beryl Threatens To Resign

OTTAWA (CP) — Beryl Plumptre said Tuesday she will resign as chairman of the food prices review board if the federal government attempts to limit her power to recommend action on food prices.

She said in an interview it was "absolutely essential" that the board be allowed to recommend government action when needed.

"Otherwise, what's the point?"

Mrs. Plumptre was commenting on statements made by former consumer affairs minister Herb Gray, who told the Commons recently that the government apparently was trying to trim the board's powers.

CALVES BURIED

CURTIS, Wis. (AP) — Protesters low cattle prices, farmers shot or slit the throats of 658 calves and buried the carcasses in trenches.

"I'm tired of rhetoric," said Steve Pavich, president of the National Farmers Organization (NFO) in Wisconsin. "There is a problem out here in rural America and something has to be done about it."

"None of us like it," one farmer said. "But if they don't change soon they might as well shoot the American farmer and throw him in the pit."

The farmers say the price of feed grain and other costs have jumped while meat prices have plummeted.

town talk

A jolly old lady from South Pender Island brought a burst of raucous laughter to the turgid proceedings of the legislature's municipal matters committee at its real property taxation hearings last week.

Mrs. Winifred A. Spaulding was describing her wild scrub land backed by a steep rise of terrain contributing to its unsuitability for development. Such land should remain as a haven for man and wildlife, she contended, and not be subject to crippling taxes that force owners to sell out.

Besides, she said, who would want to build on land like her's? "... that mountain at the back. I don't think even Block Bros. could put a house on it!"

It's a dog's life — for dog owners who are honest enough to go to city hall and buy a licence. It's five dollars a year (per male dog) for the little white tag, and there's no discount for the year only having a couple of months to run.

However, for those people prepared to let Rover run the risk of the dog catcher until the end of December, from Jan. 1 to March 31, the tag costs a dollar less "to encourage people to buy them early," a city hall clerk explains.

So why don't they knock $2 off the price of a '75 tag bought now, and three dollars off a '76 tag...

What hope is there for the new postal codes if such an august body as the Victoria Chamber of Commerce isn't bothering with them, an anonymous caller asked the Times several days ago.

Seems the chamber's list of members includes addresses but no codes. A chamber secretary countered by saying the members hadn't bothered to send in their new codes, but she promised that "one of these years" the directory will include them.

An actor-veteran of the Stratford Festival and other Canadian theatre centres, is in Victoria this week to appear as one-half of the cast of Bastion Theatre's season opener, The Fourposter. Ted Follows' youthful appearance might contradict the term, "veteran" but he bears a genuine scar that entitles him.

On the middle finger of his right hand is the mark of a wound inflicted by an over-zealous swordsman in a Canadian Players production of Othello. And who delivered this broadsword wound several years ago but Bastion's present artistic director, Edwin Stephenson.

Thanksgiving is only a memory but the turkey keep re-appearing — in sandwiches, in soup, in turkey a la king — a tribute to the bountiful size of this remarkable bird.

But wait a minute, A bird is supposed to fly. Can these plump giants really get airborne anymore?

No they can't, says Les Guy, sales manager for Maplewood Poultry Processors Ltd. on Sooke Road.

He estimates the biggest birds prepared for this Thanksgiving were about 30 pounds live weight.

Domestic turkeys "don't fly, they flap, they try," he says. "And when they get to be that big, they don't even try any more."

For generations, says Guy, the flight pattern of the domestic turkey has been the two or three feet between roosts.

Now, wild turkeys, between 12 and 15 pounds — they fly.

Apparently there's no place in modern office buildings for Greek ionic columns. The columns which once graced the entrance of the old Scott building at Douglas and Hillside have disappeared behind new walls as the $1 million renovation of the building continues.

"Seventy-five years from now someone will discover them again," says Douglas McDougall, property manager for Belmont Management Ltd., who is doing the renovation.

That's not all that's disappearing, he said — the Scott building will be renamed the Haworth Building.

"You can't be a rebel forever — it's too exhausting," says John Young, the former principal of Campbell River High School who was in the centre of an education storm for seven years.

Young has packed it in to become president in charge of the Cal-Van Auto Supply Store franchise for the Greater Victoria area. His Victoria store, the first one on Vancouver Island, officially opens Saturday.

Young, as principal, advocated a progressive approach, emphasizing freedom for students, including the right to be absent from class without the necessity of a note from parents and the right to smoke in the schoolyard.

"Now that's all over," says Young. "I do not intend to return to education. I have always been interested in repairing cars as a hobby and this is a new challenge for me."

Trustees 'Sick' on Sex Discrimination

Attitudes of Greater Victoria school board trustees to sex discrimination are "sick," says a member of the B.C. education department's advisory committee on sex discrimination.

"I think it is sick when discrimination is considered funny; there's something very sick," Mimi Robertson of 1149 Wychbury said Tuesday. She said sex discrimination is "very prevalent" in Victoria schools.

Robertson had suggested to the school board's administration committee that they invite Reva Dexter, newly-appointed special adviser on sex discrimination for B.C., to a board meeting.

The committee decided not to invite her.

"I'm not in favor of adding a glow to this particular topic," said Trustee Bill Ross. Inviting Dexter would only give more publicity to a topic that has already had considerable publicity, he said.

Trustee Dr. Philip Ney said he'd like Dexter to attend a meeting only "if she attended with a member of the opposite sex. In order to investigate sex discrimination," he said, "both a man and a woman should be appointed."

"Oh, come on now, we don't want any more appointments down there (at the provincial government)," replied Ross, laughing.

Trustee Lavinia Greenwood, also laughing, said the board may get more publicity by not meeting with Dexter than by meeting her.

Ney questioned how much discrimination there is against women, considering they live longer than men, own more real property, and have the most important job — raising children.

Trustee Dr. Hal Knight thought talking to Dexter might be useful.

"I think perhaps we could learn something," he said.

Robertson said the most obvious sex discrimination in local schools is in industrial education and home economics in junior high schools.

... 'very prevalent'

Few girls take industrial education, she said, and when they do "it's a powder puff course. They make knick-knacks and candles" while the boys learn electronics.

Girls continue to be steered into one kind of course, boys into another, she said.

Dexter has been appointed special adviser for a one-year term to study and advise on elimination of discrimination and sexual stereotyping in B.C. schools.

The advisory committee on sex discrimination represents different women's and teachers' groups and was appointed by Education Minister Eileen Daily last spring.

Cash Advance For Road

Developers of the Broadmead estate in Royal Oak have offered to advance Saanich $60,000 so they can reconstruct 1,600 feet of Royal Oak Drive, west of Ambleswood Drive, this fall.

Broadmead Farms Ltd. manager G. A. Rolston has suggested to municipal administrator Bill Tremayne that Broadmead carry out the road improvements, billing the municipality for its share of the roadwork costs.

Tremayne is "out-of-town" until Oct. 23 and public works committee chairman Ald. Sandy Noel expressed surprise Tuesday when the Broadmead proposal was included on the meeting's agenda.

Municipal engineer C. T. Warren said Tremayne was still negotiating terms with Broadmead but had asked the matter be aired. Warren said there was some urgency involved if the paving work was to be done in time this year.

In his proposal, Rolston states his company is aware that no council can commit another but asks the proposal be endorsed in principle.

The stretch of Royal Oak would be widened to 46 feet with four traffic lanes and have landscaped bays and specialty lighting.

The committee agreed that the Broadmead proposal be deferred until Tremayne's return. It will be thoroughly discussed at the first committee or council meeting after Tremayne has finalized his negotiations with the developers.

Lawyer Named Negotiator

Veteran management negotiator E. E. Pearman today was named as the bargaining co-ordinator for Greater Victoria municipalities and the Greater Victoria school board.

Civic leaders chose a bargaining co-ordinator 13 days ago but refused to name him, pending consultation with him.

All Canadian Union of Public Employees contracts expire at the end of this year and negotiations in a number of areas have started.

CUPE represents nearly all school board and civic employees in a wide variety of occupations, including clerical, maintenance staff and tradesmen.

Capital Regional Board chairman Jim Campbell said after a meeting this morning civic leaders are developing a contract proposal.

"We hope we'll meet the needs of employees in light of current conditions and make negotiations short and happy,"

Hire Laid-Off Men, Merchants Urged

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Bob McHaffie today urged local merchants to hire additional staff to make jobs available for men laid off because of the lumber slump.

"The situation within the lumber industry today is of grave concern," he told the annual meeting of the chamber at The Empress.

"The impact probably will not be as severe in the Victoria area as in more lumber-industry oriented communities but, none-the-less, we have many laid-off people and the prospects for them are gloomy, especially approaching the Christmas season."

He said Victoria area merchants should re-examine their work force and hire the men on a temporary basis where possible.

McHaffie also urged the four core municipalities to start a program of deferred work projects to assist the men.

Work that needs doing but has a low priority should be launched at periods when unemployment rises — such as the present layoffs.

"I would suggest that the municipalities, Canada Manpower and ourselves could surely design such a scheme."

"A deferred projects scheme would no doubt take some time to organize and activate, cool comfort for those already laid off," he said.

"However, it is in my opinion practical."

More than 350 men have been laid off in the Victoria area due to the lumber and plywood slump during the past month.

McHaffie said merchants and city councils should accept a responsibility to see the men find employment in this area.

The chamber president began his address by criticizing Mayor Peter Pollen for not giving the chamber "the support that it deserves."

He did not elaborate.

However, earlier the chamber criticized city hall for going ahead with the mall project without adequate consultation with merchants or the chamber executive.

McHaffie said that despite urgings from some members, the chamber would not get involved in partisan politics.

"We have been challenged to do this and I have noticed a certain temptation by some of our members to promote this."

"I am emphatically opposed to the idea — our position in this community is to work with government, any government," McHaffie said.

The chamber has historically had a policy of being non-partisan.

Junior High Report Called Poor Research

A report on junior high schools commissioned last spring by Greater Victoria school board is "poor research", Trustee Dr. Philip Ney said Tuesday.

Ney was responding to a suggestion that a committee of parents, students, trustees be set up to study the report, done by Dr. Christopher Hodgkinson of the University of Victoria.

"I really don't think we should discuss these recommendations because they really have no basis in fact," he said.

Hodgkinson's report is a collection of opinions of parents, students and teachers about junior high schools, not a scientific study of those schools, he said.

"We can't run a school district without proper research but it has to be proper research," Ney said.

"We must be prepared to spend a certain large sum of money on a proper study."

Hodgkinson's study, released last month, cost the board just under $2,000.

The board's administration committee decided to defer action on the study until its November meeting.

Kindergarten Milk Breaks To Dry Up

Kindergarten children in Greater Victoria schools will not be getting milk breaks as of January.

Board officials say increasing costs of milk and containers is not covered by the money charged parents.

There are also problems collecting money, they say, because there are always some parents who don't pay.

"When a payment is involved, it seems that those children most needing the milk because of poverty at home tend to be deprived of it at school — while those who need it least tend to get it," regional health officer Dr. A. S. Arnell said to Greater Victoria school board in a letter.

Inquest Adjourned

An inquest into the stabbing of two Esquimalt women was adjourned Tuesday to give police more time to gather evidence.

Coroner Edmund St. Jorre ordered the six-man jury to return Oct. 29 and said the inquest would continue until completed unless a charge of manslaughter or non-capital murder was laid in the meantime.

The inquest opened Sept. 12, six days after the bodies of Isobel Plume, 51, of 1153 Munro and Florence Bevan, 62, of 1324 Lyall were found in Ray's Food Market, 1325 Esquimalt.

Realignment Proposed For Shelbourne Street

In an effort to save some of the plane trees on Shelbourne between Torquay and Kenmore, Saanich municipal engineer Cliff Warren has suggested a realignment of road-widening purposes.

The realignment would save the trees on the west side but reduce to eight feet the distance between property lines on the west side and the sidewalk curbs.

This would be in comparison with the 21 feet distance between property lines and curbs on the east side of Shelbourne.

Public works committee chairman Ald. Sandy Noel said Tuesday Warren has gone to "great pains" to save the plane trees on the east side of the street.

Ald. Bill Campbell, while agreeing the realignment of the street was a good compromise, warned council could expect some opposition from residents on the west side.

Remembering the furor raised when plane trees were cut down for road-widening (the plane trees were planted as a memorial to Saanich's war dead), Ald. John McDonald commented:

"If we don't compromise,

all Saanich will be mad at us."

Warren said there were fewer homes on the west side and they were all set at least 20 feet back from the road.

He proposed the residents be approached and asked if they will allow Saanich to plant trees on their property to replace the plane trees that will be lost on their side of the street.

Warren said today the trees on the east side of Shelbourne, about 50, are much healthier and bushier because of pruning carried out by B.C. Hydro.

Garbage Scrap Nets Fine

Rita Estates Ltd., 305 Goldstream, was fined $50 after pleading guilty in provincial court Tuesday to a charge of failing to comply with an order to cover garbage.

Prosecutor Rick Isaac said a forest ranger complained in April about garbage on land near Goldstream Road.

The company was required to cover the garbage, which defence counsel Don Laughton said was left by campers unable to get into Goldstream Park.

The garbage was not covered until October.

Maximum penalty for the offence, a violation of the Pollution Control Act, is a fine of $1,000 plus $500 for each day an order is not carried out.

Community Correction Centres 'Refreshing' Change

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

When a veteran corrections officer says there is a "refreshing" change under way in the provincial jail system, the ears prick up and it's time to take notice.

After all, isn't a jail a jail? What kind of refreshing change can be made to that sombre syndrome?

Department of correction officials think they have an answer and it comes under the label of community corrections centres.

Officially, the first centre opened last week in the Vancouver suburb of Marpole.

But Victoria could lay claim to being first.

A brick house in front of the main prison building on Wilkinson Road has been operated as a de facto community corrections centre since April.

Corrections officials are enthusiastic about the new program which is designed to get low-risk, minimum-security prisoners out of the traditional jail setting, and into something more compact, more relaxed, and more conducive to rehabilitation.

None is more enthusiastic than Preston (Tim) Thimson, 39, newly-appointed director of community correction Centres on Vancouver Island.

Thimson has been charged with setting up two 20-inmate centres in Victoria by next spring, and another two in smaller communities up-island, possibly Duncan and Nanaimo.

A corrections officer for 17 years, Thimson calls the program "refreshing" and says

"from all the others I have seen this is the only one which returns people to their obligations to the community."

"I'm no softie," he adds. "I believe justice must be done, but I have seen a lot of people rotting away in jails."

By "a lot" he means more than 70 per cent of the prison population.

He doesn't feel jail is the answer for them "and many modern day penal reformers will agree."

"All jails do is manufacture culture carriers," he says. "They forcibly criminalize the inmate. In the big jail atmosphere is the subculture and creates a negative faction which has an insidious and terrifying influence on everybody that happens."

"We have got to stop throwing men in jail."

"Instead of the big institution, let's use our dollars at the pre-court level because the results are not forthcoming with those going through the judicial system we have now."

Because of the "unnatural setting of jails, he says, a person almost has to have a split personality to survive."

"If he wants to stay alive he has to get along with the other prisoners."

"If he wants to get out of jail he has to do things which will place him in good light with the parole board."

"He has to have a pretty strong personality to maintain any sense of individuality."

The solution he feels is smaller jail units, such as the community centres.

"What's it going to be like? Fantastic. No results have come close to the success rate of people completing a similar kind of program."

He is referring to the temporary absence program, from which the community correction centre scheme was born.

It was started in earnest three or four years ago and involved essentially two groups of prisoners: those not that criminally inclined, who were placed back into the community on work-or school-release bases, and those more criminally sophisticated, who were serving perhaps longer jail terms, and needed transitional help in returning to the community.

In the first group, the success rate has topped 95 per cent; in the second, 80 per cent.

Combined, the walkaway

... 'no softie'

Thimson feels there is nothing more productive than "hooking the man back up with responsibility."

"Why should we perpetuate dependency in the jails?"

Community corrections centres will be kept small, informal, homey. Though inmates' movements will be controlled and regulated 24 hours a day, the centre from the outside will look no different from any hostel.

They have been afforded a low status up to now, mainly because of public attitude.

"We will have to start educating the public and hope to appeal to their humanitarian instincts."

"The community has to be involved. We can't just throw our problems under the rug and forget about them."

The department is looking for suitable sites and working closely with municipal officials.

"The centres don't necessarily have to be houses in residential areas... they could be buildings in commercial or industrial zones."

"However, we want places that are not going to be a concern with neighbors."

But Thimson and the corrections branch are hoping the public will appreciate the reality of the penal reforms and the need to establish community-oriented programs.

"Up to now when a parolee gets out of jail he is largely dependent upon community agencies and public welfare."

"But those graduating from the community corrections centres will probably have money in their pocket... and what's more, some of their dignity restored."

Victoria Premiums Cheapest

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Automobile insurance premiums in Victoria next year will still be the lowest in B.C. despite discounts announced Tuesday for all other regions of the province.

Transport Minister Robert Strachan said Victoria's 1975 rates will remain the same as this year, and will compare favorably with private insurance company premiums across Canada.

But while Victoria rates stay the same, government revenues will be pumped into Autoplan to provide cheaper insurance for all other areas of the province.

Discounts on last year's premiums, ranging as high as 58, will apply to motorists in other areas of the province as the first step towards establishing a flat-rate insurance across B.C., with Victoria's rates serving as the base.

Victoria will benefit, however, from a 20 per cent, across-the-board reduction in premiums for all commercial and recreational vehicles in B.C.

Strachan, who announced the rate structure in his role as president of the Insurance Corporation of B.C., said it was too early for ICBC to start making any changes in its rate structure.

So the actual premium structure will remain the same next year "except for a few anomalies" that were "ironed out" and the discounts will simply be subtracted from the old premiums.

Discounts for private vehicles are calculated by taking half the average difference in rates between Victoria and each area in the province and will amount to as much as 48 in northern B.C. for newer cars and those carrying collision insurance.

In Vancouver the discount

TRICKY DICKY ALL SOLD OUT

CHICAGO (UPI) — Richard Nixon is picking up tickets among the trick-or-treat set. Mrs. Frieda Fensler, owner of a Chicago novelty shop, has already sold out her supply of Nixon masks, though the big business doesn't start until two weeks before Halloween.

"All the supply houses seem to be out of them, too," she said. "I guess it's the Watergate thing, or the resignation, or both, that made the difference this year. We only sold a few last year."

Food Kills 3

LA RONGE, Sask. (CPT) — RCMP have reported three persons dead and another in serious condition in hospital after an apparent case of food poisoning near La Ronge in northern Saskatchewan. The victims, who became ill after supper Saturday night at a cabin 20 miles north of La Ronge, are George Stothers, 61, of Shawanigan Lake, Patrick Stothers, 14, of Regina and Donald Thomson, 14, of Saskatoon.

Prime Rate Cuts

MONTREAL (CPT) — The Royal Bank of Canada said Tuesday that it will lower its prime lending rate to 12½ per cent from 12¾ to U.S. customers, effective today. The bank said the new rate reflects "the cost to us" of U.S. funds.

'Ruinous' Quake

LA RONGE, Sask. (UPI) — The Bendall Observatory said today it recorded a ruinous earthquake, probably centred near the Soviet-Canadian border and lasting more than two hours. "The effects of the phenomenon must have been extremely ruinous," it said.

A New Forces 'Elite'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Defence Minister James Richardson surprised the armed forces Tuesday, announcing that while creating an elite force the government will let recruitment lag.

He also announced in the Commons that because the size of the forces, now numbering 83,000 persons, must drop because of increased costs, the tasks they perform also must be cut.

He gave no indication of what chores will be cut. Gen. Jacques Dextraze, chief of defence staff, whose effective military strength now is reported to be down to 78,000 persons, said it is up to the minister to decide what tasks are to be cut.

Richardson said the forces must be well paid, well equipped, well trained, well housed, well fed, well disciplined, well led and well motivated.

"In other words, we need an elite force that is proud of the job it is doing for Canada — a force with a high morale to which many more Canadians would be glad to belong."

That remark came after he said the forces will be reduced by not replacing all of the 8,000 or 9,000 persons who leave the forces each year.

"We cannot achieve some of our objectives in a few months or perhaps in some cases in a few years, but at least we should recognize the concept and have the vision of the kind of Canadian armed forces that we want to build, and we should be working steadily toward that achievement."

He spoke through a continuous stream of catcalls from Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East), whose constituency has a large armed forces population.

"Nonsense," the MP called at one stage. Richardson said the main tasks of the forces are defence of sovereignty, commitments to the North American defence system (NORAD), commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and peacekeeping.

He said he and Gen. Dextraze agree that the forces now are overworked and any reduction in personnel would have to be accompanied by a reduction of tasks.

There has been no cut in the defence budget. The 1974-75 expenditures were estimated to be $2.5 billion — $100 million higher than originally budgeted.

The ratio of 67 per cent of the budget for personnel and only 11 per cent to equipment must be changed, he said. To do that personnel costs had to be reduced.

He said his proposals are designed to help those already in the forces and to improve their capability.

Meanwhile, George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) warned Tuesday any move to further reduce Canada's commitment for a defence force in Europe would totally destroy whatever reservoir of goodwill this country has left with the members of the European Economic Community.

In other parts of Canada, the same driver would be paying this year, according to Strachan:

—in Victoria: $166

—in Toronto: $181

—in St. John's: $241

—in Montreal: $253

Normal coverage for a 1973 Mustang, used for work and also used by an occasional driver under 25 would cost:

—in Victoria: $125

—in Vancouver: $169

—in Prince George: $232

In other parts of Canada, similar coverage for the car now costs, according to Strachan:

—in Edmonton: $337

—in Toronto: $375

—in St. John's: $504

—in Montreal: $534

A Better Deal Or They'll Quit

TORONTO (CPT) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Tuesday that unless he's able to get a better deal for farmers, consumers will "be out of luck, paying higher prices than ever for food."

He warned that farmers simply will stop producing food if they do not get the security and standard of living now available to most other members of society.

Whelan said a food prices forum "we simply will not have any farmers, or any food produced here in Canada, unless and until farmers begin to get better treatment in our society and our economy."

"If I succeed in getting a better deal for farmers, it's going to be the Canadian consumers who will reap the real, long-term benefits."

He said he sees no evidence that consumers are ready to make sacrifices necessary to pay more for their food.

help farmers and hungry people in other parts of the world.

He said that if Canadians were serious about helping the hungry, they would increase charity donations, build on rocky or swampy land instead of on the most productive "farmland," cut down on fertilizers for lawns and golf courses, and cook more carefully to avoid waste.

Whelan said that Metropolitan Toronto's two million inhabitants "throw out more than 300,000 tons of food scraps a year."

"That's 300 pounds of food per person per year."

Meanwhile, Lorne Nyström (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) warned Tuesday that many small beef producers will go out of business in the next two weeks unless Ottawa provides a crash economic aid program.

Police continue to ask for assistance in locating any person who may have knowledge about an incident which took place in the parking lot 1 a.m. Saturday.

BELFAST (AP) — Prisoners took the warden of Armagh Jail hostage today as riots spread in prisons throughout Northern Ireland.

Authorities said British army troops using tear gas are trying to free the seized warden at the women's prison in Armagh, 35 miles northwest of Belfast.

The Maze camp housing Irish Republican Army members was set afire and almost destroyed.

Protests against the Maze rioting spread to the streets of Northern Ireland's principal cities this morning and gangs of Roman Catholic youths roamed through the streets, burning automobiles, setting up street barricades and fighting police. Traffic in Belfast and Londonderry was paralyzed.

The disturbances were seen as sympathy protests against British policy of detaining without trial persons suspected of terrorist activities.

Merlyn Rees, Britain's minister responsible for Northern Ireland, called an emergency meeting with local officials to discuss alternative means of housing the estimated 1,900 suspected and convicted guerrillas held at the prison.

British troops were flown in by helicopter to quell the rioting. Security forces sealed off the area, and the army described the situation today as "relatively quiet."

Police sources said prisoners were herded into the remaining huts while the government decides what to do with them. Each of the huts, made of wood and galvanized tin, normally houses 15 to 20 prisoners.

Alternative detention sites being considered by the authorities include the Magilligan army camp in County Londonderry, 60 miles northeast of Belfast, and the prison ship Maidstone in Belfast harbor.

The Magilligan camp is already being used as a prison and is packed full. The Maidstone was previously used to detain political terrorists but was abandoned because of poor conditions aboard.

The Maze prison, formerly called Long Kesh, opened in September, 1971, after internment of suspected guerrillas without trial was introduced in an attempt to end the violence between Northern Ireland's extremist Roman Catholics and Protestants.

Most of the detainees in the Maze are members of the Irish Republican Army, a Roman Catholic-dominated guerrilla group fighting to drive the British out of Northern Ireland and unite it with the Irish republic. There are also about 80 Protestant gunmen detained in the camp.

Head Out To Sea: Abductor

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

With a 30-30 rifle in one hand and a bottle of Tia Maria in the other the abductor of an American couple in their 24-foot sailboat from Victoria Inner Harbor Sunday night ordered his captives "to head out to sea."

"He said he didn't want to go to the U.S. or Canada because he was wanted by the authorities in both places," Victoria police Det. Ed Hardy said today, releasing further details of the bizarre incident.

Hardy said the abductor sat in the cockpit after ordering the couple into the boat's cabin and swilled the liqueur mixed with milk throughout the night-long ordeal.

At one point he fired the gun in the air as a warning to the boat owner — a 35-year-old Bremerton man — to keep still.

"Do as I say or I'll blow your heads off," he warned.

The harrowing journey ended 14 hours later when the couple steered the boat into shore about seven miles northwest of Jordan River while the abductor, chilled and weary, had gone to sleep in the cabin with his gun across his lap.

Hardy said the couple were afraid to approach the man and decided to abandon ship.

The owner let the woman off on some rocks and then sailed the boat in the opposite direction.

But as he was trying to round a rocky point the boat ran aground and veered back in the direction where the woman had got off.

He jumped overboard and swam for shore.

Hardy said the abductor woke up and tried to sail the boat out into the strait.

The woman whose legs had been badly bruised from slipping on the rocks lay in the bushes and watched the boat pass. The abductor was at the helm and fired a couple of rounds wildly into the bushes.

The boat went around a corner into a shallow bay

Samson Faces Charges

MONTREAL (CPT) — Former RCMP constable Robert Samson was arraigned today on two charges arising from the July 15 explosion of a small bomb at the home of Melvin Dobrin, president of Steinberg's Ltd.

Samson was charged with making an explosive device, an offence punishable by five years, and placing it near the Dobrin residence, punishable by 14 years.

Crown Prosecutor Fernand Cote said he had no objection to the release of Samson pending preliminary hearing, tentatively set for Nov. 12, provided certain conditions were met.

Earlier, Fire Commissioner Cyrille Delage ruled the explosion "is of criminal origin" and recommended that the former constable "face criminal charges."

Samson suffered injuries including partial hearing loss in the explosion and is currently serving a 60-day prison sentence after being cited for contempt of court for refusing to testify when the inquiry opened in late August.

Samson, who said he was at the Dobrin house after receiving an anonymous telephone tip that he would find something interesting there, has since been dismissed from the anti-terrorist squad of the RCMP.

"It's one of the most complex investigations I can remember in my many years' experience as fire commissioner," Delage said. "At one point during the inquiry, the investigators and myself wrote down 41 possible motives for the bombing."

"I believe we've eliminated 39 and we won't be able to eliminate the 40th unless we find William Oborn."

Oborn, a Montreal businessman, has been described in police testimony at the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime as a member of the underworld. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest last week.

Beryl Threatens To Resign

OTTAWA (CPT) — Beryl Plumptre said Tuesday she will resign as chairman of the food prices review board if the federal government attempts to limit her power to recommend action on food prices.

She said in an interview it was "absolutely essential" that the board be allowed to recommend government action when needed.

"Otherwise, what's the point?" Mrs. Plumptre was commenting on statements made by former consumer affairs minister Herb Gray, who told the Commons recently that the government apparently was trying to trim the board's powers.

CALVES BURIED

CURTIS, Wis. (AP) — Protesters low cattle prices, farmers shot or slit the throats of 638 calves and buried the carcasses in trenches.

"I'm tired of rhetoric," said Steve Pavich, president of the National Farmers Organization (NFO) in Wisconsin. "There is a problem out here in rural America and something has to be done about it."

"None of us like it," one farmer said. "But if they don't change soon they might as well shoot the American farmer and throw him in the pit."

The farmers say the price of feed grain and other costs have jumped while veal prices have fallen.

ister Trudeau if the government plans to act on a request from the four western premiers for federal aid "in view of the fact... that if something is not done almost immediately, thousands may go out of business, resulting in higher prices for consumers."

Trudeau replied that all proposals from the recent western premiers conference are being considered, but there were no immediate plans to help beef producers.
